TRAP TRIO IN EXTORTION PLOT

CERMAK FREES TAMMANY FROM TWO WORRIES

Roosevelt Is Wet; Smith His Friend.

New York, July 23.—[Special.]—Anton J. Cermak, the Czecho-Slovakian mayor of Chicago, seems to have the knack of going direct to the heart of a political problem. He has been in New York less than twenty-four hours, and in that brief space has found an answer to two troublesome problems which have kept shrewd politicians in this part of the world guessing and squabbling for the better part of a year.

Here are his brief and succinct conclusions on the two problems uppermost in Democratic minds:

Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York is wet enough to meet the demands of the most ardent foes of prohibition, who plan to make liquor the big issue in 1932 and who are pledged to die fighting in defense of that position in the next national convention.

There is no real conflict between Gov. Roosevelt and Alfred E. Smith, probable nominee for President and generally regarded as the leader of Democracy in the nation. Smith is not unfriendly to the Roosevelt candidacy and is not himself nursing the idea that he may have another nomination next year.

Shortness of Manner Wins.

Whether it is because he is a stranger in these parts and does not have the cautious habit of local politicos of saying everything except what they mean, or because he is quicker in sizing up the situation than the local leaders, Mayor Cermak suitably jolted the Democratic statesmen here today.

Kid in manner and not at all suggestive of a political giant who could drive out Big Bill Thompson of Chicago and battle desperate bands of gunsters to a standstill—almost—the mayor of Chicago does give an impression of force and determination in his physique and mental processes. There is about him a directness which is refreshing.

"Yes, I have just called on Al Smith at the Empire State building; had a long talk with him," the mayor told me as he stepped out of a taxi in front of Gov. Roosevelt's residence in East 65th street shortly after noon. There were official cars with motorcycle escorts and their waiting sirens waiting to take him from the Al Smith interview to the governor, but the mayor preferred to walk.

"Politics? Of Course."

"Certainly, we talked over the political situation. What else would we naturally talk about? Gov Smith is the head of the Democratic party in the nation, isn't he?"

"Yes, in a general way."

"Would you gather he had the idea of being a candidate again for the nomination?"

"Nothing he said in any way would indicate he entertained any such idea and my opinion would be that he does not," came the quick answer.

"Did he indicate his view toward Gov. Roosevelt as a candidate?"

"Yes, in a general way; I would say that he is not at all unfriendly to Gov. Roosevelt. He seemed to be very friendly to Gov. Roosevelt. Certainly he is not against Mr. Roosevelt."

"You have been quoted as having said since arriving yesterday that there is some sentiment for Roosevelt in Illinois, but more sentiment for Smith. Is that correct?"

"Substantially correct, yes. I said there is some sentiment for Roosevelt, more for Smith, but more for Senator Lewis than for both the New York men. We will go to the national convention prepared to vote for Lewis.

"First Test of Candidate."

"The point is just this—Illinois Democrats, like a lot of other Democrats, are for Smith because they know he is really and sincerely against prohibition. He is wet, but I am wet. The first test of the candidate as we see it is whether or not he is honestly wet."

Does Roosevelt qualify on that test as being wet enough for the wettest wets of the middle west?"

"My judgment at this time, based on what I have read and learned of his views, is that Gov. Roosevelt is wet enough to be acceptable to our wet party in the west."

Mr. Cermak spent about the same length of time with Mr. Smith and Mr. Roosevelt. He talked politics with the governor and appeared favorably impressed with New York's executive. The governor was deeply in-

HAWKS COVERS 2,800 MILES IN 17 HOUR FLIGHT

Istanbul Hop Halted

FLOYD BENNETT AIRPORT, New York, July 24.—(AP)—Russell Boardman and John Polando, Boston flyers, failed in an attempt to take off on a nonstop flight for Istanbul, Turkey, today. Their plane started at 4:52 a. m., Chicago daylight saving time, rolled the full length of the field, went over Jamaica Bay for a short distance and returned as white spray of gasoline shot over the water.

Nine minutes later the plane landed. The flyers had dumped several hundred gallons of gasoline to avert disaster when their heavy craft failed to rise soon enough. Their plane was not damaged. They went to their hotel for sleep.

New York, July 23.—[Special.]—Capt. Frank M. Hawks ate his breakfast in New York this morning. He dropped down in Havana for lunch, and tonight he returned to New York for dinner. In between he flew 2,306 miles.

He set new records both for the trip to Cuba and on the flight back. He cut twenty-seven minutes from the record set by James Goodwin Hall for the flight to Havana and, returning, he sliced over an hour from his own record.

The round trip, including a stop for lunch for an hour and twenty-five minutes and four fuel stops, which cut another full hour from his flying time, took 17 hours and 4 minutes—just four minutes more than the mark at which he aimed before starting.

Over 200 Miles an Hour.

The powerful bullet-like Mystery S which spanned the continent last year in 12 hours and 25 minutes and which Hawks recently flew from London to Rome and back in a day fairly outdid itself today on the trip north from Cuba. Capt. Hawks left Havana at 1:33 p. m. daylight time and he made the 240 miles across the straits to Miami in just 1 hour and 13 minutes. There was a brief interlude for fuel and the flyer was on his way home.

Up across the flatlands of Florida his red and white comet flashed at between 3 and 4 miles a minute. He crossed Georgia and South Carolina flying the same terrific speed and dropped down again at Wilmington, N. C., for another load of gasoline. He had made the trip from Miami in a little more than three hours.

Ahead of his schedule by a few precious minutes, Hawks took off for the last leg of his flight. Darkness caught him over Virginia and through the last two hundred miles he flew in thick murky weather, but he did not slacken speed.

Lands at 9 o'Clock.

A second after 9 o'clock the roar of his motor sounded in the ears of hundreds who waited to greet him at Floyd Bennett field and a minute later he poked his plane in the gleam of the big flood lights. At 9:03 his wheels touched the ground and he rolled to a stop, 7 hours 30 minutes after leaving the Cuban capital. Allowing for his fueling stops his actual flying time for the 1,402 miles was 6 hours and 53 minutes. He had cut an hour and 19 minutes from his previous record for the flight north.

It was just 4 o'clock this morning when he rolled down the concrete runway at Floyd Bennett field and in the 10 seconds before daylight appeared between plane and runway he had moved 1,500 feet. Up over Jamaica bay he sped and settled down to the long grind ahead of him. He averaged 197 miles an hour on the southern flight, but he returned at an average speed of 206 miles an hour.

Clothes Only Show Wear.

Climbing out of the plane, his face flushed from wind and heat, Capt. Hawks waved and grinned. His white linen knickers were wrinkled and his shirt, open at the neck, showed signs of wear, but otherwise he looked as fresh as he did at the start.

"Headwinds on the way down, but some help coming home," he said, "that is about all there is to it. I had a bunch of thunderstorms, but I dodged the nastiest one between Wilmington and here."

"The purpose of the trip," Capt. Hawks answered to a questioner. "Why, I had a luncheon date with Ambassador Guggenheim at the Havana airport and we exchanged books. Then I came home. That's about all there is to it."

The flyer also brought some films which he handed out to various representatives of photograph agencies,

Girl Greeters' Club Reported to State's Atty.

The danger that those tired business men who come to Chicago for conventions may get lonesome is about to be wiped out. An official of the state's attorney's office inquired yesterday about the project.

Over in room 200 of the Engineering building at 205 West Wacker drive the Convention Club of Chicago is busy mobilizing 200 party girls who will be ready to entertain the tired business men in a genteel manner and try to make them forget that they are tired.

As outlined, the plan is simple. From five to fifty coventioneers, bored because they are far from home and mother, will call the convention club and ask for from five to fifty young women who are willing to show them where to dine and dance—in the words of the prospectus, "the intriguing spots—or whatever might be of mutual interest."

And at the appointed hour from five to fifty refined young women, all with good references, will appear to steer them to the intriguing spots.

She Explains Club's Aims.

Miss Gertrude B. Houston, secretary, explained the club's aims yesterday to Assistant State's Attorney James L. Henry.

"We are enrolling only young women with good references," she said, "and the gentlemen who want entertainers will be interviewed about their characters. These gentlemen will pay the club a service charge for dinner and theater parties, sightseeing trips and social affairs. The girls will receive no compensation but a good time.

"Our club already has a nucleus of about two dozen girls and we have a membership drive on now."

According to Miss Houston, the originator of the idea is Frank B. Lacy, whose office in the Engineering building is also used as an agency for filling machinery. Assistant State's Attorney Henry hopes to interview Mr. Lacy today, not because anything is wrong with the idea, but to learn how he gets his club members.

Married Woman Complains.

The prosecutor's interest was aroused when a young woman who is married complained of being urged to go out to blind date dinners with business men visiting the city. Her name is being withheld. She gave Mr. Henry a letter she had received. It read:

"The Convention club of Chicago was formed for the purpose of entertaining out-of-town visitors attending conventions. Your name has been suggested to us as possibly being interested in becoming a member of our organization. There are no dues or assessments.

"All we ask is that once in a while, when you happen to be free for the evening, you will accept an invitation to serve on our entertainment committee. You will be invited, along with other club members, to help show the convention delegates the things of interest about town—the unusual places to dine, the intriguing spots to dance, or whatever may be of mutual interest.

"You are not obligated in any way. You may accept or refuse any invitation extended to you. If you have any friends you would like to have serve with you on our committees we shall be glad to consider their names for membership."

The complainant also said she had been asked by telephone to join the organization and that when she suggested it was hardly proper for a married woman to join her objections were pooh-poohed.

Mr. Henry learned, he said, that her name was one on a list furnished the Convention club by an official of an employment agency in the loop to which the girls had applied for positions as stenographers.

SHOT TO DEATH IN HOME AS TWO CHILDREN SLEEP

Evidently murdered, John Balkowitz, 22 years old, a driver for a cleaning and dyeing company, was found dead early this morning in the bedroom of his home at 10649 Bensley avenue. He had been shot once through the throat. His children, Robert, 3 years old, and Joseph, 2, lay asleep in the same room during the shooting.

Mrs. Balkowitz, wife of the slain man, was visiting neighbors at the time, and was summoned home by her brother, George Leka, of 10639 Bensley avenue, who found the body.

The murder victim was lying on a blanket on the floor beside his bed. When the body was removed his revolver, hammer cocked, was found beneath. It had not been fired, eliminating the suicide theory. His throat was powder burned and several apparent stab wounds appeared on his shoulder and arms. Circumstances indicate that Balkowitz was asleep when he was aroused by an intruder. He turned on the light by yanking at a string over his head, police believe, seized his gun, and was shot down. Police said that he had been engaged in the booze racket on the side.

Teacher Nips Love Barrage of Mr. Kahn

Miss Rose Appleby, a teacher in the commercial department of Lindblom High school, yesterday awaited anxiously a reply to a cablegram she had dispatched to Bombay, India. There was no answer and Miss Appleby related a story of sinister possibilities.

Miss Appleby's chief absorption in life has been the study of higher mathematics. Several years ago, in a moment which she now deems evilly inspired, Miss Appleby organized a club composed of students in her classes. It was named the "Calculator Winners' club."

Got Letter from Bombay.

The idea was unusual and a magazine gave the club some publicity. Some weeks later Miss Appleby received a letter from Bombay. It was signed by one M. A. Kahn, who described himself as an Indian native mightily interested in Miss Appleby's club.

Mr. Kahn was a man of ideas, his letter revealed. He inquired whether or not Miss Appleby had considered developing her club into one of international proportions.

Miss Appleby was delighted. She replied to Mr. Kahn's letter, expressing interest and asking whether the plan he had in mind was for a social or a commercial organization. Mr. Kahn immediately replied, assuring her that it would be strictly a social organization and in the nature of a correspondence club.

Wanted Girls' Names.

Mr. Kahn wrote by return post, asking for the names and addresses of eight of the girls in the picture.

She was further alarmed when informed that one of her girl students had communicated with Mr. Kahn and had received an immediate reply which vouchsafed the information that the writer was an Indian prince, 1,100 miles from home, a lonely exile craving the companionship of a sympathetic woman, etc.

Revealed as Handsome Chap.

Mr. Kahn also inclosed a photograph which revealed him as quite a dashingly handsome fellow. He informed the girl student that her missive meant much to him, that he would give much to see her personally, and extended his passionate gratitude.

Several other club members [feminine] joined in the correspondence and Miss Appleby acted. She expelled from membership the girl who had first written to the "lonely Indian prince" and she cabled Mr. Kahn, asking him to stop writing such letters. A few days later she sent another cablegram.

But there was no answer.

Nabbed as They Call for Cash at Lake Forest

Trapped in the act of extorting money from Capt. Henry James Porter, popular riding master of the exclusive Knollwood club at Lake Forest, a father and two sons were in a cell in that city early this morning. They are David McLernon, 52 years old, Merrill McLernon, 35 years old, and David McLernon Jr., 30 years old, all of Lake Bluff. They were arrested in the clubhouse by Chief of Police Frank Tiffany of Lake Forest late last night when they appeared to collect $500 they had demanded from Porter.

The extortion demand followed an automobile accident in which Capt. Porter figured at North Chicago a few days ago. At that time his machine and one driven by John A. Thomas, a petty officer at the Great Lakes Training station, collided. Thomas was injured slightly and taken to Victory Memorial hospital at Waukegan. Capt. Porter was held temporarily on a technical charge.

Demands Money for Silence.

On the following day, according to the police, Porter received a telephone call from McLernon, who said that he and his sons had witnessed the accident, that Porter was to blame and that if they did not get $1,000 for their silence they would "make it hot" for him. Porter told McLernon that he did not have that much money and the demand was reduced to $500. McLernon was told to call again the next day.

Meanwhile Porter enlisted the services of Chief Tiffany. McLernon was told to come to the clubhouse in the evening to get his money. Tiffany and a squad of Lake Forest police concealed themselves in a room and awaited developments.

All Are Arrested.

Shortly after 10 o'clock last night the three McLernons appeared at the clubhouse. The father entered while the sons remained outside. Porter told McLernon that he would only give him $100, and handed him the amount in bills. McLernon threw it on a table and declared he must have $500. At that moment Tiffany appeared and arrested him. Other police took the two sons into custody. The father carried a pistol, and David Jr. had a 22-calibre rifle with him.

McLernon for twelve years was a policeman at Lake Geneva, Wis., but recently lost his position. He told Chief Tiffany that he had since been out of work and gave that as his reason for his demand on Porter. The McLernons were charged with blackmail and carrying concealed weapons.

Capt. Porter has been connected with the Knollwood club for many years and is well known in all the millionaire homes of the club's membership.

Lady Astor, on Her Knee, Begs Litvinov's Aid

MOSCOW, July 23.—(AP)—A sensation was caused at a British embassy reception in honor of George Bernard Shaw late today when Lady Astor and Shaw were delivered identical cables signed by Dmitri Krynin, New Haven, Conn., who identified himself as a Yale university professor, reading, in part, as follows:

Lady Astor, who received her message first, in the midst of the festivities, which were participated in by the diplomatic corps and high soviet officials, went to Maxim Litvinov, soviet commissar for foreign affairs, who was on a terrace, surrounded by a knot of people, and presented the message to him in dramatic fashion.

Kneels Before Litvinov.

Kneeling, as if in obeisance, she said:

"I come to you as a peasant before a czar," and tendered the cablegram.

Litvinov read it as the circle of persons around them grew thicker. Then, addressing Lady Astor, he said:

Some one suggested it should be taken up by the political police, whereupon, Lady Astor, Mr. Shaw, Lord Astor, and at attaché of the embassy left immediately in an automobile with the avowed intention of referring the matter to that organization.

Use Phone in Vain.

Stopping at their hotel en route, they made an unsuccessful attempt to reach high soviet officials by telephone. The matter was then put aside so the party could attend to packing their luggage preparatory to their departure to Leningrad tonight.

Lady Astor expressed the keenest interest in the message, but did not reveal whether she intended to pursue the matter farther on her return from Leningrad two days hence.

The full text of the cablegrams was not made public and it was not indicated whether the professor went into details concerning his wife's plight, although he gave her address as Moscow. [illegible] comment.

LONDON PARLEY VOTES "RELIEF" FOR GERMANY

Berlin Gloomy as Conference Ends.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 23.—The London seven power conference on relief for Germany ended today—having accomplished just exactly nothing. All that the representatives of the powers were able to do after four days of intensive labor was to ask the bankers of the world to maintain their existing short terms credits in Germany. Presumably, the bankers have agreed to do so in advance. If they have not, the conference will not only be an actual, but a public failure.

Although no fresh money is provided for Germany in the "relief" plan, approved by the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan and Belgium, the more optimistic observers insist that as a result of the conference Germany has been placed in a stronger position to negotiate new loans.

The delegates held a brief meeting today. The full conference assembled at the foreign office at 10 o'clock and adjourned at noon. As the conference closed, an official communique was issued.

All Ready to Cooperate.

"The international conference has concluded its labors," the document said. "The following declaration was adopted:

"The recent excessive withdrawals of capital from Germany have created an acute financial crisis. These withdrawals have been caused by a lack of confidence which is not justified by the economic and budgetary situation of the country.

"In order to insure maintenance of the financial stability of Germany, which is essential in the interests of the whole world, the governments represented at the conference are ready to cooperate so far as lies within their power to restore confidence.

Urge Loan Renewed.

"The governments represented are ready to recommend for the consideration of the financial institutions in their respective countries the following proposals for relieving the immediate situation:

"First, that the central bank credits of $100,000,000 recently granted to the Reichsbank under the auspices of the Bank for International Settlements be renewed at maturity for a period of three months.

"Second, that concerted measures should be taken by the financial institutions in the several countries with a view to maintaining the volume of credits they already have extended to Germany.

Investigate Germany's Needs.

"Third, that the Bank for International Settlements should be invited to set up without delay a committee of representatives nominated by the governors of the central banks interested to inquire into the immediate further credit needs of Germany and to study the possibilities of converting a portion of the short term credits into long term.

"The conference noted with interest a communication from Dr. Heinrich Bruening relative to the joint guarantee recently placed by German industry at the disposal of the gold discount bank.

"The conference is of the opinion that a guarantee of this description should make it possible to provide a sound basis for resumption of the normal operations of international credit.

New Basis for Future.

"The conference considers that if these measures are carried through they will form a basis for more permanent action to follow."

The communique was followed by the following statement from the British foreign office:

"The conference also decided that the committee of the Young plan experts should proceed with elaboration of detailed measures required for giving effect to President Hoover's proposal for a one year suspension of intergovernmental debts."

This morning's session was a love feast. Premier Laval of France spoke first. He complimented Prime Minister MacDonald on the impartial way he had presided, and then tossed bouquets at Secretary of State Stimson and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

More Bouquets Tossed.

Secretary Stimson then arose, complimenting everybody and saying he felt that he had just witnessed a great international event. Chancellor Bruening of Germany tossed more bouquets

So did the Italian foreign secretary, Dino Grandi, and Prime Minister Jules Renkin of Belgium, and the conference broke up after Prime Minister MacDonald had thanked every one for "being good" and obeying his rulings in the chair.

Emerging from the foreign office in Downing street Prime Minister MacDonald announced that he was greatly gratified with the result of the conference.

"I am very well pleased," he said. "We have reached a complete agreement, which will be of the greatest importance in helping Germany."

Later in the day Secretaries Stimson and Mellon received the press of the world at the Hyde Park hotel and issued a short statement, Mr. Stimson declaring that he was in a hurry to attend King George's garden party at Buckingham palace, to which the delegates were invited.

Hoover Plan Praised.

In his statement Mr. Stimson praised the Hoover moratorium plan and pointed out that most of the money now in Germany on short term credits came from America. Mr. Mellon also confined himself to praising the Hoover plan.

Prime Minister MacDonald and Foreign Secretary Henderson are returning the German visit to England immediately. Mr. Henderson will leave London Sunday night, and Mr. MacDonald will fly to Berlin on Monday, arriving at the same time. Secretary Stimson will go to Berlin tomorrow to discuss the question of further assistance for the stricken nation, the British visit, however, is entirely one of courtesy, all political talk supposedly having been concluded here.

Mr. Mellon, after spending a few days here, will return to the Riviera to rejoin his family. Secretary Stimson, after his Berlin visit, which may last two or three days, will return to England and then to Scotland to shoot grouse.

Federal Reserve Aid Reported.

It was reported in London today that the Federal Reserve bank has assured the Bank of England that it will be supported in case French raids on its gold reserves force them below $600,000,000. Secretary Stimson, however, said today that he knew nothing about such a scheme.

It was also reported that Australia, India and South Africa had placed their gold reserves, which are held in England, at the disposal of the Bank of England to support it against further French raids. These combined reserves amount to $230,000,000.

France Is Happy.

In spite of the general announcement of satisfaction, the only nation actually satisfied is France. She is regarded as having succeeded in blocking any permanent relief for Germany and to have passed the buck for temporary relief to Great Britain and America.

Germany is in deep gloom and is already beginning to plan a three months' intensive appeal for real help. The British and the Americans conceal their disappointment over the London proceedings in their congratulation on the fact that the French and Germans "got together" in Paris last week-end without a fight.

No time has been set for the next conference, but it is due within three months, and it is expected that Uncle Sam will again be asked to play the role of Santa Claus.

In an effort to stem the flow of gold to France the British bank rate was raised today from 2½ to 3½ per cent. Its effect was disappointing. Gold was snared out of London today in record quantities, France making the heaviest withdrawals. The amount reached $35,650,000. The total withdrawals since a week ago last Monday exceed $115,500,000. Further raids from Paris are expected tomorrow and Saturday.

Graf Zeppelin to Take Off Tomorrow for Arctic

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, July 23.—The Graf Zeppelin tomorrow morning will fly from Friedrichshafen to Berlin on the first stage of its arctic journey. It will remain overnight in Berlin and will proceed to Leningrad, Russia, on the following day. Weather reports from Franz Josef land are unfavorable, with little indication of an improvement.

HOOVER PRAISES LONDON PLAN AS SAVING GERMANY

Others Consider It but a Breathing Spell.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 23.—[Special.]—Secretary of State Stimson telephoned Washington today with the news of the conclusion of the London conference.

President Hoover issued a statement in which he optimistically declared:

"The London conference has laid sound foundations for the establishment of stability in Germany."

And then, for the first time since the administration set out to rescue the world from an economic cataclysm, official Washington relaxed a bit and took stock of what had been accomplished.

Only a Breathing Spell.

Admittedly, it is to be only a transient breathing spell.

Confident though the President's statement was, it was frankly confessed in other high official quarters that the London agreement is only a temporary palliative, designed to ease the tension in Germany for the next two or three months. The real test, it is felt, will come at the end of this period of grace, when it must be finally decided whether German credit has sufficiently improved to warrant the loan of the new money which the German delegates begged for and did not receive.

Also, insofar as this country is concerned, there is the problem of how best to win congressional approval for the President's debt moratorium plan. With the cessation of international conversations in London talk of an early session of congress emerged from the quietude to which Mr. Hoover relegated it by saying that an early session would not be necessary.

After lunching with the President this noon Representative Allen T. Treadway [Rep., Mass.] emerged to argue emphatically in favor of calling congress together early enough so that the tribulations and delays of organization could be disposed of and the legislation necessary to put the debt holiday into effect passed before Dec. 15, the date of the next debt payments.

Calls Problem One for Bankers.

In the statement with which he hailed the conclusion of the seven power conference President Hoover again emphasized his belief that the German situation presents a banking rather than a political problem.

"The major problem," he said, "is one affecting primarily the banking and credit conditions and can best be solved by the voluntary coöperation of the bankers of the world rather than by governments with their conflicting interests. Such a basis of coöperation is assured.

"The program supplements the suspension of intergovernmental debts already in effect. The combined effect should enable the German people with their resources, industry and courage to overcome the temporary difficulties and restore their credit.

"The program contributes to expedite recovery from world-wide depression through the overcoming of the most important elements in the crisis affecting central Europe.

"The world is indebted to Premiers MacDonald, Laval, and Bruening, to Messrs. Stimson, Mellon, Grandi, Francqui, and other governmental representatives in this conference. The conference has demonstrated a fine spirit of conciliation and consideration amongst nations that will have lasting benefits in establishment of stability."

The issuance of the President's statement was followed closely by the receipt of Secretary Stimson's cable in which the full text of the declaration adopted by the conference was set forth.

The similarity between the final agreement and the proposal which President Hoover sent to Secretary Stimson last week for submission to the conference was proof enough to the administration that it was the President's proposal and no other which had been adopted. There was no hesitancy about setting up the claim. Every effort was made to draw the curtains on the recent unfortunate misunderstanding between Mr. Hoover and Acting Secretary of State Castle on one shore, and Mr. Stimson on the other, which resulted in Mr. Stimson's letting Premier MacDonald receive much of the credit for the plan, thus dimming the picture of Hoover, savior of Europe.

Explain How It Happened.

At the White House the whole affair was termed "a teapot tempest," and a careful diagram of how the embarrassing occasion arose was given out. "Having received the President's proposal in Paris last Friday and explained it to the French and Germans Mr. Stimson, it was explained, saw press dispatches reporting a "new" proposal the next Monday. They actually referred to the same proposal but called it "new" because it was in addition to the President's proposal of June 20. Asked about it, Mr. Stimson said he knew of no new proposal, meaning that he had had word of no new proposal since his receipt of the proposal Friday. And so, it was said, in a cross fire of "proposals" the misunderstanding arose.

Castle Summarizes Benefits.

A summary of the benefits obtained and to be obtained from the work of the machinery set in motion by President Hoover was made by Acting Secretary Castle, in substance as follows:

That Germany has been greatly assisted by the relief from reparations payments for one year, aggregating about 400 million dollars. Her trade balances are favorable and increasing. The flight of the mark has been stopped and the internal banking situation has been regularized by the courageous action of the German authorities.

2,000 Chinese, Hit by Cuban Slump, to Be Sent Home

HAVANA, July 23.—(AP)—Two thousand Chinese, representing about one-fifteenth of the orientals in Cuba, are to be sent back to China in the next two months, Chinese legation officials said today, because of the suffering to which they have been subjected through economic difficulties. The legation is raising funds to pay the passage of those who desire to be repatriated.

STIMSON TO TAKE UP QUESTION OF FURTHER AID ON BERLIN VISIT

LONDON, July 23.—(AP)—The question of further financial aid to Germany by the United States, it was learned tonight, will be taken up by Secretary of State Stimson, during his week-end visit to Berlin, where conversations begun at a dinner party tonight left off.

The American delegation to the seven power conference were guests of the German delegation at the dinner given by Chancellor Heinrich Bruening. Other guests included several men high in German financial and economic circles. The significance attributed by both delegations to Secretary Stimson's hurried visit to the German capital was that America wants Germany to know that she is with her in her hour of need.

Both Secretary Stimson and Secretary Mellon were told tonight, once more, by Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtius, that, while President Hoover's help as it has materialized in the conference, is tremendously appreciated by Germany, yet this can only be the beginning of financial and economic aid to the reich.

GERMANY BRANDS PARLEY 'FAILURE'; FRANCE BLAMED

Says Paris with Her Gold Dictated Powers.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 23.—The London seven power conference, called to save Germany from financial ruin, was an absolute failure in the eyes of all Germans, regardless of class or creed.

Most Germans patiently trust Chancellor Bruening's word that its result was only a temporary compromise, and that negotiations for a real solution of the crisis "are being carried on." Most of them blame France "for the failure of the statesmen of the seven powers to work out a practical scheme to end the world's business difficulties."

Chancellor Bruening has won new sympathy in his own country.

"He returns with empty hands but as an upright man who made no cheap bargain humiliating Germany," said the Jung Deutsche newspaper. "The French could not extort political concessions from him even in the hour of greatest need."

These words were reechoed in the coffee houses and political clubs tonight.

"France Dictated to Parley."

"The need for capital in Germany is so great that there is nothing left for her to do but to swallow the French demands to get the money to run her plants and get jobs for her workers," Arnold Rechberg, German potash king, said tonight. "America and England are out of the running. England is too close to the precipice of bankruptcy to dare to ignore the wishes of Paris, the richest capital in the world. She now must obey France, who is rich enough to mete out gold to these industrial countries who need it to carry on their business in this crisis."

The Ruhr industrialist leaders have risen in anger at Rechberg's assertion that there is nothing left for Germany to do but to eat dust and accept the French political demands in exchange for French permission to borrow money from England, America or France.

The cabinet tonight decided to loosen the purse strings of banks from next Friday until Tuesday. Depositors will be allowed to withdraw $46 daily from checking accounts without proving that they need it to make vital payments. Savings bank depositors may draw $7 daily, instead of the previous $4.80.

Bremen Bank Closes Doors.

BREMEN, Germany, July 23.—(AP)—The Beamten bank, used largely by civil servants, announced tonight it was compelled to close its doors temporarily, on the ground that, because of the present restrictions, the usual receivable amounts had not been paid in, and its assets were not strictly realizable.

George Harding Lands in Madrid on Air Tour

MADRID, July 23.—(AP)—George Harding of Chicago, with William Brock as pilot, landed in an airplane here today with his party which set out on a pleasure tour of Europe at Paris this morning. Those aboard, in addition to Mr. Harding and the pilot, were Mrs. Brock, Miss J. Katz, Miss Katherine Lennon and a mechanic, S. R. Roe, all of Chicago. The party will leave tomorrow for Barcelona, Marseilles and Switzerland.

CUT KANSAS GAS AND ELECTRIC RATES "IN KEEPING WITH TIMES"

Topeka, Kas., July 22.—(AP)—Request of Gov. Harry H. Woodring for voluntary electric and gas rate cuts in Kansas today resulted in the filing of new low rates for 271 cities and towns, serviced by four subsidiaries of the North American Light and Power company.

Reduced electric rates for 219 cities and towns were filed by the Kansas Power company, the United Power and Light corporation, and the Kansas Power and Light company. The Kansas Pipe Line and Gas company filed reduced gas rates for 52 towns.

In filing the schedules, Albert Patten, Topeka, president of all the companies except the United, of which he is executive vice president, said the action was being taken "in keeping with the trend of the times."

The electric rate reductions amounted to approximately 15 per cent.

LET US OUT OF 'BARRED CAGE,' AUSTRIA PLEADS

Defends Right to Pact with Germany.

THE HAGUE, Holland, July 23.—(AP)—Austria, under interpretations placed on her various treaties by powers opposing her customs union with Germany, would be caged, Hans Sperl, law professor of the University of Vienna, told the permanent court for international justice today.

Summing up Austria's case before the world court, Prof. Sperl concluded with a dramatic plea for permission for the customs accord to be consummated, speaking after Dr. Erich Kaufmann, also of Austria.

"Her independence has been limited," he said, "by restrictions placed on her in the same treaty wherein are clauses whose interpretations are being discussed now. Some of these interpretations really violate her independence.

Led Into "Barred Cage."

"By planning a customs union she was using her independence, people were saying at last the government is taking steps to find outlets for our products, to do something for our industries and our agriculture. Then, suddenly, came these interpretations which we claim threaten our independence.

"It is they [apparently the interpreters] who threaten us and would lead us gently, but firmly, back into a barred cage labeled 'Independent Austria.'"

Prof. Sperl said the Italians argue that a smaller country loses by joining forces with a big country, but he could not agree. He pointed out that Austria's population of 6,000,000 would benefit by cohesion in the form of a customs union which Germany's 61,000,000 purchasers would assure.

Challenges Opposite Views.

Dr. Kaufmann had closed his argument by asking which was right of two divergent views held by Italy and France on the matter of benefits accruing to Germany and Austria through the customs union.

Answering a charge that constitutionally Austria was without power to ratify the customs agreement, Dr. Kaufmann referred the judges to the war debt settlements of America with France and other similar agreements. These were contrary to the constitutions of both France and America, he said, and two such countries were able to find means for reaching an accord.

Refers to Kellogg Decision.

Earlier in his argument, Dr. Kaufmann referred the judges to a decision written by Frank B. Kellogg, former American secretary of state, in which the American jurist and peace advocate was reported to have said, "As a matter of a customs régime the matter is within the exclusive jurisdiction of a state."

Opposition to the Austro-German project gets a hearing tomorrow, when Jules Basdevant will open for France. Paul Boncour summing up. Czecho-Slovakia will follow Italy in arguments.

KIDNAPED BY BANDIT GANG.

William Sheboiski, 804 East 85d street, was kidnaped in his own automobile by three Negro bandits yesterday, who made him drive them three miles to 35th and State streets, and there robbed him of $15.

BIG OPERATORS HEED PLEAS NOT TO RAID MARKET

Asked to Stop Trading During Crisis.

New York, July 23.—[Special.]—The secret behind the dullness in the stock market is out. The big operators have been asked to take a vacation, it was learned on good authority today.

The big bears and the big bulls who ordinarily would be kicking stocks around at a time like this are peacefully sleeping in hammocks on sunny yacht decks or chasing golf balls over cool greenswards.

No official confirmation could be obtained from the stock exchange that the bulls and bears had signed a truce, but it is common knowledge in the street.

Evidence of the absenteeism was provided by today's stock market, with prices moving quietly in a narrow range. Sales amounted to only about 900,000 shares.

Bears and Bulls Agree.

About twenty-five operators, it is reported, received letters asking them to refrain from upsetting the market during the European crisis. The letter, it is believed, was sent out either by the stock exchange or a committee of bankers, or perhaps both.

The bears refused to agree to the truce, it is understood, unless the bulls also were restrained. The bulls were brought into line. So perhaps for the first time in Wall street history the bulls and bears are grazing peacefully in the same pasture.

In seeking to stabilize the market by restraining bear raiding and strong arm bull tactics the stock exchange, it is believed, acted entirely on its own initiative and was not asked to do it by President Hoover, as commonly reported.

President Hoover, it is reported, is not antagonistic toward the stock exchange bears—only the bears in the grain and cotton markets.

Estimate of German Credits.

The volume of foreign short term credits in Germany, which the London conference of ministers urged bankers today to maintain undiminished, is variously estimated by bankers as from $1,200,000,000 to $2,000,000,000, of which approximately one-half is being carried in the United States.

The discrepancy between the various estimates is accounted for principally by a difference of opinion as to what constitutes short term indebtedness. The lower figure is based on credits maturing within one year, while the larger includes loans with as much as two and one-half years to run.

Approximately $600,000,000 comprises credits maturing within ninety days, the short term paper to which the majority of bankers refer when discussing Germany's short term position. Of this amount about $350,000,000 is held in the United States. This is the sum that has actually been "frozen" by the German crisis, the remainder being not yet due for collection.

The amount of German credits having about one year or less to run that is held by commercial banks on the Atlantic seaboard is estimated at about $425,000,000. An additional $100,000,000 is held by banks in the interior of the country.

PIRATES CAPTURE U. S. BOY TWICE ON WORLD CRUISE

Sails Into French Port in 32 Foot Boat.

VILLEFRANCHE, France, July 23.—(AP)—Pirates, head hunters, and a sultan were among the hosts of William Albert Robinson of Boston, Mass., on a world tour in his 32 foot ketch Svaap, which sailed into Villefranche harbor today.

His grandmother, Mrs. Ida Kniffler of Milwaukee, was waiting for him with a basket of sandwiches when he arrived at 4:22 p. m., just twelve minutes behind his schedule, after having left New London, Conn., in June, 1928.

"Albert," his grandmother said, "I've never known you to be so late. Where have you been?"

Fifteen days out from India the mariner landed at Makalla, at the end of the Mohammedan feast of Ramadan. There he saw charging mobs with silver scimitars being stopped by the sultan's guards just before death blows were about to be struck.

The sultan gave the Boston boy 150 rupees "in order to cement cordial relations with the United States."

Robinson twice was captured by Pirates in Arabian ports.

He sailed up the Sepik river in New Guinea 300 miles in order to see cannibals and friendly tribes of headhunters who were forced to get a head a day in order to retain their tribal status.

"These people," he said, "only twice before were visited by whites. They sleep in air tight baskets along with the family pigs and chickens. They believe that a special magic enables them to breathe.

"From there we went to Kompdo Island, where 14 foot dragon lizards eat pigs for breakfast. "The Island of Bali proved to be the world's Eden, with beautiful gardens everywhere. Everybody there seems to be an artist."

GIVES SKIN TO SAVE LIFE OF BURNED SON; DIES FROM INFECTION

North Platte, Neb., July 23.—(AP)—Dorsey M. Leypoldt, 55, local realty dealer, today gave his own life that his son might live. Whether his sacrifice will be in vain was not determined late today. The son, Burdette, 22, remained in a serious condition at a local hospital from burns suffered in a gasoline explosion June 22.

The father submitted to an operation last Wednesday in which skin was removed from his body and grafted onto the body of the son. The operation over, he left the hospital, and two days later made a business trip to Colorado.

When he returned here the elder Leypoldt felt ill. He was rushed to a hospital Monday, but died today of a virulent case of blood poisoning. All efforts of physicians were futile.

Doctors said today it is still doubtful whether the son will live, because of severe burns on his arms and legs.

Student, Seized with Cramp, Drowns in Lake

Curtis Chelstrom, 23 years old, 1744 West 51st street, a college student, was drowned yesterday in the lake off 51st street. Miss Ruth Jones, 7049 Clyde avenue, who was swimming with him, said he suffered a cramp.

ENDS LIFE; LEAVES NOTE.

The body of Harry Cook, 33 years old, a switchman, with a bullet wound through the heart was found yesterday in his room at 6425 Stewart avenue. Near by was a note: "Tell her I said good-by with love, for she is the only one I love." Acquaintances believed Cook committed suicide because of an estrangement with his wife, Dora.

TWO MUNICIPAL JUDGES AGREE TO SALARY CUT

Municipal court and city officials remained in a deadlock yesterday over the demand of Mayor Cermak that the court judges and employés cooperate in his economy program by accepting fourteen days' pay reductions like all of the other city hall workers.

A number of the judges who were interviewed on Wednesday either flatly declared their intention of collecting all their salaries or proposed the delay of any decision until the judges have a meeting and act as a body. Chief Justice Sonsteby, Clerk Gill, and Bailiff Horan previously had notified City Controller Szymczak that the law exempted them from the economy plan.

Two judges were found yesterday, however, who said they were willing to forfeit a part of their salaries if necessary to save the city's finances. They are Judges Samuel Heller and George V. McIntyre.

View of Judge Heller.

"I believe that we ought to cooperate in the mayor's economy plan," said Judge Heller. "Employés with incomes of less than $5,000 a year, however, should not be forced to make sacrifices in pay. The cuts should be limited to those who can afford them."

Judge McIntyre, who yesterday was erroneously reported to have gone to New York for the Walker-Sharkey fight, was found on duty at the Wabash avenue court. He had not been out of the city. Judge McIntyre said he was willing to give up his whole salary and work for a dollar a year if there was no other way to rescue the city.

"It should be remembered, however, that the Municipal court turns over a million dollars a year in fees to the city," he said. "We are working with curtailed staffs now, and it is clear that the courts must continue to function efficiently."

Another judge, F. L. Fairbank, declined to state his views, explaining that he is on a vacation and "trying not to think about business."

A survey of courtrooms during the afternoon showed that only a handful of the judges hold court after the lunch hour. Fully a third of them are taking vacations.

Chief Justice Sonsteby during the day sent letters to all the lawyers in the city asking them to agree to have cases heard by six jurors instead of the customary twelve. This, he pointed out, would save half of the $150,000 annual appropriation for jury fees. The chief justice said that half as many jurors may be used in any case if both sides of the litigation agree.

For the first time yesterday newspaper photographers were permitted to take pictures of the new furniture and fixtures in the office of Bailiff Horan. The day before they had been ejected from the offices of Horan and Gill.

BAR ASSOCIATION DISCLOSES QUIZ ON TAX BATTLES

Hear Attorneys on Suits to Block Levies.

The taxpayers' associations which have started a number of legal actions attacking assessment rolls in Cook county or seeking to prevent the collection of taxes from their members are under investigation by the Chicago Bar association. This was announced yesterday by Charles P. Denning, executive secretary of the bar association.

C. P. DENNING.

Officers of five or six taxpayers' associations, and the attorneys who represent them, have been questioned at length at joint sessions of the bar association's committee on professional ethics and on malpractice.

A General Investigation.

"It should be understood," Mr. Denning said, "that this is not a specific investigation of the associations concerned or of the conduct of their attorneys, but rather an inquiry into the general question of ethics.

"For a good many years we have been considering the ethical principle of these tax associations. The question first arose in connection with the organization of taxpayers to fight special assessment proceedings for public improvements. The same considerations, however, would apply to general taxpayers' associations.

"What we are considering is whether it is ethical for a lawyer to take a case from these organizations. We are not at the point of a pronouncement on the matter, and probably will not be before fall."

No Prosecutions Recommended.

Mr. Denning was asked whether charges of barratry had come up during the investigation. He replied that the joint committees had recommended no prosecutions for that crime.

The Illinois statutes state that "if any person shall wickedly and willfully excite and stir up any suits and quarrels between the people of this state, either at law or otherwise, with a view to promote strife and contention, he shall be deemed guilty of common barratry, and shall be fined not exceeding $100; and if he be an attorney or counselor at law, he shall be suspended from practice of his profession for a period not exceeding six months."

The investigation of the taxpayers' associations which have been active in the present tax muddle has not disclosed evidence that any lawyer had been concerned in the organization of the groups. In every case, Mr. Denning said, the organizations were formed by laymen, who then employed attorneys to represent them.

Questioned on Fees.

One of the points on which the witnesses before the committees were questioned was the disposition of the membership fees. In that connection it was pointed out that the bar association is not concerned as to whether all of these collections were used to pay for legal services. Its only concern was to find out whether there had been any splitting of legal fees, an unethical procedure, by the attorneys with the organizers of the associations.

One of the groups whose leaders are known to have been questioned is the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers of Illinois, which is represented by the law firm of Watkins, Ten Hoor & Gilbert. Ferre C. Watkins, a member of that firm, declined to comment on the matter last night.

Taxpayers May Appeal.

On Wednesday the Appellate court reversed the order of Circuit Judge Philip L. Sullivan, who had granted that association a temporary injunction restraining County Treasurer McDonough from selling the property of its members for nonpayment of 1929 taxes totaling $10,000,000.

The temporary injunction remains in force for ten days more, during which time the association's attorney may file briefs for a rehearing. The attorneys stated that the case might be carried to the United States Supreme court. The petition of the group for a permanent injunction remains before Judge Sullivan, who is expected to rule on it today.

County Attorney Hayden N. Bell, who carried the appeal to the higher court, characterized the case yesterday as "one of a number not brought to win, but as psychological incidents in a controversy between real property and personal property as to how the burden of taxation shall be borne."

County Treasurer McDonough yesterday remitted $700,000 in 1928 tax collections to City Treasurer Kearns. Upon receipt of the money Deputy City Controller Victor S. Petterson renewed his prediction that all but 10 per cent of the 1928 levy will be collected before the end of the year.

MA KENNEDY UNWED AS SWIFTLY AS SHE WED FEW DAYS AGO

Los Angeles, Cal., July 23.—(AP)—The same swift tempo that characterized the wedding of Mrs. Minnie [Ma] Kennedy and G. Edward Hudson on the banks of a moonlit Washington lake entered her successful annulment proceedings in Superior court today.

MRS. MINNIE KENNEDY.

The entire proceedings lasted about ten minutes and came to an end with the suddenness with which the mother of Aimee Semple McPherson, Los Angeles evangelist, married Hudson in Cowlitz county, Washington, June 28.

Hudson faces a Washington bigamy charge, a divorce suit filed by Mrs. Newton-Hudson, and a breach of promise suit by Mrs. Ethel Harbert.

"It'll be Mrs. Kennedy only—forever," "Ma" said. "I thought I had found romance, but I see I'm too old."

HUNT EXPLOSIVES IN JOLIET PRISON; PLOT REPORTED

Asserting that he had fresh information indicating that the convicts in the Stateville prison near Joliet were preparing for a riot and a general escape, Warden Henry C. Hill last evening ordered that all the prisoners be kept in their cells until a search of their quarters and the prison yard could be made.

The search probably will require more than a week. There have been reports that explosives were smuggled in and that the inmates were hiding sledge hammers and rubber hose to be used as weapons. On Tuesday and again yesterday the warden asked that state highway policemen be ready for service at the prison. Nearly fifty were sent on each occasion, but the expected mutiny failed to occur.

"At least 90 per cent of the convicts would prefer to live peacefully," said the warden. "The other 10 per cent may be reached by the wild talk of agitators, of whom there are less than two dozen. We are going to make this search to prevent the agitators from having the means to start trouble."

WOMAN WHO BID AGAINST MORGAN LOSES VERDICT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 23.—A jury today decided that Mrs. Alfred Noyes, wife of the war time poet, owed Mrs. Lillian Westby nothing for her participation in the 45 seconds of tense bidding when J. P. Morgan was forced to pay richly for the famous Bedford "Book of Hours" two years ago.

Mrs. Westby claimed that Mrs. Noyes, who had inherited the manuscript from her first husband, offered to make it "worth her while" to act as a dummy bidder against Mr. Morgan, whom she knew was itching to own the 15th century work of art. For the services, she said, she received a check for $50, which she returned. She then sued Mrs. Noyes for $4,750.

During the trial it was revealed that Mr. Morgan was forced to bid $165,000 to top the bid of Mrs. Westby.

terested in Chicago's problem and what the mayor has done to correct one of the worst municipal situations in the entire country. The governor did most of the questioning.

Tammany leaders and Democratic chiefs in eastern states have been much concerned of late by reports that Al Smith had formed an alliance with the Illinois democracy, through Mayor Cermak, which might prove dangerous to Roosevelt.

Great concern has been expressed, also, about Mr. Smith's position and attitude in the party. It has been assumed since the meeting of the national committee in Washington last spring, when Roosevelt upset the Smith-Raskob plan to register the party for prohibition repeal, that a dangerous situation had developed. Friends of the two men have seen the possibility of a conflict which might prove disastrous to both in the national convention, eclipse this state, and not do the party any good.

Cermak's statement is the first direct testimonial bearing on that situation and is cheerful news to the wise politicians here.

Invites World to Fair.

Supplementing his declarations the previous day that Chicago would make a bid for the 1932 national conventions of both parties, Mayor Cermak tonight invited the "whole world" to Chicago in 1933 to visit the International exposition.

"Confident of the safety and security of our city and streets and the control and suppression of crime," Mayor Cermak said, "we are inviting the whole world to join with us in the celebration of our century of progress.

"I realize," he continued, "that Chicago in the past has received some unhappy publicity. But I will tell you now that even if Chicago deserved any such criticism in the past, it does not today. The citizens of Chicago have again taken control of the city government. We are correcting the mistakes of the past."

ONLY 21 PER CENT OF NEW YORK POPULATION NATIVE BORN WHITES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 23.—[Special.]—Almost every one has heard the assertion that "New York is not an American but a foreign city." There have been arguments along that line in the past. Well, all bets can be settled, for an anlysis of the 1930 census made public today by Dr. Walter Laidlaw of the cities census committee discloses that the city's population is only 21.72 per cent native white of native white parentage.

The foreign born white population of the city apparently has increased by more than 300,000 during the decade of 1920-'30 despite the restriction of immigration. Meanwhile the number of native whites of both native born and naturalized parentage in all boroughs has dwindled 340,366 from the peak of 4,634,191 reached in 1920. There were 6,981,927 noses counted in the 1930 census—black, white, brown and yellow.

The increase in Negro population was twice that of 1910-'20, or 114.9 per cent. There now are 327,706 Negroes in the city, most of them in Manhattan—224,670 to be exact.

A summation of the population by color shows, 6,587,225 whites of all nationalities, 327,706 Negroes and 15,515 yellow or brown persons. The white population includes 4,293,825 persons of native birth and 2,293,000 persons of foreign birth.

Body of Federal Employe Is Recovered from Lake

The body of Wilson C. Burns, 49 years old, of 726 Roscoe street, assistant cashier of customs, was recovered from the lake yesterday at the foot of Montrose avenue. The body was identified by fellow workers in the federal building. Burns had been missing since Sunday, when he left his home clad only in a bathing suit. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidental death.

POPE SEEKS AID OF CARDINALS IN CHURCH TROUBLE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, July 23.—Pope Pius XI. today summoned in plenary session all the cardinals resident in Rome to consult with him about the general situation of the Catholic church in several countries where the church's relations with the governments have been involved in difficulties.

Two of the main storm centers for the Vatican have been in Italy and Spain. From Spain a cardinal has been expelled and several church buildings have been burned, while in Italy, prolonged struggles have been waged between Premier Mussolini's government and the pope over the Catholic Action society.

Further, there have been difficulties in Mexico, where one province has passed legislation limiting the number of priests; Czecho-Slovakia, where Archbishop Kordac's resignation followed divergences between him and the Vatican over appeals for subscriptions in Czecho-Slovakia to build a new villa in Karlsbad for the papal nuncio and cardinals visiting there; and in Lithuania, where the papal nuncio has been expelled.

It is the first time the cardinals, who form a sort of senate of the church, have been called together in more than a year. From these deliberations, according to Vatican circles, important decisions affecting the future policy of the church were taken, but no statement was made public.

Actress Granted Divorce; Accuses Trapeze Artist

Mrs. Lina Blumenfeld, 1226 Lafayette avenue, an actress, was awarded a divorce and alimony of $20 a week from her husband, Herman Blumenfeld, an employe of the Barnes Carruthers Fair Booking company, at 121 North Clark street. Mrs. Blumenfeld complained that her husband was guilty of misconduct with a trapeze performer. She added that she had once bought him a merry go round in an amusement park, and that he made her sell tickets for it while he employed his leisure in visiting the corespondent.

UNION EMPLOYES IN SCHOOLS FIGHT ECONOMY PLAN

Teachers to Tell Woes to Governor's Committee.

The executive board of the five teachers' unions and the heads of the school janitors and engineers' unions will appear before the governor's revenue committee to testify as to the economy program now being considered by the board of education. They are taking the position that any salary cuts for school employés would be unwise and destructive of the morale of the school organization.

Announcement of their appearance before the committee was made yesterday following a five hour session between the school unions' officials and Victor A. Olander, secretary of the Illinois state federation of labor and member of the governor's committee. Mr. Olander voiced the objections of the teachers' unions.

Opposed to Suggestions.

"I called the heads of the school unions to obtain an explanation of the items considered in the so-called economy program," Mr. Olander said. "The whole program seems to favor poor schools and a cheaper education. Speaking for myself and not for the committee, I wish to say that I am opposed to all but a very few of the suggestions. The remedy lays not with a cutting of expenditures for essential public services but in the raising of more revenues. The entire trouble goes back to the reassessment."

Mr. Olander went through the proposed program item by item and expressed opposition to all suggestions which would involve dismissal of employés, a cut in educational expenditures or an added teacher load. One of the few items he approved was the use of the Garfield school as a police drill school. This program would have been followed whether the economy wave had been inaugurated or not, he said.

LIST UNUSED EQUIPMENT

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Following the charge of School Trustee William D. McJunkin that "there is absolutely no record made or kept of the physical property of the board," an inventory of the unused property of the board in the public schools was completed yesterday by Business Manager Ernest Withall, and presented to the trustees.

Among other items the inventory shows "one barrel of Indian clubs at the Alcott school," "a wooden box of dumbells" at the Armour school, 112 dumbells, 100 Indian clubs and 35 wands "at the Bancroft school," "40 pairs of dumbells and 60 pairs of Indian clubs" at the Gowdy school, "120 exercise wands" at the Felsenthal school, and so on for other schools.

Thousands Spent for Balls.

"All we know," asserts Trustee McJunkin in his formal statement, "is that we buy, buy, buy every year. But in many instances no one knows whether the items are actually used or what becomes of them.

"In the last year we have bought 4,350 baseballs, 2,510 basketballs, 6,300 baseball bats, 780 soccer balls, 2,000 volley balls and 1,850 rugby balls at a total cost of $58,863.25. I feel a considerable saving could be effected here. Children could be asked to use their own baseballs and bats, where they have them."

The inventory shows two clocks unused at the Brentano school, four clocks at the Cook school, another clock at the Dixon school, and more clocks at other schools. Also there appears from the inventory to be an oversupply of phonographs. There are two at the Field school, two at the Cook school, one at the Crerar school, one at the Belding school, and another at the Burley school, and not more than one-eighth of the schools were canvassed for talking machines.

At the Alcott school were reported four unused jumping standards, at the Barry school 25 gym lockers, at the Bass a printing press, and at the Calumet High school another printing press. The board at the last meeting was asked to add a new press to its printing plant at a cost of $2,834.

The Budlong school has an unused sewing machine, the Burley a snare drum, the Burns a coal wagon, the Byford an electric vacuum cleaner, the Calumet High a water still, the Cornell an organ, the Crane High 20 bookkeeping desks, the Darwin a wheelbarrow, the Corkery four jumping bases, and the Belding the fittings of six shower baths.

Many Desks Unoccupied.

A large part of the schools canvassed show 43 desks or 96 desks unused. The business manager explained that these desks were fixed in vacant rooms, and predicted that some of these rooms would be filled with pupils next September. One new school reported enough unused desks to fit up fourteen rooms. Another large item is chairs, which also the business manager said would be used in the fall or moved to schools where they could be used.

Trustee McJunkin complained about buying two ladders each year for every school—852 ladders last year at the cost of $3,874.81. The inventory shows a number of gym and swimming ladders at present unused.

Mr. McJunkin also asked what became of all of the typewriters the board bought—the number last year was 946 and the cost $58,500.

School Properties Looted.

Another report of the business manager on burglaries showed that in the first six months of this year there were 531 burglaries with property stolen valued at $13,428. This half year shows larger loss than either of the two preceding twelve months. In 1930 765 burglaries were reported for $13,928 worth of property, and in 1929 the number was 759 for $13,422 worth of property.

Gov. Emmerson's revenue commission has made some comments recently on carelessness shown in looking after the property of the schools. That apparently stung so much that the board has decided to reëstablish its old property control bureau.

The Cleveland Audit company's bill for the survey it made recently of the board of education's business has been received by President Myers of the board. It amounts to $7,627.66. The board has no money with which to pay the company. Consequently, payment of the bill will be held up until sufficient money is found, school officials stated yesterday.

Issue Scrip to Thousands.

The scrip plan of the school board for paying employés whose salaries are overdue has resulted in the issuance of 20,952 participation certificates in a trust composed of $5,25[illegible],000 of tax anticipation warrants. The janitors, engineers and civil service employés have taken 14,325 of these certificates, the teachers 2,240, the playground employés 401 and the contractors and employés paid out of the building fund 3,986.

To Test Radio

New York, July 23.—[Special.]—Before Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh take off for Japan they expect to make one long distance radio test. This will be an attempt to get connection with the Pan-American Airways station at San Juan, Porto Rico, a distance of about 2,000 miles.

Mrs. Lindbergh is likely to be the operator when the test is made. Both she and the colonel have passed their examinations and are licensed radio operators.

It is possible that this test will be made during the flying of the first leg between Washington and Ottawa. Throughout the trip, except when on the ground, they expect to be in communication with stations, giving their position and obtaining weather reports. The set has a theoretical range of well over 2,000 miles.

Cicero Will Vote Tuesday on Park District Merger

Cicero citizens will go to the polls Tuesday, to vote on the consolidation of the three park districts in that town into one organization. It is one of the first attempts at unification of the multiple taxing bodies of Cook county as a means of reducing governmental expense and taxation. The petitions for the election were circulated by the Cicero taxpayers' council, an organization of fifteen taxpayers' associations in the suburb. Joseph Muir is president of the council.

POLICE REMOVE TWO WHISTLERS FROM A FENCE

The souls of Louis Tufano, 33 years old, of 2015 Narragansett avenue, and Giacamo Tardo, 48, of 1309 Ogden avenue, seemed filled with music last evening as they perched themselves on a back yard fence and whistled. They whistled arias from grand opera and bits from popular hits. They whistled solos and duets.

The back yard fence is the property of Joseph De Vito of 3103 West Polk street, a plumbing contractor. Mr. De Vito disliked the music—disliked it so much that he called the police.

Tardo and Tufano were still whistling when Sergts. Michael Ahern, John Scherping, and J. Zegar of the racket bureau of the state's attorney's office approached. The policemen forthwith took the whistlers to the detective bureau to explain.

"A woman friend of ours got a judgment against De Vito, and he won't pay," the pair asserted. "We are her representatives. Call us bill collectors. We were just waiting for him."

But De Vito charged that Tufano and Tardo tried to blackmail him for $2,000 and threatened to take him for a ride unless he paid. The police decided to make a further investigation of both stories.

STATE WINS 80% OF CASES IN ITS WAR ON QUACKS

The state department of education and registration during the last nine months has obtained convictions in 80 per cent of the cases of quack doctors and medical malpractice it has investigated, figures presented yesterday by department heads show.

At present 12 doctors are being investigated with a view to revocation proceedings as a result of associating with nonlicensed practitioners and permitting their names to be used by quacks. The majority of these physicians will appear before the state medical committee tomorrow at Springfield.

Investigators for the department yesterday seized the license of Dr. Thomas J. Ney, who on Wednesday was convicted of performing an illegal operation which resulted in a girl's death. His sentence was fixed at fifteen years in the penitentiary. His license will be held by the department until revocation proceedings are instituted.

Two of the doctors to appear before the committee tomorrow are Charles Jacobs of Ottawa and E. E. Haley of Peoria, who, the state charges, permitted quacks to travel through the rural districts under their credentials.

CHICAGO'S AUTO THEFT RATE 64TH AMONG 83 CITIES

Among 83 cities with a population of more than 100,000 Chicago ranked sixty-fourth for the number of automobile thefts per each 10,000 population during 1930, according to figures compiled yesterday by Frederick Rex, municipal reference librarian. The figures are based upon monthly reports made to the United States department of justice.

Toledo, O., ranked first with 2,923 thefts for 290,718 population, or a ratio of 100.96 thefts for each 10,000 population. Chicago had 11,279 thefts for its population of 3,376,438, or a ratio of 33.40 for 10,000 population. Ranking above Chicago were Detroit, Cleveland, Boston, Los Angeles, Kansas City, Washington, D. C., and even Gary, Ind. New York City and Pittsburgh were not included in the report.

"I predict that within ninety days Chicago will be much nearer the bottom," commented Acting Police Commissioner Alcock. "The new automobile theft unit, which I created, is specializing on arresting auto thieves and prosecuting them, and with the campaign for automobile owners to lock their cars the number of thefts will be greatly reduced in a short time."

SPANISH TROOPS SHELL TAVERN IN ATTACK ON REDS

Five Rioters Killed When Police Use Guns.

SEVILLE, Spain, July 23.—(AP)—Artillery surrounding a tavern frequented by communists in the suburb of Macarena reduced it to wreckage with 22 rounds of rapid fire today in the government's effort to put down syndicalists disorders.

Soldiers tonight manned machine gun and artillery units, ready for instant use should the disorders which today cost seven lives be repeated.

Dwellers in the tavern's neighborhood, all outside the danger zone during the bombardment, were registered and searched for arms. The inmates of the tarvern had vacated the building prior to the attack.

Destroy Arms of Reds.

The authorities said the tavern, a mecca for communists, contained a store of arms which was destroyed. The ruins were guarded by troops, while residents collected to view the wreckage.

Authorities believed the use of artillery probably would pacify the extremists' spirits. Seville tonight was quiet. Cigaret girls and stenographers had resumed work, and street cars and taxicabs were in operation again, under the protection of soldiers.

Troops Kill Five.

The fatalities today occurred at Alcala de Guadaira, and in Seville. Here civil guards and troops killed four members of a mob who attempted to rescue three truckloads of prisoners. One person was killed at Alcala de Guadaira when civil guards fired on assailants of a guardsman, who had been thrown from his horse.

The total death roll reached twenty-four tonight when snipers killed a civil guard captain of infantry and a night watchman was shot down by a stray bullet from a battle between a guard and a sniper.

Slaps Wife for Kissing; "Barbarous," He Says

On Feb. 10, Mrs. Grace Lackey charges, she embraced her husband, Lawrence, as he was leaving their home and kissed him. He drew back, she charges, told her that kissing was "a barbarous, ancient and atavistic practice," and slapped her. She filed suit for separate maintenance. Yesterday Circuit Judge William V. Brothers granted her $15 a week for the support of herself and her daughter, June, 6 years old, pending hearing of the case.

Winnetka Girl Is Injured in Fall from Window

Miss Mary Louise Palmer, 21 years old, was seriously injured last night when she fell through the bedroom window of her home at 72 Abbottsford road, Winnetka, to the lawn two stories below. She was taken to the Evanston hospital suffering from a possible skull fracture and internal injuries. Miss Palmer's window was closed at the time of the accident, and she crashed through the pane. The family said she probably was taken violently ill just before she fell. Her father is George B. Palmer of the real estate department of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Will Decrees That Dog Be Buried Beside Its Master

Des Moines, Ia., July 23.—(AP)—When J. P. Arnold's dog Bob dies he will be buried on the same plot of ground as his master under the provisions of Arnold's will. Arnold, who died recently at his home at Manson, Ia., also specified that $50 should be set aside for a headstone for the dog's grave. It was also provided that $50 be held in trust for the dog's care during the remainder of its life by Arnold's son, Lawrence.

YOUTH KINKS HIS JOINTS AND PLAYS CRIPPLED BEGGAR

Placed on Probation for His Faking.

Among the boys and girls in the 6700 block of Evans avenue, James Reynolds, 18 years old, who lived with his father and brother at No. 6707, was a popular figure. James always had plenty of money for sodas and movies and he was the best dressed youth in the neighborhood. His companions told each other, with respect in their tones, that James had a fine job as a "commercial artist."

Moreover, when urged, James had a pretty assortment of parlor tricks to amuse the boys and make the girls shriek. He could snap his elbow joints and twist his feet into distorted positions. He could summon up horrible grimaces and crook his neck at an amazing angle.

Turns Talents to Begging.

Yesterday, however, James was in disgrace. He was under a probation order entered by Municipal Judge Francis Allegretti after an investigation revealed that the youth had been exercising his talents to his financial advantage by posing as a crippled beggar at the Illinois Central station at Roosevelt road.

The youth was first arrested last Monday. He had been receiving many donations at the station from warm-hearted passersby who had opened their purses because of his youth and apparent physical deformities.

Upon his first arraignment, James' plight had aroused sympathy in Judge Allegretti. He offered to send the youth to the Oak Forest infirmary. But James protested that he had a home and didn't want to go to the infirmary. The judge ordered social workers to investigate.

Revealed as Impostor.

When they discovered that James was an impostor, they so reported to the court. The youth, unaware of his exposure, again hobbled into court yesterday.

Frightened, James unkinked his joints and in a few seconds was his normal physical self.

Judge Allegretti fined the youth $100, then reconsidered and placed him under probation for one year with the provision that the fine would be imposed if James was caught practicing his parlor tricks in public again.

Ganna Walska Decorated by Poland for Her Art

New York, July 23.—(AP)—Announcement was made here tonight that Ganna Walska, opera star, was decorated in Paris July 17 by the Polish minister to France with the gold cross of merit. Attorneys for the singer, a native of Poland and wife of Harold F. McCormick, official of the International Harvester corporation of Chicago, said the decoration was made at the direction of the Polish government for "services rendered in the cause of art in general and music in particular."

TILTON, ACCUSED IN CANCER QUIZ, SUED FOR $50,000

Lester Tilton, alleged cancer quack of Clinton, Ia., was brought into another court yesterday when attorneys for Mrs. Hilda Bittner, 2842 Manitou place, filed the praecipe of a $50,000 suit against him in the Superior court. Tilton is under investigation by federal authorities and is awaiting trial on state charges of practicing medicine without a license.

Dr. Otto Hilinger, 4632 Rockwell street, is also named in the praecipe. Dr. Hollinger, according to the state department of education and registration, was associated with Tilton in a so-called cancer clinic.

Attorney Charles McDonnell, who represented Mrs. Bittner, said she was given a salve as treatment for cancer.

Tilton is alleged to have had an income of $50,000 a year from a "clinic" here. The American Medical association branded his cure as quackery.

FROZEN DEPOSITS OF $100,000,000 IN CLOSED BANKS

Nelson Makes Report on 37 More Institutions.

Depositors in Chicago and Cook county have nearly $58,500,000 tied up in 37 state banks that were closed in June and July. This was revealed yesterday when State Auditor Oscar Nelson made public a report on the financial condition of the individual banks as of the date of their suspensions.

Still another $25,000,000 is tied up in state banks that were closed previous to June and since November, 1929. Furthermore, quite a few additional millions are tied up in national banks that have been closed in the last few months by the national bank examiner. All told, Chicago bankers estimate nearly $100,000,000 of depositors' money is "frozen" pending liquidation of the 70-odd banks that have failed in approximately 19 months.

All Assets Not Appraised.

Mr. Nelson's report consisted of individual balance sheets drawn from the books of the various banks on the dates of closing. The amounts of real estate loans and other loans are segregated and the various other assets are listed. But no appraisal of the present value of these assets, except cash, is made and therefore no indication is given as to what percentage of depositors' money will be returned to them.

The names of assistant liquidators for ten banks in the Bain chain of twelve, which closed on June 9, were named yesterday by Irwin T. Gilruth, general receiver for the banks. An assistant liquidator for the eleventh institution in the Bain chain, the West Lawn Trust & Savings bank, is yet to be definitely selected, while H. S. Ivis was appointed last week to act for the Stony Island State bank.

Liquidation Aids Are Listed.

Armitage State bank, Joseph Doran, formerly with the state auditor's office.

Auburn Park Trust and Savings bank, R. E. Voss, formerly vice president of the Old Dearborn State bank.

Brainerd State bank, Robert C. Tharp, formerly with the Illinois Merchants and later with the Continental banks.

Bum Kawr State bank, W. A. Rechrohr, certified public accountant with banking experience; medal man when admitted to accountant practice.

Gotham State bank, Chester S. Bell, formerly an attorney and later of A. G. Baker & Co. for a number of years.

Grange Lawn State bank, Frank P. Burke, who served in the receivership department of the Chicago Trust company and has had banking and mortgage bank; ng experience.

Home State bank, A. L. Rogers, cashier of a national bank in North Dakota and later cashier of the Guardian National bank of Chicago.

Ridge State bank, Robert O. Young, formerly with the Harris Trust and Savings bank and later with the First National bank.

West Englewood Trust and Savings bank, H. A. Potwind, formerly with the Chicago Title and Trust company, has had bank receivership experience.

General Auditor Named.

F. B. Andrews has been named as general auditor for all the Bain banks. Mr. Andrews is past president of the Illinois Society of Public Accountants and is a member of the governing council of the American Institute of Public Accountants.

"It is of course much too early for us to give the depositors any idea of what they may expect," Mr. Gilruth said. "The state law provides that notice for the filing of claims shall be published once each week for twelve successive weeks.

"No distribution would be possible before the expiration of this three months' period even if liquidation had proceeded far enough to make payments otherwise possible."

State Auditor Nelson yesterday appointed receivers for the Second Northwestern State bank, 1956 Milwaukee avenue, and the Glencoe State bank, 331 Park avenue, Glencoe.

Norman C. Geyer, a banker, is receiver for the Second Northwestern which closed June 10 with resources of $3,329,310 and deposits of $2,626,666. The Chicago Title & Trust company is receiver for the Glencoe bank which closed June 23 with resources of $937,986 and deposits of $686,391.

James C. White, receiver for the Lawrence Avenue National bank, 3222 Lawrence avenue, which went into receivership last January with deposit liabilities of $625,000, said yesterday that checks are now being written out for a ten per cent dividend.

AIRPLANE REVEALED AS NEWEST CARRIER OF DEADLIEST PLAGUES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 23.—Science, which has sought to safeguard and expand the world for mankind by accelerating the means of travel, has laid the world open to the ravages of the worst plagues ever known "through the newest and most dangerous form of disease carriers—the airplane."

This startling statement was made before the British Medical association meeting at Eastbourne today. Three of the physicians added, however, that the dangers were receiving the earnest attention of the governments of the world.

FOREMAN BANK STOCKHOLDERS TO MEET AUG. 25

Stockholders of the Foreman-State National bank, which was taken over by the First National bank of Chicago, on June 8, will hold a special meeting on Aug. 25 to go over the bank's affairs. Walter W. Head, president of the Foreman bank, said yesterday that only shareholders of record as of the close of business July 21 will be entitled to vote at the meeting. Transfer books were closed on July 21 and no stock will be transferred until after the meeting.

Harold E. Foreman, chairman of the board, in a letter to the stockholders, said full opportunity will be given for consideration of the action of the directors in transferring the assets of the Foreman banks to the First National. Mr. Foreman said:

"While it is too early to form any estimate of the result of such liquidation, there is reason to believe that ultimately there will be a balance remaining for distribution to the stockholders.

Deflation of Values Cited.

"The extreme deflation of security values and particularly the destruction of local real estate values, coupled with the prolonged economic depression, combined to give the Foreman-State banks a large volume of slow resources, and this in spite of the large percentage of liquidity which the directors maintained. The withdrawals in the outlying banks identified with the Foreman-State banks added to the difficulty experienced by your directors in keeping the entire structure sufficiently liquid to meet the demands of the depositors.

"Your directors made strenuous efforts to bring about reorganization of the Foreman-State banks which would provide enough new capital to enable the elimination of certain nonliquid resources and to safeguard the interests of the depositors.

"The amount of new capital which would have insured this result could not, however, be obtained. After days of negotiation your directors in the emergency took the only course left which would insure the safety of the depositors and preserve the best interests of the stockholders."

Agreement Up for Approval.

Stockholders at the meeting in August will consider ratification and approval of the execution and delivery of the agreement reached by the Foreman-State banks and the First National bank transferring the assets of the former to the latter.

The stockholders also are to authorize the liquidation of the Foreman-State National bank and appoint a liquidating agent or committee to conduct the necessary liquidating proceeding, including surrender of the bank's holdings of stocks of the Fourth Federal Reserve bank of Chicago.

In addition, the stockholders are to empower the trustees of stock of the Foreman-State Trust and Savings bank to approve changes in the plan of business; changes in its charter, by laws, capital structure; to appoint a liquidating agent or committee, and do any or all things reasonably calculated to promote their interests.

REMAPPING PUTS DRY CHINDBLOM IN WET DISTRICT

Congressman Urged by His Advisers to Move.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

The recarving of the congressional districts by the recent legislature has stirred some complications as between wets and drys in the old 10th district, which includes Lake county. The remapping leaves Congressman Carl R. Chindblom, a dry of drys, in the new 10th, which is rated as liberal territory. Roughly, the district stretches from Diversey boulevard to the north city limits between the lake and the river.

CARL R. CHINDBLOM. [Keehn Photo.]

Some of Mr. Chindblom's advisers are urging him to move into Lake county and run in the new 13th district, the Evanston-Waukegan district. Their argument is that the remappers chopped off too much dry territory and left in too many wet votes in the new 10th, in which Mr. Chindblom lives, to make it comfortable going for a dry.

Postmasters Seen Factors.

Besides the postmasters are mentioned as a possible political factor. Quite a number of them are in Lake county and in the thirteen Cook county towns in the district. There were 11 postmasters alone in the old part of the 7th district not in the 13th. They are not supposed to take a hand in politics, but they're handy friends to have, anyhow.

If Mr. Chindblom hops into Lake county—the lost part of his old district—a hot fight will start forthwith in the new 10th district. Among the possibilities mentioned yesterday is Louis Nettelhorst, superintendent of Lincoln park. He is a Brundage man, a former county commissioner, who was Republican nominee last year for clerk of the Probate court. Charles West already has announced himself as a candidate for the Republican nomination.

Up in the new 13th, if Mr. Chindblom moves his residence, a hot struggle already is in the making. Ralph Church of Evanston, a state representative, is supported by the W. C. T. U. and the Anti-Saloon league. If Chindblom moved into the Evanston area it might disturb Church's pitch with the drys, as Chindblom is highly regarded by the dry organizations. Stephen A. Day of Evanston, an ardent anti-prohibitionist, already is campaigning against Mr. Church.

Smith Listed as Contender.

Col. Ashbel V. Smith of Waukegan, three times state's attorney of Lake county, has been listed for months as a possible contender unless he runs for attorney general. State Representative Richard J. Lyons of Mundelein is expected to enter for congress if Col. Smith fails to go. Mr. Lyons was chairman of the house committee on reapportionment, and with Sol. P. Roderick he was a leading spirit in the remap.

Ald. James C. Moreland, liberal, who defeated Congressman M. A. Michaelson of "leaky trunk" fame in the Republican primaries last year in the old 7th, is likely to be a candidate this time in the new 11th district. Michaelson may also run in the adjoining district.

IN "LIFE BELT"

Jimmie Glennon, watchman at the Elm street, Winnetka, crossing of the Chicago and North Western railroad, equipped with the new red and white cross belt, which attracts the attention of motorists and gives them warning. The belts will be worn by watchmen at all crossings where there is heavy traffic.

POLICE OFFICIAL IS ACCUSED IN SPEED TRAP QUIZ

The grand jury which is investigating speed traps yesterday questioned four witnesses. One of these gave testimony regarding alleged police brutality. The jurors refused to divulge the names of the witnesses for fear that efforts might be made to intimidate them.

The charges involving police conduct, according to Attorney Joseph H. Braun, general counsel for the Chicago Motor club which is coöperating with the grand jury, are similar to those which caused "Indian Joe" Huzar, former chief of police of Broadview, to be sent to the penitentiary. The police official in the case now under investigation is employed, it is said, by one of the villages south of Chicago.

It was announced that the jury would devote next Monday to hearing the remainder of the testimony in the cases now under investigation. The jurors invited testimony by any motorist who feels that he has been mistreated either in the city or county.

BEAT MAN AND WOMAN, STEAL 2 TRUCKS OF GOODS

Seven bandits yesterday beat a man and a woman employé of the Northwestern Candy company, 4847 Milwaukee avenue, terrorized three other employés, and carried away two truckloads of merchandise and $900 in cash.

With two of the bandits standing guard over the employés in a rear stockroom, their confederates went methodically about plundering the store. Miss Rose Freimen, 1006 North Harding avenue, a bookkeeper, was struck by one of the gunmen when she moved slowly in complying with his command to lie on the floor. James Landen, 3138 North Springfield avenue, was struck on the head when he failed to raise his hands. Two thousand dollars' worth of the stolen merchandise was recovered within a few hours when police found one of the bandits' trucks in an alley behind 1259 North Oakley boulevard.

Astonishing announcement in tomorrow's Tribune

I. C. C. ADVANCES RATE HEARINGS AT URGE OF LINES

May Be Concluded Early in September.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 23.—[Special.]—Spurred by "hurry up" appeals of railroads and their security owners for a decision on the application of the railroads for a 15 per cent increase in freight rates, the interstate commerce commission today revised its plan for further proceedings to the end that the hearings may be concluded early in September.

Protest was made by the rail interests against resuming hearings in Washington Aug. 31, though shippers opposed a change. The revised program calls for the beginning of hearings again in Washington Aug. 10; in San Francisco, Aug. 17, and in Chicago, at the Hotel Sherman, Aug. 31.

Hearings between Aug. 10 and Aug. 31 also will be held at Portland, Ore.; Kansas City, Mo.; Dallas, Tex.; Salt Lake City, Utah; Atlanta, Ga., and a New England city not yet selected. The dates at these cities are to be announced.

Evidence Speeded Up.

"The applicants and those supporting the applications concluded the submission of their evidence in chief much sooner than had been anticipated," said the commission, referring to the close of the initial hearings in the case last Tuesday. "This makes it possible to begin the further hearings which are considered necessary at correspondingly earlier dates."

Shippers were informed by the commission that "requests for time which have already been received exceed practicable limits" and directed attention to earlier admonition that evidence should be "presented as concisely as possible, using exhibits to curtail oral testimony." The commission's staff is canvassing the requests for time "and will endeavor to aid in arranging for the orderly presentation of testimony and the avoidance of cumulative evidence."

Evidence regarding the level of railroad wages will not be received by the commission nor will it listen to testimony about individual railroads or minor groups of railroads, it announced.

"Evidence relating to the method or methods of increasing rates, if an increase should be granted, should be confined as far as possible to typical illustrations," said the commission. "The same applies to evidence tending to show the effect of higher rates upon shipper and carrier."

Oral Argument in Washington.

Oral argument will be heard by the commission at Washington about ten days after the close of the hearings, some of which will be held at the different cities concurrently.

Rail security owners urged the commission to proceed with the hearings continuously until they were concluded because of the emergency they said the investors in rail securities faced on account of declining rail earnings. The railroads suggested that the hearings be resumed Aug. 3. Shippers pleaded for time until Aug. 31 to prepare their testimony.

TWO URBANA GIRLS DISAPPEAR; START STATEWIDE SEARCH

Urbana, Ill., July 23. — Local authorities have started a statewide search for Delores Smith and Clara Turner, both 17, of Urbana, who have not been heard from since Tuesday. The two girls left home Tuesday noon presumably to visit Decatur library and were expected to return that evening, but nothing has been heard from them since then. Miss Turner enrolled in the summer session at the University of Illinois a month ago and was excused from a swimming class Tuesday afternoon to make the trip. Parents of the two girls are unable to assign any cause as to their absence.

TROOPS CALLED AS MISSISSIPPI ELECTION NEARS

Voters, However, Seem Uninterested.

Jackson, Miss., July 23.—(AP)—The calling out of the militia today to keep order at the checking of voters' rolls in Issaquena county added spice to Mississippi's political campaign that has lumbered along for weeks in listless fashion.

GOV. BILBO. [A. P. Photo.]

With only a scant dozen days remaining before the ballots will be cast in the Democratic primary, the political fervor has been confined mainly to he 7,000 candidates who have stepped on each other's heels in their race to get their voices heard above the din.

But the approximately 250,000 qualified voters refuse to be blasted out of their lethargy by stump oratory. They feel that one candidate per thirty-five qualified voters is spreading it on a little thick.

Troops May Arouse Interest.

Now that bayonets have been mixed with the issues, some of the candidates' managers believe public interest will be aroused to the delight of the old timers at the cross roads.

State militiamen were sent to Issaquena today by Gov. Theodore G. Bilbo after a delegation of women had told him there was danger of bloodshed when the election commission began checking the rolls of voters and pointed out that at the last meeting a gun was drawn when the commission could not agree on striking off some names.

The governor sent thirty soldiers to guard the county's 276 ballots, making one soldiers for less than ten votes. Some citizens of the county objected vigorously against bringing in the troops, saying the situation had not produced any smoke, let alone fire.

The troop move came quickly behind the sudden active participation of Gov. Bilbo in the campaign. Until yesterday the governor had been on the side lines, chafing at the bit, estopped by two of his friends being in the lists of governor's candidates and each demanding his support.

Dilemma Is Removed.

His rein was released yesterday when he mounted the platform of the patron's union and announced that his friend, Lester Franklin, had withdrawn from the race and called on the populace to vote for George T. Mitchell. The governor plans to spend the remainder of the campaign pushing behind Mitchell, while the other gubernatorial candidates, Mike Sennett Conner, Paul B. Johnson, and Hugh L. White, struck out in an effort to garner the votes released by Franklin.

The campaign is being fought on the broad issues of economy and progress.

Hugh L. White, mayor of Columbia and wealthy lumberman, promises a business administration with a constructive and economical program. He is running independently.

Mike S. Conner, lawyer of Seminary, twice speaker of the Mississippi house of representatives and a member of the state building commission, agrees if elected to carry the state forward in improvements with particular attention to schools. He is an independent Democrat and is making his third race for governor.

Paul B. Johnson, Hattiesburg, lawyer and former member of congress, runs on an anti-Bilbo ticket.

George T. Mitchell of Tupelo, attorney general of Mississippi by appointment of Gov. Bilbo, has the full support of the governor and has adopted a platform of harmony, economy and progress.

FOUND DEAD IN GARAGE.

Harry Democh, 43 years old, was found dead yesterday in a garage in the rear of his home at 7316 Vernon avenue. The motor of his car was running and his death was attributed to poisoning by exhaust gas.

SLAYER OF DRYS SHOWS HOW HE SHOT DOWN TWO

Sorry Bullet Didn't End His Own Life.

BY PERCY WOOD.

Adams was the first man sent to Leavenworth penitentiary from northern Indiana under the Jones law. Last night he routed four agents who tried to entrap him on the lower Huntington road, two and one-half miles south of Fort Wayne. He fatally wounded two and scattered the others into the tall brush bordering the highway. One who fled, Oliver J. Gettle of Indianapolis, helped convict Adams of bootlegging in October, 1929.

Pair Die of Wounds.

John L. Wilson, head of the special agent forces at Indianapolis, and Walter M. Gilbert of the Cincinnati dry unit died of their wounds at the roadside. Gettle and C. E. Green of Portland, Ind., a paid informer who served a sentence himself in Michigan City for possessing a still, had left their firearms in their automobiles and could do nothing to stop the slayer as he wheeled his car and sped from the scene. He was captured later in the evening by police at the home of a friend.

Adams is 32 years old. He was paroled from Leavenworth in January and since, say the agents, has built up a profitably liquor trade in this, a tolerant city. He is Slavic, although the name Adams has been legalized as his own.

Mute When Questioned.

This morning an Allen county coroner's jury held him on first degree murder charges without bond. Repeatedly at the hearing Dr. E. A. King, deputy, asked him questions, but Adams would not answer. He has made only three remarks since the shooting—the most revelatory at the Lutheran hospital last night when physicians were removing a leaden slug which Agent Gilbert had fired through the windshield of Adams' small coupe. Adams had turned in his seat and the bullet pierced the flesh at the base of his brain, but did not injure him seriously, its force checked by the glass.

"I wish it had gone two inches farther," he muttered as the pellet was gouged out.

Prosecuting Attorney Walter E. Helmke may call a special grand jury to indict him, but this will not be decided for a few days, he said.

This afternoon Helmke, United States Attorney Oliver M. Loomis of South Bend and Col. J. L. Reese, acting special prohibition agent in charge of the Detroit office, took the slayer back to the locale of his crime. Gettle and Green were there and the three automobiles which figured in the incident were placed in the same places they occupied last night.

Adams still wore his blood stained clothing and the back of his neck was covered with a thick bandage. He was placed in his car, handcuffs being removed temporarily, and Gettle and Green took the seats they had had in the two other cars. Col. Reese acted as Wilson and another agent as Gilbert.

For three-quarters of an hour, while police pictures were taken, Adams postured for the reenactment, pointing his empty hand, which last night held an automatic pistol, at his coactors in the drama, and obeying all commands with precision and promptness.

Shooting Is Reenacted.

Not once did he drop his utter composure, not even when Mr. Helme called:

Adams' thick, stubby forefinger closed obediently into his empty palm and Reese dropped to the grass at the edge of the concrete slab, almost on top of the brown stain that marked where Wilson fell. When it was over Adams went back to the city jail, there to await trial. It is reported that his bootlegger friends are gathering a defense fund.

Adams will be prosecuted in the state courts. "We could only send him to prison under the federal statutes," Mr. Loomis explained this afternoon. "He shot these agents in cold blood and he knew them to be agents when they came to his home to make a 'buy.' He told them he would bring five gallons of cheap whisky (called red likker here) to the spot near Stell Horn bridge at 8:30 p. m. Gilbert and Green made the arrangements, but when Adams drove here he had no liquor in his car. Rather, he had the pistol and forty rounds of ammunition. There is the intent. Mr. Helmke can be assured of the government's utmost cooperation, for I believe this man should be sent to the electric chair."

May Plead Self-Defense.

This is the prosecution's case, but Adams, in the minds of many Fort Wayne citizens, can take cover behind a plea of self-defense.

It was pointed out that Agent Gilbert fired the first shot, this while Adams, almost forced off the road by another car and thus seeing four men when he had only expected to meet two, had drawn his pistol and was pointing it at Wilson. Gilbert fired and Adams promptly shot Wilson.

The latter dropped and Gettle, who had stood beside him in the road, his firearm behind him in the car, crouched and rolled beneath Adams' machine. Adams then fired several shots at Gilbert, wounding him, and Green dropped behind a convenient culvert. He, too, was unarmed.

While Adams was emptying his gun in Gilbert's direction, Gettle rolled from beneath Adams' car and into the rank weeds at the roadside. Adams reloaded and walked toward Wilson's prostrate body, firing as he came. He turned, then ran to his car and drove away rapidly. Green and Gettle loaded Wilson and Gilbert into a passing car. Wilson died almost immediately of three wounds, and Gilbert, shot twice, was dead an hour later in the hospital.

Adams went the the farm home of Lloyd Krouse, a friend, where his wound was bandaged. He told Krouse he had been in an accident. Later Krouse took him to the home of Frank V. Kendierski in Fort Wayne, but police and Deputy United States Marshal Herman V. Atkins surrounded the car as it stopped.

Agent Dies of Wounds.

Kansas City, Mo., July 23.—(AP)—Curtis E. Burks, 35, a federal prohibition agent, died in a hospital here last night, the victim of a gangster's bullet fired during a raid on an alleged bootleggers' rendezvous.

Burks, one of 16 men who participated in the raid, was shot as he and two fellow agents attempted to disarm John Calla, a gangster, in a dimly lighted room.

Calla was slain a short time later as he grappled with a city detective for possession of a sawed-off shotgun.

State Trial for Inspectors.

Detroit, Mich., July 23.—[Special.]—Prosecution in state courts of United States customs inspectors who fired 31 shots near the crowded steamer Ste. Claire on Detroit river and wounded an excursionist was ordered today by W. Gomer Kriss, chief assistant prosecutor.

Kriss's announcement followed the finding by police ballistics experts that the bullet found in the forearm of Arthur Gajeski, the wounded picknicker, came from the revolver of Clarence Figh, one of the customs men.

Fish and Walter Weslowski, his partner, will be asked to surrender immediately.

"But," Comb said, "I intend to ask Washington to have the case transferred from the state courts to the federal court because the accused customs inspectors fired while in the line of duty." Kriss indicated he would oppose the transfer.

Congressman Robert H. Clancy is making a private investigation of the shooting, and today announced his intention of demanding of "the highest man in Washington I can reach" that pleasure craft in the Detroit river be protected from indiscriminate shootings.

Agents Charged with Assault.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 23.—[Special.]—Three federal dry agents, working out of Buffalo, were held for the grand jury by Peace Justice E. L. Coon at Silver Creek, N. Y., today, after Alton Baird, 27, son of a Silver Creek hotel man, declared the three had beaten him and knocked him down on July 8 at the hotel.

26 MEN, YOUNGEST 18, AWAIT EXECUTION IN SING SING DEATH CELLS

New York, July 23.—[Special.]—Twenty-six men, the youngest 18 and the oldest 44, sit in condemned cells at Sing Sing prison's death house awaiting, in the formal words of the prison records, "discharged by execution."

The population of this, the most noted death house in America, is at the high mark for all time, save for one period several years ago when delays in executions because of a changing administration resulted in an accumulation of condemned prisoners which taxed the facilities of the isolated stone structure.

Of the twenty-six who sit and wait for death or take their required exercise in a pathetic sullenness, two are 18 years old, four are 19, and three are 20, eight are less than 25.

Of these 26 men, 21 are condemned for crimes growing out of robberies with guns. The older men, like William C. Downey, 44, who killed his wife in a suicide pact, later forgetting to take his own life, and men like Harry Lipschitz, who knifed a prison mate who had doublecrossed him, are practically strangers, "outsiders" in the house of boy desperadoes.

3 NUDE BATHERS GET FINES; POLICE ROUT HOODLUMS

Bathers who persist in drying off in the sun without benefit of their swimming suits, and hoodlums who make a practice of keeping lake shore residents awake all night with their yelling, were dealt with summarily by policemen and judges yesterday.

JOHN J. LUPE.

Three nude bathers were fined a total of $150 by Judge Leon Edelman in Town Hall court when they were arraigned charged with disorderly conduct. The men were arrested while basking in the sun at the foot of North avenue in view of passing women and children.

When the judge fixed a fine of $100 in the case of James Salico, 32 years old, who said that he had neither home nor occupation, Salico shouted that the judge and the policemen who arrested him were crazy. Judge Edelman recalled Salico, who was being led away to the lockup, and ordered him sent to the psychopathic hospital for examination.

Claim Clothing Stolen.

Herman Deneche, 30 years old, 1862 North Clark street, and Albert Reid, 37 years old, 136 East Chestnut street, Salico's companions, were each fined $25. They claimed that their clothing had been stolen while they were in the water.

Quiet reigned during the night along the lake shore between 71st and 74th streets, and for the first time in several weeks nearby residents were allowed to sleep without being awakened by the yelling and other hoodlum antics of all night bathers.

The change was welcomed by the property owners whose complaints to Capt. Patrick McCauley of the Grand Crossing police occasioned the detailing of four policemen to the noisy area. The beaches were cleared promptly at 11 p. m. in accordance with the captain's order issued Tuesday.

Reprimanded by Judge.

One bather, Tony Scarlata, 28 years old, 125 East 29th street, a salesman, was arrested and charged with disorderly conduct when he refused to obey the policemen's commands. Arraigned before Judge John J. Lupe in the Grand Crossing court, he was reprimanded and warned that if he repeated the offense he would be heavily fined by the court.

Sixty-five violators of the city automobile license tag ordinance have been arrested at the Oak street beach during the week, figures released yesterday disclosed. Offenders were taken into Judge John P. O'Connell's traffic court in the city hall and fines ranging from $25 to $100 were imposed by the judge.

WATER IS CLEAN AT CITY BEACHES ANALYSES SHOW

Health Commissioner Bundesen announced yesterday that analyses of samples of water taken from city beaches show that the lake water is in very good condition from a health standpoint and that Chicago beaches are upholding their reputation as places for healthful recreation.

"On some of the sizzling hot days that we have experienced recently it was inevitable," said Dr. Bundesen, "that a certain amount of contamination should enter the beach waters from the bathers themselves, but in general, our citizens are careful to avoid any unnecessary pollution of the lake while in swimming.

DENTIST LOCKS UP DENTIST.

A gunman entered the office of Dr. Jacob Polisky, dentist at 3958 Wentworth avenue, yesterday, and after locking Dr. Polisky in a washroom escaped with $145.

SMOKERS! YOUR TASTE-BUDS TELL YOU

TRY THIS

YOU can see them on your tongue—thousands of tiny clusters of taste-buds;

Papillae, science calls these sensitive organs; You taste with them;

Your smokes, your food, are full of keen zest and flavor when your papillae are in proper working order;

But—when they're tired, jaded, your taste "goes dead." Your cigarette, your food, taste flat.

Care for your taste-buds, your papillae. Care for them by avoiding dry mouth, a condition of recognized prevalence. Keep the tongue moist and well lubricated.

If you enjoy smoking a lot—and who doesn't!—chew Wrigley's frequently. Wrigley's between smokes, by stimulating a free flow of saliva, keeps the taste-buds moist and fresh and definitely relieves dry mouth. Thus, scientists say, the sensation of taste is intensified.

If you'd like more enjoyment of your cigarette and your food, keener appetite and better digestion, chew Wrigley's regularly between smokes and between meals.

At the cigar stand, take your change in Wrigley's.

Ordered to Prevent Toll Bridge Opening.

Durant, Okla., July 23.—(AP)—Thirty National Guardsmen, shock troops of Gov. W. H. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray's war of the bridges," slept under arms here tonight in preparation for a dawn invasion of embattled territory.

Under the personal command of Adj. Gen. Charles F. Barrett of the Oklahoma National Guard, the detachment was scheduled to move into an area of 200 feet wide by slightly more than a mile and a half long, declared under martial law late today by the Oklahoma governor.

Troops Fully Equipped.

Fully equipped to meet all emergencies, the men were instructed to bar all comers except those bearing special permission, from the Oklahoma entrance to a toll bridge over the Red river, which has been the scene of a lively controversy since July 16. Figuring in the battle have been the governors of Oklahoma and Texas, the defiant owners of the toll bridge, Texas rangers guarding the Texas approach to a free bridge Gov. Murray has sought to open, and the federal courts.

It was to forestall possible federal court action by the toll bridge owners, who have threatened federal court action to reopen the toll bridge approach destroyed by orders of Gov. Murray, that martial law was declared today.

Gen. Barrett, Lieut. Col. John A. MacDonald, and Capt. Don Atkison, head of one of the National Guard companies here, went to the martial law zone tonight and directed the highway department guards already on duty there to maintain a strict vigil until relieved by guardsmen tomorrow morning.

Texas Rangers on Guard, Too.

Guardsmen stationed here and directed by Gov. Murray to be used in maintaining martial law total 200 men. The patrol on duty at the approach of the toll bridge will be about a half mile from the Texas rangers stationed at the Texas approach to the free bridge paralleling the toll bridge. Gov. Sterling of Texas ordered rangers stationed there to keep closed the free bridge approach after barriers had been removed by order of Gov. Murray.

Gen. Barrett said tonight Gov. Murray declared martial law in the bridge zone after hearing that Joseph W. Bailey Jr., attorney for the Red River Bridge company, owners of the toll bridge, was preparing to file a suit for injunction to restrain Oklahoma officials from closing the toll bridge approach.

Enough Canada Dry in three months to float a battle cruiser

3,330,835 gallons of ginger ale. Each gallon weighs 8.6 lbs., making a total weight of 32,945,181 pounds of Canada Dry, which reduced to tons equals 16,472 tons. The displacement of the U. S. S. Concord, one of our finest cruisers, is 10,000 tons. The amount of Canada Dry sold would float the U. S. S. Concord with plenty to spare.

EVERYWHERE almost every one is drinking The Champagne of Ginger Ales. In three months enough Canada Dry has been sold to lift the U. S. S. Concord off her keel, and still have some left.

The reasons are simple. First. At its new low price, Canada Dry is the outstanding value in ginger ales today. It didn't take people long to find that out.

Second. Canada Dry is more convenient. Because now there are two sizes—the familiar twelve-ounce size for individual use, and the new large size containing five full glasses for family enjoyment and parties.

And last but not least—because Canada Dry is The Champagne of Ginger Ales . . . as fine a beverage as human skill can make. Its wonderful flavor, its keen delight and lasting carbonation are all extra values.

Remember Canada Dry in hot weather. Order the handy Hostess Packages for your pantry.

NEW LOW PRICE FOR TWELVE-OUNCE SIZE 16¢

Slightly higher in some stores because of icing, delivery, and other special services.

NO BOTTLE DEPOSIT

NEW LARGE SIZE— FIVE FULL GLASSES 25¢

Also slightly higher in some places because of extra service.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE COSTS OF PUBLIC WORKS.

The city council has before it an ordinance requiring all contractors and subcontractors employed on public works to file an accounting of their costs with the city controller. The controller would be required to set up a uniform system of accounting to be followed by all public contractors.

The proposed ordinance owes much to District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson, whose study of the incomes of various contractors dealing with the local governments convinced him that the taxpayers were getting, in the main, only half as much as they were paying for. Mr. Johnson suggested that the accounts of contractors be subjected to public scrutiny. His proposal led to the introduction of a bill in the last legislature for the appointment of a state auditing commission of five members at a salary of $12,000 each to supervise all the contracts of the various governments in the state. The bill was defeated, and rightly so. The objections to it were the cost of maintaining such a commission, doubts as to the greater integrity over a period of years of the state as against the local governments, and a belief that if the citizens could not enforce reasonable standards of honesty in their own municipalities it might be just as well to let them suffer for their incompetence.

The ordinance plainly avoids all these objections. The accounting to the city will add little or nothing to the costs of government; and no attempt is made to impose righteousness from above. The ordinance does offer a means of exposing and checking corruption in the letting of public contracts. High taxes and the financial difficulties of the local governments are to no small degree the result of the excessive cost of public works. The proposed ordinance may serve as a valuable corrective.

HE AIN'T BIN RECONSTRUCTED.

Gov. Sampson of Kentucky invited the United Confederate Veterans to join in the October celebration at the Lincoln memorial at the birthplace of the President near Hodgenville. Adjt. Gen. Harry R. Lee of the organization has replied that the invitation will not be accepted. He gave out a letter from Gen. C. A. Dessaussure, chief of the U. C. V., to make it plain why. Gen. Desaussure wrote that Lincoln was a pattern he would least want any of his descendants to emulate and he would refuse to have anything to do with the exaltation of such a character. A recent copperhead biography of Lincoln has restored the spirits of the professional confederates. They do not propose to be left without their raison d'être and in their declining years why should they be expected to chuck it? They need it now more than ever. In the long shadows it is all they have.

If the professional confederates became reconstructed they would be only garrulous old men tiresome to a generation which had forgotten all about them. Now they are good for a drink of bourbon in any drug store in the south, and lovely girls pin roses on them. And something yet will be heard from the G. A. R. about the placing of a statue of Jefferson Davis in Statuary hall in Washington.

THE GOOD SHIP ROTARIAN.

The chore of getting the good old Rotarian out of the river is a hot weather engagement for some of the best legal, engineering and political minds in the city, and at latest reports the gallant old ship is more than holding its own, another Old Ironsides which never took a licking. The new city administration can't get it out, its owners can't get it out and the courts can't get it out. It is settled down on a bed of privilege and can't be hoisted. Cables and contractors go broke, and it will be just about as easy to pay the school teachers as it will be to get this political debris removed from a spot it never should have been allowed to enter.

Thus the Rotarian acquires symbolic significance. It is the spirit of the political city. It came into the river as the headquarters for the ghost of the Cook County Democracy. Bobby Burke no doubt has been forgotten. He was the mayor of the palace for years, just as Fred Lundin later was, and the County Democracy was his silk hat parade organization. It was ambitious once and thought of outdoing Tammany at national conventions. Its trouble was that it never gained the countenance of Roger Sullivan. Burke weakened under indictment and made the mistake of trying to put $30,000 back into the city treasury. This ruined him and the County Democracy, which years later was reduced to the hulk of the Rotarian.

Nevertheless, the Rotarian could get a berth in the river, where it was always a potential obstruction to navigation. If wheels could have been put under it the mooring might have been to the side of the city hall. Its destiny was to be a privileged public nuisance, and for that purpose it could have the authority of politics for any location. Later it was a dance hall, then a fish and chop restaurant, and then it sank. This undoubtedly was sympathetic. The political structure to which it was attached as a barnacle was going down and the Rotarian went down with it.

Ever since early last fall people have been spending idle half hours watching the despairing efforts to get it up. You cannot see the heaving and tugging at the public schools, the tax system, the public institutions, etc., to pull them out of the hole, but any one may walk over the river and observe the symbolic Rotarian settling deeper into the mud with every attempt to hoist it. If it ever is lifted it might well be preserved as a museum piece, an exhibit of the jovial ways of politics and the débris left for remembrance.

THE FEATHERED NEST.

The chief justice, clerk, and bailiff of the Municipal court lead off in speaking for the wage earners in the court system and saying that the economy scheme of fourteen days without pay will not do. They need the money themselves. The point of view is a natural one, but the political system worked itself and the city into the condition wherefrom the paymaster has disappeared. The safe is empty and there is nothing in the till. The bill file is flat and there is no more tick at the store. It is no longer fair weather when politicians get together. The Municipal court is a part of the political system of the city and at times quite as much a political as a judicial part.

Some observing cuss has dug up the fact that when the new judges and officers of the court went into office in January the old office furniture had to be replaced with new. The bailiff drew $3,500 in walnut desks, waste baskets, etc. The clerk took in about $2,500 worth and the chief justice brightened up his quarters. The council authorized the purchases, although the city was broke then about as completely as it is now. The vanishing paymaster was an obvious prospect. If it seems unfair to dock the pay of public servants there is also something to be said against expenditures for new furnishings when pay rolls could not be met. The Municipal court took its perquisites when the school teachers, for instance, couldn't get their pay.

MORE AMERICAN PRIMITIVES.

Another impromptu reformer has slapped a woman for smoking a cigaret. "My wife and daughter don't smoke," he remarked. "This is the first time I ever slapped a woman. But somehow she just made me mad." A similar case was reported from the Bronx in New York the other day. A citizen knocked a woman down because she lighted a cigaret.

This is, of course, the conduct of primitives. A violation of their tabus enrages them. A savage woman who offended a tabu would be stoned to death by outraged tribesmen or decapitated or impaled. Primitives usually attach a moral value to the tabus. Herman Melville in the South Sea islands found that women were not permitted to enter canoes alone. It was death if they were caught at it. It had become an immoral thing for them to do. Transparently this item of the moral code originally was intended to keep them from skipping out for other islands and other men.

Tabus generally gratify some instinct in the moralists who impose them, whether it is a realistic one of possession or has developed into an esthetic one of domination. The primitives, who are far more numerous than suspected until some aboriginal panic or passion discloses them, make civilization vague and difficult. They invade its laws and they operate outside of them. They are equally at home in a riot, a stampede and in the halls of legislation.

It is not fanciful to suggest that we in the United States may be unusually susceptible at the present time to impulses to impose our own code of conduct on others by force. A part of our population favors an experiment of this kind on a national scale and has used its political strength to procure the force of government to accomplish their purpose. This must necessarily weaken our respect for the right of others to their own moral judgments and tempt us to use force to impose our conceptions of right conduct on any one who seems to be flouting them.

Editorial of the Day

EXPERTS NOT WANTED!

[New York World-Telegram.]

The administration of President Hoover was welcomed as the dawn of a new and scientific era in government in which engineers, scientists and experts would man the ship of state, the politicians be sent to the galleys. In view of recent events, however, one begins to wonder if the expert aboard this ship isn't about as popular as was the late Mr. Jonah on that leaky tramp schooner en route to Tarsus.

The first inkling of the Hoover coolness toward experts was the prompt dumping in the White House waste basket of a protest of 1,000 economists against signing of the Hawley-Smoot tariff act. Then there was the story of a similar fate that befell recommendations by Col. Arthur Woods of the emergency employment commission.

The highly experted Wickersham commission has not been free from political tinkering, as shown by the modified report on prohibition and the shelving of the Stern-Pollak expert account on the Mooney-Billings trials.

Finally there came the open charge by Dr. Ray O. Hall, commerce department finance specialist, that he was fired because he refused to doctor his report in the interest of political considerations.

Prof. James Harvey Rogers of Yale sees in all these incidents "a tendency apparent in Washington to hide expert findings behind a false front of political expediency." He wonders how long men of science would offer their services to a government that ignored or misused their reports.

"We were led to believe that this would be a scientific administration," said Dr. Rogers. "In interpreting the data of experts it appears that often officials have been guided by political considerations rather than by scientific realism."

The criticism is serious. Tired of muddling through with the politicians, the people chose Mr. Hoover as their first expert in the White House in the hope and belief that he would make their democracy intelligent.

If he now has deserted his own experts for the devious way of the politicians the people may well feel a sense of betrayal.

WHENCE PERSONALITY.

MENTAL health ranks above physical health as a cause of happiness and contentment. Just how the two compare in producing efficiency depends upon the kind of work an individual does. Mental ill health ranks with physical ill health in the harm it does. If physical ill health receives—and should receive—the attention of those interested in prevention, mental ill health is likewise entitled to consideration of the same kind.

Personality is a combination of qualities, some of which are physical and many of which are mental. If a person has a pleasing personality he may go far towards success in spite of a mediocre mentality. If, on the other hand, the personality is one of certain types the individual may succeed in putting himself across, but he must be exceptionally strong mentally or exceedingly well equipped.

There are types of personality that are likely to head toward certain types of mental breakdown. Training, based on the type, will prevent some of these breakdowns.

Dr. A. Myerson thinks both heredity and environment play a part in forming a personality. As to heredity, he says that what we achieve is dependent on our germ plasm. We cannot reach what we have not the capacity to reach. On the other hand, the direction and form of our trends are given by the environment. Comparing the two, it is evident that Dr. Myerson considers environment more important than heredity, but he does not go to the extreme that Dr. John B. Watson does. We can do more with environment than we can with heredity, for more reasons than one.

Personality results from the interaction of nervous centers, viscera, and internal glands. Even from the muscles and joints flows an inner stream helping to create mood and action. When such forces as these are counted as environment affecting personality we see the influence a man can have in determining his own personality. This carries with it the thought that a man is, in considerable part, responsible for his own personality and is entitled to its rewards and punishments.

Much of personality is dependent on the people roundabout and the happenings of life. These also serve to modify personality. When a man has a sick personality it is not enough to know that one fact. The diagnosis should extend, if possible, to the type of sickness. If the diagnosis goes that far it is often possible to outline a curative and preventive type of behavior, a regulation of work, play, and social and domestic atmosphere.

It is sometimes possible to say what the future holds. More frequently it will be possible to warn the interested individual where are the rocks that threaten him and advise him how to steer around them.

MANY CAUSES POSSIBLE.

Mrs. J. F. R. writes: I have a daughter 19 months old and she can't hold up her head or sit alone. We have had her to several doctors, but none have helped her or seem to know what's wrong with her. She can't pick up toys or hold them after we put them in her hands.

REPLY.

Among the possible causes are lack of brain development, hydrocephalus, cretinism, mongolianism, and certain other glandular defects.

SWOLLEN ANKLES.

Mrs. S. T. writes: After I am on my feet for a while my ankles swell. They are all right when I first get up. I have varicose veins.

1. Could this be the cause?
2. What can be done to help this trouble?

REPLY:

1. Easily.
2. Varicose veins can be operated on by one method or another. As a rule, swelling of the ankles not due to heart or kidney disease does not call for treatment.

DIVORCE PROBLEM.

Chicago, July 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am married and have a divorce case pending in the Chicago courts for the past several months. 1. If I were to go to Reno, Nev., could I obtain a divorce there also? 2. Would the opposite party have to be notified? 3. Would I have to pay her alimony as I am doing now? J. T.

1. Where a person contemplates going to another state to secure a divorce the question whether the residence can be made to appear so genuine as to give the courts of the state unquestionable jurisdiction is so close a question that we advise going over the entire situation carefully in a personal interview with a competent attorney before embarking on such a course.
2. Yes, if the divorce is to be valid.
3. Depends upon the wording of the divorce decree.

POLICEWOMEN.

Chicago, July 15. — [Friend of the People.]—When will the next examination for policewomen be held, and what are the necessary qualifications? M. L. B.

At the time of examination, applicants must be not less than thirty nor more than forty-five years of age, not less than five feet nor more than five feet nine inches in height [in bare feet], weighing not less than 115 pounds nor more than 180 pounds, and with weight and measurements proportionate to height. Applicants must pass a medical examination and meet such physical standards and tests as shall be prescribed by the commission. JAMES S. OSBORNE, Secretary.

PROBABLY FRAUD.

Chicago, July 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Our maid has received a form letter from a resort organization, advising her that on account of giving the correct answer to one of their puzzles she was entitled to receive a site of land in Michigan, and if she would send $4.90 to pay for warranty deed, abstract of title and conveyance of oil interest rights, the necessary papers would be forwarded to her. Would appreciate your advice regarding this. W. M.

We know of no exceptions to the rule that real estate offered as a prize in guessing contests is not worth charges that are made for bringing the abstract down to date, etc. Since most such activities are clearly fraudulent, we suggest that you report your facts to the state's attorney for prosecution.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

SECRETARY STIMSON'S BATHTUB SIMILE is producing almost as much consternation among the literary pundits as his financial statements are among the best international banking and White House circles. Is it not one of the world's great masterpieces? Does it not take rank with what up to this time has been universally acclaimed as the finest simile in the English language, the one written by Oliver Goldsmith in the "Deserted Village":

As some tall cliff that lifts its awful form,
Swells from the vale, and midway leaves the storm,
Though round its breast the rolling clouds are spread,
Eternal sunshine settles on its head.

Is Mr. Stimson's jewel not even greater than that? Does it not get even nearer to the great pulsing human heart, the goal of all great literature? We ask you. Here, without more suspense, is Mr. Stimson's classic. Likening the present world crisis to a bathtub, he said:

The stopper has been out and the water has been running out rapidly. It is necessary first to put the plug back in the hole. Then it is necessary to examine what water is left and see if it is sufficient for the purposes at hand. If it is, well and good, but if it is not, it may be necessary to put more water in it.

Is it not inspired? Is it not magnificent, no less? What is nearer, dearer to the American heart, to which Mr. Stimson speaks, than the bathtub? Goldsmith might rave about tall cliffs and vales and rolling clouds and eternal sunshine, but Mr. Stimson knows that to us Americans these things are the baloney. But bathtubs! The mere word calls up visions, dreams, aspirations, the ultimate goal of six bathtubs in every home, all different colors and all bought on the installment plan. Bathtubs! That's our middle name! And listen: "The stopper has been out," he says, "and the water running out rapidly." None of your high-tone, far-fetched tall cliffs and eternal sunshine hooey about that, huh? "It is necessary first to put the plug back in the hole." Ah, the homeliness, the inspiration of that line! Gosh, hain't it swell!

AVOWAL.

You say I do not mean the things I say,
That all the words I fashion when you're near,
Have oft been said in some not distant day
To some one else, been whispered in the ear
Of such another flower girl like you—
But really, dear, you know that isn't true!

For all the things I tell you have been kept Like flower-thoughts one saves until the time
Is come to make with hands grown smooth, adept,
Garlands that speak in flower-scented rhyme
A thousand little phrases telling of

COLORADO PETE.

IF YOU GET AN O. K. Safety Test sticker and a City License sticker and your automobile club membership sticker all on your windshield it shows you've done all you can for Safety First and paid your tax and your club dues, but how are you going to see the fat woman in front of your machine who can't make up her mind whether she wants to cross the street or go back to the sidewalk where she started?

THE BRADLEYS, the w. k. explorers, have just offered to bring a tribe of African cannibals to our World's Fair in 1933 just as the news comes that back in their native haunts they have killed and eaten a Belgian tax collector. We don't mind feeding tax collectors to the cannibals while they are here, but we have so few Belgians.

GEN. DESAUSSURE, commander of the United Confederate Veterans, has declined an invitation to take part in the celebration at the Lincoln birthplace in Kentucky on the ground that Mr. Lincoln has been shown in a recent book not "to have been possessed of the Godlike nature and qualities with which interested persons have deified him." Goodness! The silly season has begun so early this summer; usually it doesn't set in until about August.

"IT WAS PREMIER MacDONALD'S IDEA!" declares Mr. Stimson in London. "It was President Hoover's idea," declares Acting Secretary Castle of the State Department in Washington. The idea we might mention and as you all know is the quite famous debt plan for the relief of poor old Germany. Well, with Mr. Stimson saying the idea was Premier MacDonald's and Mr. Castle saying it belongs to Mr. Hoover, we will admit that we're dumbfounded. We would just love to believe both Mr. Stimson and Mr. Castle, but it seems very hard to do, if not quite impossible. And as they didn't agree on one-half of one per cent of the idea at the conference, we don't know that it matters.

AREN'T THESE REFORMERS the chivalrous things? One of them smacked a cigarette from a woman's lips in Indianapolis and then slapped her three times in the face. The judge gave him ten days in jail and fined him fifty dollars. The reformers are going to object strenuously to this sentence. Naturally, if other people do not do things that suit them the offenders should be beaten up. If they keep on they'll have us all in the stocks yet. Or shot at sunrise.

NO GERMAN CRISIS yesterday! And no French crisis. Not even a Russian crisis. We got so used to having a crisis every few minutes that the days seem dull and life a blank if we don't have one. However, today is Friday and the Germans usually scare up a crisis on Friday. Let us watch and wait.

SOME ADVERTISEMENTS of summer cottages say they have radio. Other summer cottages boast of a rock garden. The two should be together and then you could throw the rock garden at the radio. R. H. L.

STILL UNCONSCIOUS

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 24, 1915.

WASHINGTON, D.C.—President Wilson's note, intended to be a final warning to Germany to spare the lives of Americans in its submarine warfare on commerce, was made public by the state department. A thinly veiled threat of stern action by the United States in the event of the killing of Americans aboard an unarmed, unresisting merchant vessel of either belligerent or neutral nationality is contained in this concluding sentence of the communication: "Friendship itself prompts it (the United States) to say to the imperial government that repetition by the commanders of German naval vessels of acts in contravention of those rights must be regarded by the United States, when they affect American citizens, as deliberately unfriendly."

PHILADELPHIA.—In the face of almost unanimous belief that he must have spoken jocularly or in metaphor when he suggested last night that the United States raise a fund and buy Belgium from Germany, setting that country free, John Wanamaker today stood by his guns, asserting he had spoken in all seriousness and reiterating his belief that the idea is thoroughly practical.

JULY 24, 1901.

WASHINGTON. — Rear Admiral Winfield Scott Schley has decided to ask for a court of inquiry into the charges and insults heaped upon him by Historian Maclay in his book on the United States navy, which deals particularly with the Sampson-Schley Santiago harbor controversy. Later he intends bringing civil action for damages against the writer. Rear Admiral Sampson has been quoted as saying that he knew what Maclay was going to say about Schley before the book was issued, and that the statements made by Maclay were substantially true, as they appeared to be taken from official reports.

CHICAGO.—Hetty Green's vigorous protests against an increase in her tax assessments have availed nothing with the board of review and yesterday an advance of $236,550 was spread on 495 acres of land in the town of Lake owned by the wealthy New York widow. Though all surrounding property in this territory has been improved, Hetty Green has kept all improvements from her 495 acres and, it is charged, thus sought to keep her taxes all the lower. Her property, in seven parcels, is in the vicinity of the stockyards and is valued at $554,550.

JULY 24, 1881.

WASHINGTON.—The President is sleeping quietly tonight. His pulse stands at 100, an abatement of 18 since 7 o'clock, and although Dr. Woodward, who is watching, did not attempt to take the respiration or temperature at midnight, he said that the condition of the patient indicated that both had subsided in a degree to correspond with the abatement of the pulse.

WASHINGTON.—The Washington Gazette will tomorrow publish an interesting interview with Col. Ingersoll. It has been currently reported that Ingersoll was the liberal man who loaned Guiteau the money with which he bought the pistol. Referring to this, Ingersoll says: "I knew Guiteau slightly; saw him for the first time a few days ago after the inauguration. He wanted a consulate and asked me to give him a letter to Secretary Blaine. I refused, on the ground that I did not know him. Afterward he wanted me to lend him $25 and I declined. I never loaned him a dollar in the world."

CHICAGO.—It is feared that if the war on westbound passenger rates continues much longer the eastbound rates will go to pieces. Thus far the passenger rates have been steadily maintained at $15 from Chicago to New York and $16 to Boston. The eastern trunk lines, however, have lately been selling round trip excursion tickets at greatly reduced rates. As far as can be learned, the New York lines are now selling first class tickets from New York to Chicago for $3.

FOREIGN POLICY.

Madison, Wis., July 20.—Many times I have been tempted to write and comment upon some editorial which you have printed dealing with American foreign policy or international relations. I have refrained from doing so mainly because I have more or less shared the almost universal feeling that your editorials on such subjects are not written with any degree of sincerity or objectivity or devotion to the national welfare, but simply for the expression of certain emotional or perhaps semi-intellectual fixations. But the three editorials of yesterday are so interesting in what they say and imply that my self-restraint breaks now.

With "O, Uncle!" I thoroughly sympathize. The only excuse for American generosity with Europe is to be found in the possibility that by remission of certain claims we may stimulate the recovery of prosperity and indirect benefits to ourselves in that direction; this is a complicated question in the calculation of economic possibilities which neither of us would probably wish to undertake.

On the other hand, "Getting Us Ready" is based on what really seems to be a silly idea. The professional pacifists give me a pain almost as badly as they do you, but surely you do not believe that there is any serious danger either to the United States or to any other country of excessive disarmament in the near future. And I for one have never seen our delegates taking an apologetic attitude in Geneva or elsewhere—as I hope I never shall.

It is in what you say on "American 'Isolation'" that you seem to fall victim either to dishonesty of purpose or lack of intelligence most clearly. There certainly have been many leaders of American thought and supposedly scientific students of American foreign policy who have represented our policy as one of isolation. Officially we have never taken any such ridiculous attitude, but the feeling and the legend persist. Moreover, you cannot distinguish economic and political questions with any success in discussing intellectual affairs today. No one asks that the United States should enter any international organization where she can be outvoted to her own injury, as you imply at the end of your editorial. No such international organization exists; in all international conferences free consent of each nation is still requisite for agreement. What some of us do advocate, however, is that for her own advantage, for the sake of exercising as much influence as possible in directions beneficial to herself, the United States should take part actively in organized international coöperation, economic or political, wherever we have interests at stake, and not stand out because of inhibitions inherited from the provincial or colonial period.

PITMAN B. POTTER,
Department of Political Science, University of Wisconsin.

IN THE SKY.

Chicago, July 16.—On July 3 we saw in the sky what looked like a star on fire. It would shoot out of the sky, in the northwest part of the city, and would appear again in the middle of the sky like a flash of fire, and back again in the northwest. It appeared again last night. Could you please tell us what this is? We watch this from our back porch. M. K.

LEIF ERIKSON'S NAME.

Chicago, July 19.—Below the picture of his statue in THE TRIBUNE of July 11 appears the name "Lief Erickson."

The English word "lief" is derived from the Anglo-Saxon word "leof," which meant dear, pleasant, and beloved, which basic meaning was retained in English. The old Norse word "leif" meant remnant, inheritance, and, in personified sense, survivor or descendant. The words "lief" and "leif" are, therefore, not etymologically related.

The name "Erickson" is spelled in many different ways. They are, however, the patronymics of the old Norse word "Eirikr," which is composed of the adverb "ei," meaning always, forever, and the adjective "rikr," meaning rich and mighty. In personified sense "Eirikr" [Erik or Eric] means "the ever rich and mighty."

The favored Scandinavian form of this name applied to the discoverer is "Erikson," while in English the Anglo-Saxon form of "Ericson" predominates. There is no letter "k" in the Anglo-Saxon alphabet and "c" became gradually a dead letter in the old Norse in the 12th century.

The Old Norse and Anglo-Saxon names were rich in some definite meanings. The use of "Lief" instead of "Leif" in the American press would surely not be made when the radical difference in the meaning of the two words is understood. OLAF RAY.

THE GREETER.

Chicago, July 16.—We had hoped that, with the election of Mr. Cermak, all trace of Thompsonism would pass. Now we have one of the mayor's appointees, Mr. Gaw, with his "Kiddies," etc. stuff, greeting every "hick" from 35 miles or more out of town is disgusting. It's our opinion an official greeter should confine his efforts to nationally known figures and should conduct himself with dignity. Why again make our city a laughing stock through the antics of a clown? GEORGE L. DEVEREUX.

SHORTS.

Chicago, July 17.—We firmly believe that shorts are the logical and sensible attire for summer wear, just as long trousers are for winter. We hold no idea of wearing shorts in the cool of the evening or to any functions such as dances or the opera. We urge any man who has never worn shorts to try them, and we know absolutely that he will adopt them as his regular summer attire, discarding his knickers and woolen golf hose. BURTON FOSSES CHASE.

NOT GOOD FOR TAXES.

Chicago, July 15.—I have a tax bill for $272 and a school teacher as a tenant, who is three months behind in her rent, but who has $700 coming from the city in back pay. So in desperation [not wanting my property sold for taxes] I wrote to the county collector, asking if I were to take scrip money in payment for my rent whether it would be applicable on my taxes, and I was notified that the scrip money would not be accepted as tax payment because it was 1931 scrip.

I cannot understand how the business man or banker can honor this scrip when the city which issues it does not honor it, or how the landlord can accept this paper and have his property sold for taxes while he holds the city's scrip. HERBERT BERNING.

OPINION DELAYS 50 MILLIONS OF STATE PROJECTS

Must Readvertise Jobs, Carlstrom Rules.

Springfield, Ill., July 23.—[Special.]—An opinion affecting approximately $50,000,000 worth of state public building contracts in Illinois was given out by Attorney General Carlstrom today. Mr. Carlstrom informed Director of Highways Cleaveland that under the prevailing wage rate law enacted by the last legislature all public works not actually under contract July 1, the day the act went into effect, must be readvertised.

ATTY. GEN. CARLSTROM.

Mr. Carlstrom ruled that it was clearly the intention of the legislature to compel the payment of the prevailing wage scale on all work not actually under contract the day the act took effect.

The ruling, it is estimated, will hold up nearly $18,000,000 worth of highway contracts alone until the present season is over. It affects all counties, cities, townships or other bodies which spend public funds.

Not Liable, He Says.

Mr. Carlstrom also advised Director Cleaveland that he will not be personally liable for any damages resulting from the letting of contracts and construction of highways under the act.

The attorney general does not undertake to say whether the law is constitutional, but informs the director that he will be justified in assuming that it is a valid act until the Supreme court of Illinois and the Supreme court of the United States declare otherwise.

"The rule is," he continued, "that where a ministerial officer is required to perform duties imposed by a statute he is protected from the consequences of his operations in pursuance of the discharge of such duties, if the statute be declared unconstitutional, provided that he does not have notice that the act is unconstitutional."

Covers All Classes.

The attorney general holds that in acting under the new law the "prevailing wage" has reference to all classes of labor involved. "It seems to me," he says, "that the prevailing rate of wages should be ascertained and fixed for not only common labor but also for all classes of mechanics that might reasonably be expected to be employed on the work."

PEGGY TENDERS THAT NECKPIECE TO UNCLE SAM

New York, July 23.—(AP)—Peggy Hopkins Joyce may forfeit to the government the $12,000 diamond studded necklace which one of her former husbands, Stanley Joyce of Chicago, gave her.

Morton Baum, assistant United States attorney, said today he would recommend that the government accept the neckpiece in settlement of the government's suit for $50,000 duty, interest, and penalties pending against her.

The neckpiece was seized by customs agents in 1922 when Miss Joyce arrived from a European visit and was charged with failing to declare it.

Miss Joyce at the time said the failure to declare the valuables was the result of a maid's error.

Two British Army Officers Stabbed on Indian Train

KHANDWAL, India, July 23.—(AP)—Two British military officers, en route to Poona, were badly stabbed today by unknown assailants. The officers were occupying first class, in a Punjab mail train, one asleep in an upper bunk, the other in a lower, when they were attacked. It is believed the assailants boarded the train at Khandwa.

Report Robbery of Lake Shore Drive Home July 4

The police learned last night that the home of Hampden Winston, real estate broker, 229 Lake Shore drive, had been visited by burglars on July 4. They took a pair of binoculars, some table linen and a silver fox fur scarf.

JUDITH'S HOME BY THE SEA PASSES INTO NEW HANDS

So Troubled Minds Are Set at Ease.

BY IRENE STEYSKAL.

A very old house it is, low roofed and brown and weatherbeaten, with no pretentions to past elegance or even to the correctness of a modern renaissance.

True, it overlooks the blue bay of the glimmering golden gateway, where proud ships with bright banners ride, and the little ships with white sails spread like gulls' wings, and black barges loaded with coal and glistening yellow sand, great gray merchantmen from the Argentine with cargoes of cattle and grain; slow moving ships from Brazil bringing coffee, rubber, and tropical nuts, and wild birds of brilliant plumage and of strange, lonely songs; tall masted ships from Ecuador and Peru bringing fantastic trinkets of beaten silver set with orange and red veined agate, and sea green turquoise.

Long vessels from the orient navigated by small dark men with slant-ing mysterious eyes who deal in teak-wood, rare spices and jade, tea blended with jasmine, painted reed matting, and heavy embroidered silks that have a voluptuous sheen and are soft as magnolia petals; fishing fleets in from Vancouver, nets teeming with their silvery catch; double decked ferries; trim navy transports.

From a Gable Window.

From the gable windows you would see ships of the seven seas at rest in the blue bay of the glimmering golden gateway that was named by the Spanish friars for the little father, St. Francis.

From the back dormer windows you would look out over the garden into a forest of redwoods that is a great organ for the winds and the rain to play on, and, beyond the forest, toward the towering hills, a silent dark robed fraticelli with heads in a heaven that is at times a vast wonderment of northern lights.

But a stranger speeding along the highway could not know of these things. He would see only a sagging fence and untrimmed hedges and perhaps, through intervening clumps of lilac bushes and fir trees, he would catch a glimpse of the roof in the cool shade of eucalypti and aldera—no more than this, so withdrawn is the old house in its quiet reticence.

You would wonder what the slim blond siren from Hollywood, who lives in an expensive hotel suite, rides in luxurious foreign cars, who surrounds herself with much glitter and gayety, would have seen in it to intrigue her fancy.

Flowers in Abundance.

You would think that feet so daintily shod would hesitate on the rough flagstone path from the gate where dandelions thrust up tawny heads through cracks and wide fissures; that they would turn back from the deep, old fashioned porch where no hand has reached out to restrain the vines—the trumpeted morning glory, the butterfly-blossoming wild rose—in their riotous clambering over trellis and beam and sloping room, under the friendly eaves where the swallows have hung their nests, about the windows whose crystal clear panes are crossed and recrossed by the shadows of many wings.

When we first heard of the purchase, Constance, well versed in the publicity technique of the studios, smiled wisely. But after a few days there was a letter from Judith's hairs to confirm the transaction.

And we were disturbed, and we forgot the smile in Judith's steady gray eyes and the strength of Judith's white, quiet hands, when we wrote to the old friends.

The red headed young scientist who had gone to Moscow with his queer measuring rods and test tubes called a stormy protest.

San Lee of the sweet voice, who had been a student at Berkeley, wrote from her father's home in Peking, "It may be that the new owner is a great genius and needful of the serenity that Judith left like a pleasant fragrance in the old house. But as I write I am remembering the iris path and the lily pond, the white crane and the blue heron, and the song that the reeds sing, and memories are a little sword in the heart. I am remembering Von Hoffen's violin, a golden voice in the dusk of Judith's garden. . . ."

But when a letter came from the old artist, from the little village near Leipzig, we were surprised. All of us knew the story of the masterpiece that had won for the young artist Wolkhoff the first of his laurels—a portrait of Judith standing tall and stately by the white birches near the lily pond where there is always a luminous green twilight as in sub-aquatic caverns.

That was many years ago, and strong resentments are for the young. Old men should be left to their quiet dreaming. We had not written to Wolkhoff.

Refreshments for Young.

"For a long while," he wrote, "a thought of Judith's home unoccupied has troubled me. Judith was ever a woman of gracious hospitality. Royally she dispensed it, and with supreme artistry. Her face shines from many pictures in the long gallery of an old friend's memories, but in the midst of her impromptu garden gatherings—thus it is I like best to remember her.

"Honest warm sunshine. Ardent young faces. Earnest young voices. And refreshments to satisfy young hungers. Sometimes a big brown pitcher with foamy buttermilk and a tray of gingerbread, richly dark and fragrant of spices. Sometimes tall glasses of iced coffee, or sparkling fruit juices and generous slices of apfel kuchen, the apple cake lightly powdered with cinnamon, or the thick strudel roll of nuts and currants and raisins, apples, and citron. Or thick slices of homemade bread spread with sweet butter and honey. Or in the autumn time when the leaves overhead were crimsoned and gold there would be cider and graham wafers sprinkled with coarse sugar crystals, and baskets of purple and white grapes, luscious pears, fresh brown figs.

Old Home is Sold.

"Often when Von Hoffen played to us a new theme on his violin I have asked myself, 'Which is most perfect, Von Hoffen's new concerto, the sculptural symmetry of Judith's hands, or the fragrance and flavor of Judith's small date cakes?'

"Is it strange, then, that I should have deplored the loneliness of the days that have come upon the old garden?

"But no longer have I cause for uneasiness. A few years ago a young girl of remarkable talent, known to us here in the village as Katrina Jarlakov, left for America. Her success in the studios of Hollywood has been meteoric. But, whatever one may read to the contrary, fame and wealth have not altered the simplicity of her desires. In her letters, one who has wandered much does not miss the nostalgia they would hide.

"Once to each of us, I am convinced, should it be permitted to play the part of destiny. I wrote to Katrina of the old home. She has purchased it. As I hoped, its charm did not escape her. It will fulfill her needs. And beauty and graciousness walk again in Judith's garden, and troubled thoughts are at rest."

SWEET ENOUGH WITHOUT SUGAR.

There might be something sour about being able to buy the freshest grapefruit on the market for 3 for 25 cents or even less, retail, but Genevieve Jackson, 8055 South Ada street, strolled down to the South Water market to Fox & Godding's commission house this week and found the citrus sweet enough to eat without sugar. The new grapefruit is from California. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

FLAVOR OF FLOWERS IN ONE'S TEA IS NOT DIFFICULT TO ADD

Flavors of flowers in one's tea, tea cakes, nut bars, toasted delicacies, muffins or sandwiches are not so difficult to add to foods as the suggestion might indicate, according to promoters of the honey industry.

Whether it's a winter, spring, summer or fall tea, the suggestion is made that servings can be provided for the unexpected guest by using the following menu: Hot honey tea, reheated honey cornflake muffins and a slice of honey fruit roll. Proper blending insures variety in the foods so that all of them do not taste intensely sweet.

FOOD HABITS OF U. S. CHANGED BY EACH NEW DEVICE

Refrigeration and Tin Cans Solve Problems.

"The tin can, as well as refrigeration, has changed the food habits of the American people. Everywhere persons are at work on new ideas of food distribution that will be as revolutionary as plans now in use."

This comment on the changing food habits of the nation was written by Charles L. Hill, director of the Wisconsin department of agriculture and markets. He was an official delegate from the United States to the International dairy congress which convened recently in Copenhagen.

Wandering through the food markets always has been a hobby of Mr. Hill, he admits.

Always Something New to See.

In addition, he has gained an insight into market likes and dislikes and shopping habits in general through visits to markets in Paris, Boston, New Orleans, San Francisco, Washington, D. C., Los Angeles, and Seattle.

"There is always something new to see," says Mr. Hill. "On the Isle of Guernsey, many a morning I have left the hotel before the porter was up and spent an hour watching the market people arrange their stalls and wait on their first customers.

"The fish markets are particularly interesting to me. The markets in each city specialize in one or two sorts of fish. In London it is mackerel; in Boston, codfish and lobster; in Baltimore, oysters and crabs; in New Orleans, shrimps and pompano; in New York, bluefish; Seattle, salmon; San Francisco, sanddabs, and in Guernsey, conger eels.

"Modern refrigeration has changed all methods of food distribution. To illustrate: I once went with a cousin to a fish restaurant in Fulton market, New York. He was a buyer in the market and had a wonderful knowledge of food distribution.

Fooled by Refrigeration.

"He knew I loved fish and so took me to this special restaurant. Dozens of kinds of fish were on the card. I knew even less then of fish varieties than I do now. I took halibut and he ordered bluefish. After lunch he asked if my fish was good, and I said, 'Fine—so much fresher than we get in Wisconsin, 1,000 miles from water.'

"He replied, 'The halibut came through Fond du Lac, Wis., from Alaska.'"

Progress in food merchandising has seen rapid strides, but the industry still is in the development stage, Mr. Hill indicates. For proof he points to fresh grapes and peaches in the winter from Argentina; hot house grapes all winter in New York from Belgium; meat supplies in England shipped frozen from Australia, New Zealand, or Argentina.

Dry Ice! New? Yes, but It Has Already Won Many Friends

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Did you ever send a quart of ice cream from Chicago to San Francisco by parcel post? Try it some time and be surprised at the results, that is, if you protect it with a small round cake of dry ice.

Comparatively new on the market, this ice substitute has rapidly won favor with industrial leaders, retail shopkeepers, and even housewives who find it indispensable for picnics and outings. Ten times the price of wet ice, it has selling points aplenty, however, with an extremely low temperature, unusual lasting qualities, and the faculty of disappearing without leaving any deposit or moisture.

What It's Like.

But what is this unusual product? That is the question. You frequently have observed, no doubt, the small bubbles that rise to the surface in a soda pop bottle when the cap is pried off. Dry ice is made out of the same gas that forms the bubbles, in other words it is carbon dioxide cooled down and compressed until it forms a solid frozen mass.

When some one makes money from a simple invention, we ask ourselves, "Why didn't I think of it myself?" Fifteen or more years ago students watched a professor conduct an experiment in a physics class. Into a peculiar double shelled vessel he emptied carbon dioxide, snow white, clean, fluffy. The vessel was a Dewar flask. Its double walls contained only a vacuum. That was the secret for the carbon dioxide would not soon melt.

And It's Called Dry Ice.

Some one with a practical mind saw possibilities in the Dewar flask, already used by scientists for several decades. The thermos bottle was the outcome. And now the carbon dioxide that was kept frozen in that flask is making more money for the hard headed New York ice cream manufacturer who also saw possibilities in that simple experiment. It has gone into business as dry ice!

Dry ice may be a trade name, but just as "Ford" or "Kodak," it is burrowing its way into the warp and woof of modern life. The temperature of the ice is generally known to be 113 degrees below zero. Pound for pound it refrigerates fifteen times as much as common frozen water and when it disappears it goes directly from a solid into a nonpoisonous inert gas, leaving not a sign of moisture. Think of being able to lay a piece of ice on a choice cloth, allow it to vanish, and then find no trace of it!

The principal use of this refrigerant, in fact its only use according to many manufacturers and distributors, is for preserving food or fish and animal life in transit. In the summer it is quite possible to transport a car of fish protected by dry ice without the costly process of re-icing the car at frequent intervals. Nor is it an infrequent occurrence for manufacturers of ice cream to ship their product from New York to Cuba. For these purposes dry ice is sold in 10 inch cubes, weighing 40 pounds apiece. The price per pound for 200 pounds or more is quoted at five cents.

Nice for Picnickers.

Although dry ice has not supplanted in any way electrical refrigeration or wet ice for use in the home and retail shop, more than one establishment has found it useful. In the small store where space is limited ice cream bars and cold drinks may be kept for sale with the use of a small cake of dry ice. In the same way mother can put a piece in the bottom of a cylindrical cardboard container for ice cream and serve the whole family on a roadside picnic.

But beware touching one of these cakes of dry ice for more than a second or two with the bare fingers. Colder than the north pole in the winter time, it produces a burning sensation. You may remember it—too well!

Quality and in Some Cases Quantity, the Highest.

BY PAUL POTTER

The year 1931 will long be remembered in the realm of food producers and distributors as well as by consumers as the year of paradoxes in the nation's twenty billion dollar food industry.

Already in the midst of the producing season, producers are reporting the harvest of the highest quality and in some cases the largest quantity of foodstuffs in a decade or more. And they are passing through devious routes to the "ultimate consumers" at prices far below their normal value.

Were the nation's food producers suddenly brought to a standstill, to a highly theoretical, there is in existence enough wheat, oats, coffee, meat animals, poultry, eggs, dairy products, and canned or frozen foods on hand to carry through three meals a day for at least the balance of the year—and upon a restricted diet for over a year hence.

Prices Unparalleled.

But the horn of plenty continues to pour into every neighborhood's market a variety and quality of edibles at a price which food authorities declare is unparalleled in the present century. It is an opportunity to break away from the simple fare of a routine living and taste of the best that can be had in four continents.

A stimulus is expected to be seen in the consumption of the cereal grains in the next few years by local grain analysts and nutrition experts. They are finding that the favorable season for wheat production from Texas to the northern Illinois line has produced not only a bumper crop but one testing unusually high in protein.

The milling qualities of the 1931 wheat crop are now being tested in Minneapolis, Chicago, and other localities. Early reports indicate that while prices of flour will continue at bargain levels for months to come the quality of breadstuffs and pastries will be at its peak as a result of the opportunity for millers to select from almost a billion bushels of wheat that will enter in the world markets this fall.

Competition Seen in Meats.

Keen competition is also forecast between purveyors of meats and poultry, game and other small animal products, for the center of the American table. As rapidly as possible the federal government is extending its grading and inspection services into the meat industry to serve both consumers and producers with a more accurate basis on which to buy and sell definite values.

Another result of the peculiar conditions in food distribution this season is said to be the increase in use of federal grades in fruits and vegetables. Apples, peaches, potatoes, and many other perishable products are to be sold on a uniform basis of values almost entirely this season for the first time.

Heretofore it has been possible for the choice grades of perishable foods to be handicapped in the price scale on retail markets by a flooding of those markets with inferior quality goods.

Change in Market Methods.

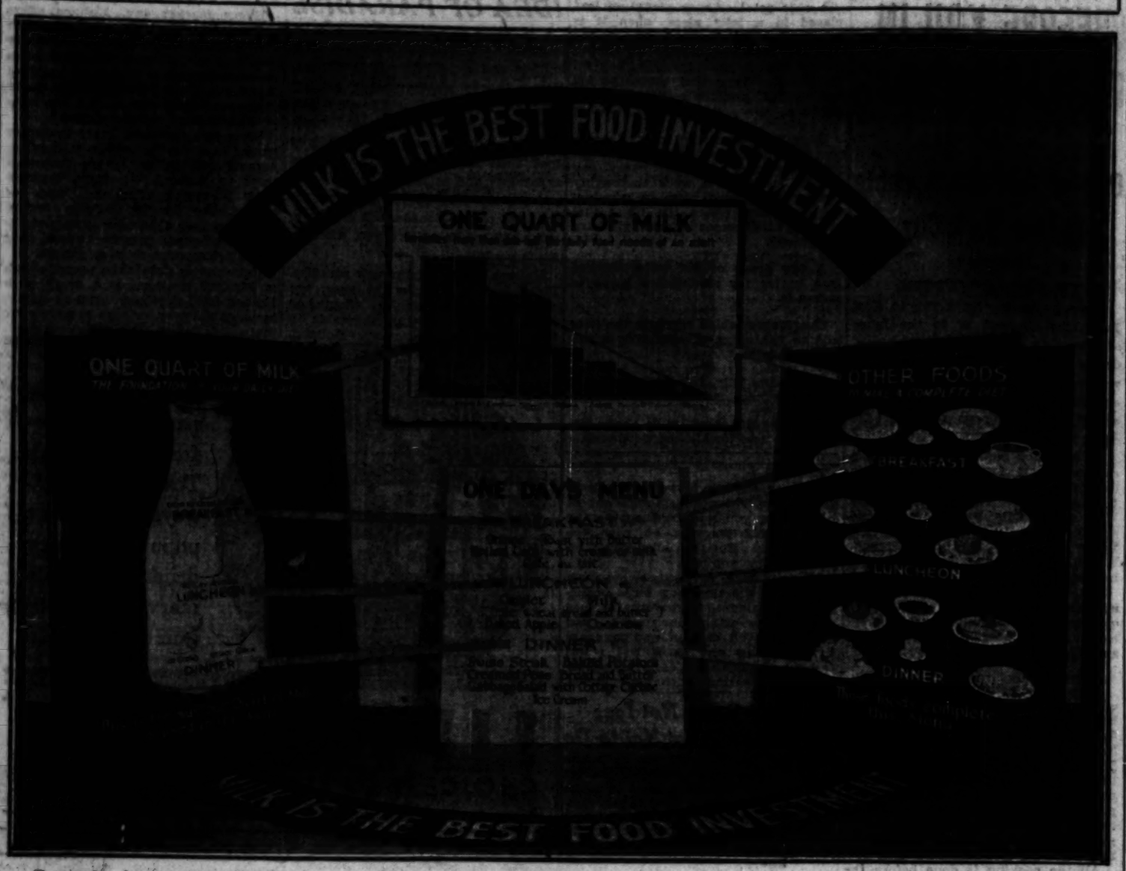
An example is the practice in recent years for Illinois apple and peach growers to sell their best fruit to commission firms and sell the overripe and inferior grades to trucksters. They are making plans this year to prevent as much as possible the appearance of the poor quality fruit on city markets, where it reflects on the reputation and value of the choice grades.

Another peculiar condition in the marketing of perishable foods this season is said to be the increase in home canning on the part of both rural and city families. Such foods as grapes, apples, peaches, and cherries that are being made into beverages, both fresh and fermented, in an enormous volume, it is reported by local market observers.

Sun, Not Father, Should Tan Son and Take It Easy

Tanning his hide daily is good for the child if done by the sun, not father; and if the tan is applied very gradually. Severe sunburns are dangerous to health.

WHAT THE MILKMAN BRINGS TO THE MENU



Presenting in graphic form the daily needs of an adult diet, this chart was set up in a Chicago store window to picture the nutritional value of a quart of milk. It gives one-third of the protein, all the calcium, nearly all the phosphorus, all the vitamin A, and varying amounts of vitamins B, C, and D, with one-fourth to one-fifth of the energy requirements for one person's daily meals. Other foods in the day's menu listed by nutritionists of the National Dairy council are: One orange, 1 apple, 1 serving of cabbage, 1 serving fresh peas, 1 serving whole grain cereal, 3 servings bread, 1 egg, 1½ ounces butter, and 4 ounces of meat, with other energy foods as required.

2 FOODS FOUND IN LOWLY EGGS; YOU NEED BOTH

Only Ingredient That Can Serve Purpose.

The manifold uses of eggs that have made them a boon to cookery have been set down under two classes in a recent estimate by Dr. Hazel K. Stiebeling, home economist in the federal bureau studying household affairs in Washington.

"These two classes, or sets of facts, are those relating to the nutritive importance of eggs and those regarding their adaptability to cookery processes," Dr. Stiebeling declares.

The physical properties of eggs, in her opinion, make them necessary in giving lightness and bulk to such cooked products as sponge cakes, meringues, omelets, and certain desserts and in giving the characteristic consistency to mayonnaise.

"From the standpoint of nutrition," she declares, "the egg is really two foods instead of one. The white part of the egg is almost a pure watery solution of certain proteins of high biological value for body building and maintenance.

"The yolk, on the other hand, contains many well-recognized food substances. It furnishes concentrated fuel for the body, contains protein of fine quality, and has an unusually rich store of the minerals and vitamins necessary for growth and development, and for the maintenance of health and vigor.

"Every 100-calorie portion of egg is about three and one-half times as rich in protein, twice as rich in calcium, three times as rich in phosphorus, and four times as rich in iron as we believe the average 100-calorie portion of food for the adult need be. Moreover, these nutrients are in forms especially adapted for conversion into body tissue—a fact which makes the food value of the egg much greater than mere enumeration of these nutrients would indicate. The egg yolk is also rich in the fat soluble vitamins."

An egg a day for children over two years old is suggested for the formation of good red blood. For younger children smaller amounts of the yolk may be given with benefit.

LATEST CONFECTION IS SEA WEED CANDY; IT CONTAINS IODINE

Foods and nutrition specialists at Iowa State college advocate eating candies or cookies prepared partly from sea weed as a novel way to secure the daily requirement of iodine. Chemical analysis made in the Iowa laboratories show that a given weight of the thick, green kelp contains 1,600 times more iodine than an equal weight of butter. The iodine present in the dark brown sea weed is more than 10 times that of the thin, green variety.

Japan's unusual candies are made from varieties of sea weed. Flat candies are made by coating strips of the brown kelp with sugar. These confections resemble candied orange peel in appearance. Carmel-like candies are prepared of this same thick variety by incorporating it in rice paste. Stick candies and compressed cakes are made from the thin, green sea weeds.

One-sixth teaspoonful of the powdered sea weed is sufficient to meet the daily iodine requirement of the average adult. Sea weed confections may be purchased at many stores.

FOOD SPECIALIST TELLS WHAT KIND OF JARS TO USE

Now that housewives are in the midst of buying surplus fruits and vegetables on the summer market and canning these fresh foods for winter consumption, some advice on what types of glass jars are preferred has been prepared by Lucile Brewer, foods specialist of the New York State College of Home Economics.

The best sort of jar is that which can be perfectly sealed, has no metal touching the food, and fits shelves and receptacles in which it is to be placed during and after canning. The jar should wash easily, have a wide mouth and straight sides, clear, with no bubbles, and smooth inside and out.

Testing is an art that has been handed down from generation to generation in most families. The container is partly filled with hot water, the rubber and cover adjusted, and the jar inverted. If there is any leakage and the cause cannot be remedied, the jar should be used only for such food as pickles or marmalade, that do not require a perfect seal or that can be waxed over.

HERE'S SUGGESTION ON WHAT TO SERVE WITH SALAD COURSE

What to serve with salads, now considered a necessity but once in the luxury class, has been outlined recently by Ruth M. Dawson, extension specialist in foods and nutrition at North Dakota Agricultural college. Foods she suggests to accompany salads include: Crackers, plain but heated so they are crisp for serving, or the crackers may be toasted. Cheese straws are suggested. Cheese biscuits, orange biscuits, sandwiches, muffins or rolls also are recommended by Miss Dawson to make salads more tasty and filling.

Sweet Pickle Relish Gives a New Tang to Mayonnaise

Those who may care to deviate from the ordinary taste of mayonnaise will find that a delicious flavor may be added by the use of a little sweet pickle relish.

BARGAINS AWAIT HOUSEWIVES AT GREEN GROCER'S

Prices of Vegetables and Fruits Lower.

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

Fruit and vegetable bargains in retail stores in Chicago this week offer the housewife a chance to fill her shopping basket with fresh foods at less cost than in previous years, and even in recent weeks.

Green peas are almost a luxury, it appears, for the best are selling for about 20 cents a pound. These come from the state of Washington. But potatoes are cheaper and can be bought for 29 to 31 cents a peck, with prices slightly higher if the housewife shops at places which make deliveries.

Cucumbers won't be much cheaper than they are right now. The hothouse cucumbers, which form the larger part of the city's supply, now retail at three for 25 cents or thereabouts.

Tomato Quality Poor.

There is a plentiful supply of tomatoes, but the quality is said to be poor. Some tomatoes are being sold at about 15 cents a pound, but the higher quality, is still coming from hothouses and costs the shopper about 25 cents a pound.

Green onions are worth about five cents for two bunches; carrots from California, two bunches for 13 or 15 cents; beets, two bunches for 9 or 10 cents; head lettuce, two for 25 cents.

Lemon Prices Decline.

Lemons are following the thermometer in price. Although they rose recently to 60 and 65 cents a dozen, the waning of the hot spell forced the prices back to about 36 cents a dozen.

Buyers are advised to pay 25 to 30 cents a dozen for limes, depending on size and quality. The Persian lime from Florida has a greener skin than most limes and has fewer seeds. The other limes on the market usually are the Dominican. American dealers obtain the Dominican variety from the Dominican republic, Mexico, California, or Florida.

A 15 day period of hot and dry weather reduced what was expected to be a huge grape crop on the west coast and caused a loss which average estimates place at 35 per cent of the expected yield. As a result there won't be much of a surplus, although producers, shippers and dealers in Chicago are not expecting any sky rocketing of prices. The best grapes will soon be available for about 10 cents a pound.

Fruit Damaged by Heat.

The same situation holds true in the case of pears, plums and peaches from the west coast. The heat wave damaged these crops almost as seriously. As a result the Bartlett pears may be as cheap now as they will be for two or three weeks. Three pounds for 25 cents or four points for 29 cents are considered reasonable retail prices. About Aug. 10 there will be larger shipments of pears from Oregon.

Seedless grapes were quoted last week as being worth about 25 cents for two pounds. Many shoppers in following this found that Saturday the price had risen and many stores were selling the grapes for 15 to 20 cents a pound. An unexpected shortage here the last day of the week caused a brief upturn in wholesale and retail prices.

Peaches are coming into season. California Elbertas should be selling at around 15 to 17 cents a dozen. So far none of the crop has been of sufficient size or quantity to be regarded as suitable for canning. Canning peaches will arrive soon when Illinois and Michigan begin shipping their large crops.

How much does the average American family spend in a year for bakery goods? The head of a large baking goods company set out to find some information on food budgets, and announced recently that approximately $40 a year is spent by the average family for baked goods.

Of this amount about $45 is for bread and rolls. For every dollar spent for food, seven cents buys bread. A definite tendency toward greater consumption of bread is reported in the survey.

Twenty billion dollars is estimated to be the annual food bill of the nation. In 1914 the United States spent only one-third of that sum for food. A larger population, increased prices, better food and greater variety are given as reasons for the increase in the amount of money spent each year for food.

Helen Chandler
Cool looking and exquisite, a Dresden figurine warmed with sparkling, mischievous eyes and a flowerlike skin, is Helen Chandler, one of filmdom's newest stars. At the studio, where she's making "Day Break" with Ramon Novarro, she safeguards her charm with wise care. "Fruit juices are most important as daily foods," says Miss Chandler. "Nothing refreshes me like a glass of cold Welch's Grape Juice when late afternoon comes and the studio work goes on. Fruits contain necessary vitamins and are delicious."

Here is a tonic-beverage blended by Nature from sunshine and dew in the highlands of upper New York state. As a drink alone it delights the most jaded appetite. But in addition to delicious taste are those nourishing mineral salts, neutralizing acids and fruit proteins which stay hunger and build bodily vigor.

Make a month's test, then check results. Use Welch's as the fruit course at breakfast, luncheon and dinner. Drink it between meals for thirst and for quick energy at "fatigue-time." You will find that this pure fruit juice promotes functional activities which will bring your weight up or down to normal. Muddy complexions grow rosy and clear. Dull eyes take on a youthful sparkle. In Europe they call this "the grape cure."

A supply of Welch's always in your pantry is the most convenient form of health insurance. If one-third to one-half water is added, as many prefer, no other fruit is so economical. Make grape juice a family habit the year around, but insist on Welch's. Only then can you be certain that every step from the picking of the crop at its ripe best to the final sealing of the bottles is laboratory controlled.

MRS. HENDERSON AN APOSTLE OF MEATLESS DIET

Famous Capital Hostess Beguiled Epicures.

By GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

Washington, D. C., July 23.—[Special.]—Mrs. John B. Henderson, Washington's distinguished dowager who died a few days ago, was more than a clever real estate operator selling embassies to foreign governments; more than a famous hostess dancing with diplomats; more than a crusader pouring priceless wines into the gutter. She was also a "saditarian."

The word was hers. It was a combination, she explained to me just a few weeks before she died, of the Latin word "sanus," meaning healthy, and a derivative of the word "diet." It meant an apostle of the healthy diet, and the healthy diet, she proclaimed, contained no meat.

She began giving these famous meatless dinners about twenty-five years ago. At first everybody laughed. They were aghast at the lack of their beloved terrapin. But her chef improvised. His croquettes of oyster plant, his puree of peas, and his patties of parsnips, soon began to beguile the palates of the epicures.

Notables Captivated.

Wu Ting Fang was then the Chinese minister here. He grew so enchanted with her menu that he loaded a bundle of her recipes into his trunk when he went back home.

And Jim Reed, Missouri's former senator, dining there for the first time, remarked: "This is the first meal I've had without meat since I cut my teeth." But he added that he knew of an Indian tribe which outdid her. They lived entirely on odors.

The dinner she gave to the delegates to the National Society for the Study for Prevention of Tuberculosis is still talked of in this town of many dinners. Dr. J. H. Kellogg of Battle Creek, her great friend, told her that Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale was to be one of the guests and that he was mystified as to what she would serve.

When the guests assembled in the red tapestried state dining room of her Boundary castle they found engraved menus, and opposite each item of food was its caloric content.

Menu a la Caloric.

FRUIT SOUP.
Mock Salmon Sauce Hollandaise Cucumbers
Unfermented Concord Grape Juice Mixed with Appollinaris
Artichoke Cups and Asparagus
Broiled Sliced Pineapple Nut Sauce
Unfermented Catawba Wine
Bras a la Villeroie Mushrooms
C. C. Protose Timbale Tomato Sauce
Grapefruit and Cherry Salad Cheese Souffle
Iced Fruit
Mock Coffee

Everybody said it was a fine dinner, although nobody knew exactly what C. C. Protose timbale was.

Once Got Out a Book.

Of course this aversion to meat and fowl was not always characteristic of Mrs. Henderson. Back in 1876, when she and her senator husband were living in St. Louis, she got out a book called "Practical Cooking and Dinner Giving," in which she included a variety of tasty meat recipes. Indeed, in her chapter on food for the sick she recommends the meat of the ox because of "his wholesome food, cleanly habits, sweet breath, and clear eye."

Some of the precepts which she put into that book, however, she still followed. And just a few months ago, when she was living quietly, and with supersimplicity, she told me what she thought about correct dinner giving.

"Never have a servant ring a bell to summon the guests, or even the family," she announced. "A bell is all right for a steamboat. But there should be no noise in a home."

"If one has nothing for dinner but soup, hash, or lettuce, put them on the table in style. Certainly serve them in three courses. And you will really think it is a much better dinner than if it had been served up in a sloppy and careless manner."

Some Culinary Advice.

"Never overload a plate," she warned, "nor put too much on the table. If it's an informal dinner the guests ask for more. And if it's a formal dinner, there will be so many different things to eat that the guest won't want much of any one thing."

Nor did she like the custom of overloading the dinner hour. "Although many dinners take from three to four hours," she recollected, "I think every minute over two hours is durance vile. Why, after two hours you have no appetite left and conversation is very forced."

And to those of us who cook with a can opener she gave this rebuke:

"Of course, French cooking is better than American cooking. Because where the American woman regards cookery as drudgery, the French woman regards it as coquetry."

RICE CROP NORMAL, SURVEY OF SOUTH BY DEALERS SHOWS

Rice fields will deliver approximately a normal crop this year, according to estimates made this week by the Houston Merchants' exchange in Texas. The harvest indicated now is 40,711,000 bushels, as compared with 41,322,000 bushels last year, and a five year average of 40,814,000 bushels.

Low water levels in Louisiana forced managers to shut down irrigation systems in the last two weeks, as on some fields the water had a salt content which threatened normal plant growth.

The rice fields are said to be in good condition in Arkansas, but about 10 per cent below the average in Texas and Louisiana. Texas increased its acreage this year by 11,000 acres, but this was offset by reductions of 2,000 acres in Arkansas and 25,000 in Louisiana, making a total acreage for this year of 833,000.

COLLEGE COURSE IN FUDGE IS AT YOUR SERVICE

Tempting fudge, panocha, mints and cream centers made at home should have as fine grained texture as possible. A few simple directions followed during the process of candy making will insure a high quality product.

Advice from extension specialists of Ohio State university indicates several points important in candy making: To make the above kinds, it is best to dissolve the sugar by stirring until the boiling point is reached but not stirring after the mixture begins to boil.

Another suggestion is that the sides of the pan be washed frequently so that no crystals will form and drop into the sirup. After the candy is almost cold and there is no heat in the center of the pan, the mixture is cool enough to beat.

As soon as the track following the spoon begins to look dull, the candy is poured into a greased pan. Beat until the mass holds together, then knead until it is soft and creamy and the candy can then be made into rolls and sliced or molded into various shapes.

$14 WILL FEED FAMILY OF TEN HERE 7 DAYS

Shopping with extreme efficiency in mind should provide a family of 10 persons this week with sufficient food for seven days for $14 in Chicago, reports the bureau of home economics of the United States department of agriculture. The marketbasket figure is intended for enough for a family of three adults and seven children. The average for the nation for the foods outlined for the week would cost $14.86, on the basis of figures obtained in Chicago and 12 other principal cities in the United States.

CURRY OLD DISH, EVEN IN ORIENT; STILL POPULAR

Curry is an old dish even in the orient and means an ancient method of preparing meats and vegetables. In India the dish was known back in Vedic times, about 1,500 years before Christ. Inexpensive fish, whether fresh or canned, are suggested as suitable meats for curry by the United States department of agriculture. For variety the housewife also can use leftover meats, the heel or the round of beef, the breast or neck of lamb, or fresh or cooked pork. The curry powder itself can be purchased ready prepared in the United States for about 40 cents a bottle, or enough to last the average family for several months, the government household experts report. Spices are its main ingredients.

THEY COOK IT BEFORE YOU IN JAPANESE CAFE

One of Odd Restaurants in New York City.

BY FLORA MARTIN.

If your vacation leads you to New York City, instead of to the lakes of Wisconsin, the resorts of Michigan, or the summer playgrounds of the far western states, take advantage of your opportunities. Seek out some of the quaint restaurants on many of the city's side streets.

To a visitor New York presents a culinary view far more panoramic than that of any other city in the United States. The town abounds with restaurants peopled with and managed by natives of far countries. To be sure, replicas of the French, Italian, Chinese, and Swedish eating houses can be found in Chicago.

But, I venture to say, Chicago does not have a Japanese restaurant. Many queries as to why our city has overlooked such a possibility are still unanswered.

A Popular New York Place.

In a simple setting, not unlike that of the plainest American food shop, between 44th and 45th streets and fronting on 8th avenue is one of New York's Japanese restaurants. If it's unusual and healthful food you like, you'll find it there. It was not until the last few years that this place was known to many outside of the Japanese in New York. Today you will find races of all kinds there feasting on Japanese delicacies.

All the cooking is done before the diners' eyes over individual gas burners perched on each table. The waiter handles the double job of cooking and serving. Suppose you order suki yaki.

Into the spider which sits on top of the burner, the waiter-cook will put a piece of suet to act as a lubricant in greasing the pan. Before he has finished his task your curiosity will no doubt get the better of you and you will be plying him with questions as to the why and wherefore of each move.

What Suki Yaki Is.

After the ingredients are cooking, you might get him to give you a scant outline of his doings. He will tell you that suki yaki means sliced onions, soy bean jelly, potato gelatin, scallions, and small bits of celery, all topped by an abundance of leafy green spinach. A strange spectacle it makes.

This preparation cooks for about fifteen minutes with the cook deftly stirring it at intervals with what he calls "cooking chop sticks." Then small bits of beef are added and the whole concoction is seasoned with a mixture of chicken broth and soy bean sauce. The sugar which is sprinkled over the top gives the finishing touch to the flavoring. When the steam from the brewing vegetables has penetrated through the beef and cooked it sufficiently, it's ready to be dished out.

Rice is used as the foundation and the suki yaki is spread over the rice. Eat it with chop sticks or resort to the method of the western hemisphere, that of using a fork. It's good either way. There's an old saying, when in Rome do as the Romans do. It would not be a bad idea to follow that through and when in Japanese restaurants, do as the Japanese do. Launch forth, waving the chop sticks on high.

Rice Will Test Your Skill.

At first trial you cannot hope to be as adept and skillful with the instruments as the quick and light fingered orientals. But practice makes perfect. It's not so difficult to train the vegetables and the meat into line but wait until you get to the rice. That's where the skill is required.

If you are persevering, you'll be successful even if it does take what seems like hours for you to get the food near enough to your mouth to get any nutritive satisfaction out of it. Maybe you will hold out to the end, bravely carrying on with the chop sticks. But that all depends on how hungry you are.

If you were ravenous when you started by the time you have unsuccessfully balanced a few bits of food on the ends of the chop sticks, you may throw all caution and manners to the winds and as a last resort feebly go back to our early ancestors' method of eating—with your hands.

Household Hints

A rose petal or rose geranium leaf placed in a jelly glass when it is being filled adds to the flavor of the jelly and looks attractive. To keep a leaf in the center of the jelly, half fill the glass. When that begins to jell add the leaf and the rest of the jelly mixture.

Rugs and carpets in rooms in constant use should be brushed or cleaned with the carpet sweeper every day or two, and once a week thoroughly swept or cleaned with a vacuum cleaner. Dirt wears the fibers and when left it becomes increasingly hard to remove.

A few drops of hot water worked into butter for sandwiches helps to soften it.

Overdrapes which reach to the floor add to the effect of height in a low ceilinged room.

In making jelly, two-thirds as much sugar as juice is a good proportion.

Save the Food, Not Ice; Here's What Not to Do

Do not try to save ice by wrapping it in newspaper unless the ice is considered more important than the food, and do not put food in the compartment with the ice.

MALINES' MARKET IS VEGETARIAN'S IDEA OF PARADISE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MALINES, Belgium, July 23.—One million and a half "heads" of cauliflower in one place—on the market square of this quaint, old town of Malines—make you see green and white as far as your eye reaches. And if you look then at the 300,000 bundles of asparagus and at mountains of peas, you feel very much like praying for one good old fashioned steak or a crisp roast chicken to relieve you, after so much verdure.

Malines is the vegetarian's paradise. There isn't a time in the year, not even the hardest winter, when you can't get some sort of vegetable in this town. All Germany, Holland, Switzerland and Denmark eat the de luxe vegetables grown by Malines' peasants. Sort of super vegetables—too good to be canned and too expensive for ordinary mortals.

Every market day, Malines offers and sells from a million to a million and a half thick fresh cauliflower plants, a minimum of 200,000 bundles [each weighing around 2 pounds] of asparagus, during the short six weeks of the asparagus season, and hundreds of thousands of pounds of peas.

Some two thousand carts or motor trucks take the vegetables to market. Around 150 railway cars transport them to Holland, Germany, Switzerland, Denmark, England, and, of course, the leading Belgian towns. Malines super asparagus, super cauliflower and super peas are canned only when prices drop to a minimum.

Remarkable detail: the favorite dish of Malines peasants is a steak with French fried potatoes. And no asparagus, cauliflower, or peas to save your life!

This Russian Novel Staggers Slowly Along

Carries 37 Characters and Engineering Project.

BY EDITH WEIGLE.

I WONDER how many people in Russia would be interested in a novel of the United States, roughly translated into their own tongue, with thirty-nine principal and minor characters and dealing with political conditions, social trends, an engineering feat and philosophy? Perhaps not many. But the American public still is so keen about Russian books that "The Volga Falls to the Caspian Sea," by Boris Pilnyak [Cosmopolitan] will be heralded as an important work.

Perhaps it is. Its form is remarkable. It is put together in huge, unwieldy pieces, lacking in coherence and unity, but which have a purpose. By dint of much pondering one can see that the author, starting with a mass looming over his characters, takes them each apart to show how the movement of their early lives brought them to their present situations. The method is not new. It was worked out years ago on the American stage by the play "On Trial," which worked backwards, showing first the climax and then, by flash-backs, the events that led up to it.

"On Trial" was written so dramatically and used the method with such perfect precision that it served as an example for the same thing in other plays, stories, and film dramas. Mr. Pilnyak chose this system for his novel, but it proves cumbersome and heavy in his hands.

Why is it that so few Russian translations are vivid or lifelike? It is a great handicap to an author to have his prose put into stiff, awkward sentences that confuse and mystify the reader at every turn. The Russian mind is so different from the American, at best, that the mechanics of translations should be perfect, in order to lessen the gulf. I think Mr. Pilnyak's novel would be understandable if it were made to appeal a trifle more to the American mind, if its English was more spontaneous and natural. As it is, the book presents something of an enigma.

If you are going to read it you will find the following comments by the publisher most enlightening. These explanations point out the general drift of the story and clarify the author's intentions.

"'The Volga Falls to the Caspian Sea' is a novel of the effect upon human psychology of the soviet way of life," say the book's sponsors. "It pictures what happens to the human personality when it is torn loose from the forces which made it. Here are people—peasants, laborers, aristocrats, intellectuals—compounded, as all are, out of a whole train of inherited needs, desires, fears, and emotions; made into individuals, living their private lives by forces from the past. The soviet idea is that these yesterdays were false and untrustworthy; that man was at their mercy. . . . Henceforth, says the soviet, we will form your own tomorrows."

Near Moscow a project of the five year plan is under way. A river is being turned in its bed to flow in a new direction to fertilize new fields. Removed from restraint, the people in Pilnyak's book are connected with this engineering feat and live their lives in its shadow and in the shadows of their own pasts. One man is overcome by his own sex urge, which has just, until recently, been liberated. Another lives in memories of the past and in his devotion to mathematical formulas. Another willingly gives up his wife to her lover, but insists that she marry him.

They all seem, more or less, like figures in a gray miasma, like the strange creatures of a dream. A painter would say they are out of the drawing. The canvas is so cluttered with these twisted shapes that it is difficult to distinguish one personality from the other, or to tell their purpose.

Here is an example of Pilnyak's prose:

"There was a little girl, Manya. Her mother plaited her hair and Fyodor Ivanovich did not find time to tell her that he loved her. The stonework of monoliths is not by any means absolutely water tight; therefore, to avoid the damage due to pores it is necessary to build monoliths out of the same kind of material and interlock them with noncompressing and water tight ground, preferably of the Jura epochs; otherwise, the monoliths will crack because of the subsidence and will be washed out."

Of course, one wonders what the monoliths have to do with Manya, even in the fevered brain of Fyodor, and what it is all about, anyway. Pilnyak wanders far from the purity of style and beauty of Tolstoy and Turgenev.

Mental Tests Urged for Nurses, Patients at Hospital Session

Fourteen nuns, representing that many hospitals, conducted by their order, the Daughters of Charity, yesterday heard Dr. William M. Murphy, dean of the department of education at De Paul university, suggest mental tests for both nurses and patients. Such tests would determine in the former, he said, their abilities and type of personality; and in the latter, would reveal how far they were able to participate in their own cure.

"In addition to the academic and social intelligence required of nurses," he stated during his lecture on "Hospital Application of Mental Tests," "it is necessary also that they be extroverts—having a process of thought influenced primarily by external conditions."

Members of the Daughters of Charity have been engaged in the nursing profession for the last 300 years, being one of the oldest such groups in existence. The order, founded in 1633 by St. Vincent de Paul, is best known historically for its work in the seventeenth century at l' hotel Dieu in Paris.

2 PATCHED CURTAINS; PRESIDENT HOOVER'S, PRESIDENT MONROE'S

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 23.—[Special.]—President Hoover did not like it, a few weeks ago, when a scrutinizing scribe wrote a piece for the paper about a patched curtain in the White House. But Mrs. Hoover, it was learned today, recently bought an old manuscript in which President Monroe tells all about a torn lace curtain in the executive mansion, and how he dug deep into his own pocket for money to buy a new one.

The present curtain story caused President Hoover to issue a ban on the reporting of any such private memoranda.

The historic curtain story seemed of such general interest to President Monroe that he included it in his 48 page document entitled "Observations on Matters of Public Interest."

This manuscript, neatly written in the same handwriting that penned the Monroe Doctrine, came into the possession of a Washington rare book dealer. He immediately, so the story goes, thought of Mrs. Hoover and of her enthusiastic interest in all memories and memoirs of this capital city. He got in touch with her and she bought "Observations." The document, rolled up and tied with its faded blue ribbon, goes to join her valuable collection of Washingtoniana, which is now the richer by two curtain stories.

British Royalty Hosts at Party for Thousands

Mellon, Stimson, Laval, Germans Are Guests.

[Copyright: 1931: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, July 23.—[Special.]—With sunshine flooding the spacious lawns of Buckingham palace and the flower beds a rainbow of color, the royal garden party this afternoon was a brilliant scene. Ten thousand people, representing nearly all ranks of society, including delegates to the seven power conference which ended earlier today, were guests of the king and queen.

Their majesties, under a canopy of scarlet and gold, chatted with members of the seven power conference which considered Germany's economic distress. Secretary Stimson and Secretary Mellon were there, also Premier Laval of France and Chancellor Bruening with Foreign Minister Curtius of Germany.

It was the first time since before the war that French and German statesmen had talked together with the king and queen at the palace.

As the national anthem was played by scarlet uniformed guardsmen, the king and queen walked across the grass, greeting many of their personal friends in the vast throng, followed by the prince of Wales, the duke and duchess of York, Princess Mary and others of the royal family. The king was seen in animated conversation with some of the delegates to the international conference.

With such auspicious weather as today's, the annual palace garden party was one of the season's greatest fashion parades and, from the women's viewpoint, it was more interesting than for many years. Victorian frills and furbelows seen were worthy of that queen's own era. Feather trimmed "pork pie" and "bowler" hats, with quaint jackets and trailing skirts, predominated and the fashions were even more varied than those displayed at the last Ascot racing.

Soon after the palace gates were flung wide, the lawns were crowded with men in morning clothes and silk hats, the women in their clinging summery frocks. Here and there the brilliance of eastern potentates' apparel contrasted with the more sober garb of high church dignitaries. Leading politicians and prominent figures in the art, literature and business worlds mingled informally. The king and queen invited intimate friends to tea in a silver and gold hung Indian tent in the center of the lawn. Nearby was a roped inclosure for members of the diplomatic corps.

Northwestern Professor Wins Prize for Music

Prof. Arne Oldberg, director of the graduate department of the Northwestern university school of music, was informed yesterday that he had won first prize, $1,000, in the annual Hollywood bowl contest for musical composers. FASHIONS IN PARIS CALL FOR WOOLEN, KNIT PARTY DRESSES

PARIS, July 23.—(AP)—Wool clothes, heavy, rough and practical, and designed to withstand a long, cold winter, were Parisian couturiers' contribution to the world economic situation today.

A complete wardrobe of woolens from warm wraparound coats sparingly furred, to wool jersey evening gowns were featured in today's collections.

One house, favorite of American buyers for modish miss models, featured nubbly weave and diagonal wool coats designed with close fitting scarf collars, and big patch pockets. These have kimono or raglan sleeves, fitted waistlines and gently flaring skirt lines, and they are sometimes belted. Collars are occasionally furred, of upstanding shawl design. More often they are unfurred, with wraparound throat scarves.

Dresses featured tailored wools, both lightweight and heavy, with close fitted bodices, old fashioned gored skirts, flaring at the knee, and round, high neck lines. Dress sleeves are often tight to the elbow and slightly puffed above, reminiscent of the modified mutton leg. Hem lines are generally 12 to 14 inches from the floor.

Others were of bright colored taffeta and moire with fitted bodices and long full skirts, trimmed with yards of narrow ruching. The outstanding shade was black. Brown, wine red, wine purple and bottle green were other leading colors.

BY WILLIAM SHIRER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SIMLA, India, July 23.—While the British government is making much of its sacred treaty obligations towards the rulers of the Indian states, whose internal sovereignty Britain is pledged to maintain, news that the ruler of Khairpur has practically been superseded is significant.

One of the stumbling blocks at the round table conference, and one which will loom again at the coming meeting in London to draw up a new constitution for India, was the demand by Indian leaders that the people inhabiting the Indian states be guaranteed some sort of fundamental rights under the new constitution.

At present, these subjects have few if any rights. The various maharajas, absolute autocrats all, have the power of life and death over their subjects. It is a medieval system of rule.

At the conference the British government pointed out that they had treaty obligations with the Indian states and that the first principle in these treaties was that the sovereignty of the Indian princes should be maintained intact for all time.

This British stand was only backing up the royal pronouncements on the subject made first by Queen Victoria. After the bloody mutiny of 1857 had been put down and the control of India taken over by the government from the East India company, Queen Victoria in her famous pronouncement promised much to the native princes, many of whom had aided British troops in quelling the rebellion. "We shall respect the rights, dignity and honor of the native princes as our own," the good queen said.

In actual practice, however, the "privileges, rights, and dignities" of the maharajas have not been so sacred as the government then and now would like to have it known. Rulers have been deposed at the will of the British viceroy, treaties or no treaties.

U. of Illinois May Change Old Graduation Customs

Urbana, Ill., July 23.—There will be a discussion of a week-end commencement, to replace the present midweek system, at a meeting of the Alumni Association of the University of Illinois. The meeting will be held in the Union League club, Chicago, on Friday. Commencement festivities heretofore started with the baccalaureate sermon on Sunday, ending with commencement exercises on Wednesday. Under the proposed plan commencement week would start on a Friday and end on Monday.

Calls Bedouin Miner Maker of the Alphabet

Professor Takes Credit from Rich Traders.

The alphabet was the invention of a puzzled Bedouin mine foreman, who wanted to keep his record straight when questioned by his Egyptian taskmasters. That is the theory proclaimed yesterday by Prof. Martin Sprengling of the University of Chicago.

The spread of the knowledge of twenty-one symbols, the professor regards as due to the changing fortunes of a desert tribe, whose members carried on the results of the mine foreman's work. Thus from the lowly, the professor declares, came the most far reaching, perhaps, of all man's inventions.

Prof. Sprengling's theory is based on translations of the Sinai inscriptions, which have been a puzzle to archeologists for many years. Sinai lies just east of the Gulf of Suez. The inscriptions seem to have been placed there about 1,500 B. C. Many of the writings include invocations to Baalat, a feminine form of Baal.

The work of Prof. Sprengling would upset the theory of many other scholars, who, including many of the ancient Greeks, had attributed the development of the alphabet to the Phoenicians, those traders and navigators who are credited with the founding of Carthage and who were the leading Semitic people to dispute world power with Rome. Max Müller, and other students, in modern times have been inclined to regard the alphabet as coming from the highly developed Semites.

Prof. Sprengling believes, however, that the mine foreman could not understand, much less use the elaborate picture writing of his masters and so developed a system of his own, from which our twenty-six letters have evolved through the centuries.

Marriages and Divorces Decrease in U. S. in 1930

Washington, D. C., July 23.—(AP)—Census bureau data show that the matrimonial market rode the crest of a bullish movement from 1928 to 1929, in which marriages increased 4.2 per cent, then sell off 8.5 per cent in 1930. Divorces fell from 201,488 in 1929 to 191,630. Nevada has the highest divorce rating, 28.67 per 1,000 population.

150,000 Finns Trapped in Russia; Can't Quit, Except for Siberia

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, July 23.—The efforts of the Ingermanland committee of Helsingfors to organize relief for the Finnish population surrounding Leningrad have been without success. The committee appealed to both the Finnish and Estonian governments and the Red Cross organizations of these two countries to open negotiations with the soviet government asking permission for the residents of Ingermanland to leave Russia. But the 1,300 Finnish villages in the Leningrad district contain 150,000 people and neither Finland nor Estonia or the Red Cross could care for such a large migration.

Accordingly the Ingermanland committee appealed to the American Red Cross for a renewal of the aid granted to the Ingermanlanders in 1919-1921, reporting that if the soviets should permit those people to leave Russia it would be impossible to care for them without international aid.

The American Red Cross sent word through its Paris organization that it could not be of assistance and the committee complains that a fortnight later, when a small earthquake occurred in soviet Turkestan, the Red Cross cabled the soviet government at Moscow its deep sympathy, asking if it could help.

The cool and formal relations which have existed between Finland and Russia for several years also have hampered all relief efforts. From Estonia, Latvia, Poland and Lithuania thousands of food packages are mailed into Russia each month addressed to concentration camps in the far north and Siberia.

The soviet government has refused to permit Finnish families to send such packages to Russia.

Persons found communicating with relatives abroad are persecuted. The soviet representation in Helsingfors announced two years ago that packages of food, clothing and literature would not be accepted on the frontier.

Siamese King Plans to End U. S. Visit on Tuesday; to Canada

New York, July 23.—(AP)—The visit of the king and queen of Siam to the United States will end next week. This was announced tonight.

King Prajadhipok, who came half way around the world to have a cataract removed from one of his eyes, will leave with Queen Rambaibarni aboard a special train of the New York Central railroad on Tuesday and they will remain several weeks in Canada. They have maintained a royal household at Ophir hall, home of the late Mrs. Whitlew Reid, at White Plaines since their arrival, April 22, and will start their 12,000 mile homeward journey from there.

Charities' June List 10,049 Families Here

More Funds Asked for Future Needs.

With expenditures for relief among needy families greater during the month of June this year than for the entire first six months of 1930, the United Charities yesterday urged the public to "realize that the present period of unemployment still maintains the proportions of a major disaster."

Joel D. Hunter, superintendent of the charities, said that normally in June of each year is a decrease in the number of families requiring aid. This year June has been marked by a two per cent increase over May.

"The number of families helped in June, 1930, was 1,134, while 10,049 families received relief in June, 1931," according to Mr. Hunter. "This represents and an increase of more than nine times over the same period of last year. The amount of money expended for relief by the United Charities in the first six months of 1931 was $1,507,932 as against $269,103 for the same period in 1930.

"On examination our books will show that 81 per cent of the money expended by the United Charities this year has gone directly to the relief of families under our care and only 19 per cent has been used for the salaries of our trained workers, the maintenance of the main office and sixteen branch offices. Even with the nine fold increase of the number of families receiving relief, the United Charities has had only a slight increase in the number of workers needed to handle this emergency."

Cornerstone Laid for New Historical Building

The cornerstone of the New Chicago Historical Society building in Lincoln park at North avenue and Clark street was laid yesterday. There were no formal ceremonies. These will be delayed until the dedication of the building next spring. Among the articles placed in the cornerstone were photographs of the society's trustees, a list of members and contributors to the building fund, booklets containing the history of the society, and copies of daily newspapers.

'Chicago Safe,' Women Tell of Warnings

Making their way about Chicago this week thousands of girls and women have been seen wearing ribbons pinned on their dresses stamped with the names of Utah, Arkansas, Alabama, South Dakota and other states. Members of the Woman's Benefit association, they have come from every state in the Union and every dominion in Canada to attend the association's twelfth quadrennial international convention.

Now it was disclosed last night before the adjournment of the convention proper that none of the thousands of members has been lost, none has lost her purse, none, to any one's knowledge, has asked questions of strangers—unless policemen can be called strangers—and that, to the letter, they had kept insofar as possible the rules laid down by the association to guide their behavior in Chicago.

These rules of conduct, contained in a little booklet under a heading, "Travel Information," and issued to the members, adjured them to make no chance acquaintances and to remember to consult a policeman when in doubt.

"Members of the order," reads one rule, "should remember that they are women of self-respect and should at all times conduct themselves in a manner that will maintain and uphold the dignity and good name of the association. A lady is known by her deportment in public and especially when away from the restraints of her home town. No singing or loud talking on the streets, please, or in hotel lobbies, no making of chance acquaintances."

Another suggestion: "When going about the city of Chicago, members are especially cautioned not to make remarks to strangers or to ask questions of strangers. When in doubt, ask a policeman. Girls should go about in groups of five or more with one as leader."

"When traveling in Chicago, or while in Chicago, do not carry much money in your purse. Carry in your purse only enough to take care of each day's immediate needs. The rest should be concealed on your person."

"Do not go anywhere entirely alone or make the acquaintance of strangers. Chicago is not a safe place for indiscriminate acquaintances, men or women."

Installation of officers was held last night in the Palmer house, after which the convention adjourned, except for field conferences today and tomorrow.

Officers installed are: Mrs. Bina West Miller, supreme president, reelected; Miss Frances D. Partridge, Port Huron, Mich., supreme secretary, reelected; Mrs. Nellie C. V. Heppert, Akron, O., supreme treasurer, reelected; Miss Nellie E. Lounsbury, Warren, Pa., acting past supreme president; Mrs. Sallie D. Botsler, Dallas, Tex., supreme vice president; Mrs. Maude Sargent, Syracuse, N. Y., supreme chaplain, and Mrs. Carolina O'Brien, Vancouver, B. C., supreme lady of ceremony.

Miss Vittum said questions of national importance were not settled at Washington, but by the ballot box in the far corners of the country.

Mrs. Bina West Miller, supreme president, addressed the girls at luncheon, urging them to take up the selling of insurance as a business.

King in London Asked to Open Australian Bridge Next Year

SYDNEY, Australia, July 23.—(AP)—If King George is willing, he will stand in Buckingham palace some time next year and cut a piece of ribbon in Sydney.

The ribbon will be stretched across the entrance to the Sydney harbor bridge, now under construction and looked upon as the greatest engineering feat ever attempted in Australia.

If the king approves the program, elaborate electrical gear—wire and wireless—will be installed to make the long distance snipping possible.

The king's voice will be carried 12,000 miles by radio, and the sight of him speaking into the microphone by television, according to plans now under consideration.

Greek Church Festivities Start for Princess Ileana

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Rumania, July 23.—High mass was sung today by the Greek Orthodox patriarch, Myron Christea, a former member of Rumanian regency, at the start of the festivals preceding the wedding of Princess Ileana and Prince Anton of Hapsburg.

It was only an orthodox rite because the marriage ceremony, according to a papal agreement, must be Roman Catholic.

Royalty and aristocracy are flocking into Sinaia today. Queen Marie of Jugo-Slavia and King Alexander are expected on Sunday.

Club Women Opposed to Bathing Beach Weddings

New Orleans, La., July 23.—(AP)—The New Orleans Federation of Women's Clubs announces a declaration of war against loud radios at late hours and "beach weddings" at all hours.

Recently loud speakers in public places were ordered muffled by municipal authorities as a nuisance and women express the opinion that radios in private homes after bedtime are equally obnoxious.

The federation also decreed that weddings at beach resorts with the couples clad in bathing suits were improper and should be prohibited.

Movie Gossip from Hollywood

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., July 23.—[Special.]—Charlie Chaplin will not make pictures abroad, as he thought he would when he left Hollywood for a European tour last spring. Instead, Charlie will return soon, according to a cable from Paris sent to Billy Wilkerson, editor of Hollywood Reporter. Chaplin plans four talkies, and will direct two himself. The other two will be directed by Harry d'Arrast, a Frenchman, who is his co-director. The films will not feature Chaplin himself, but will be independent directorial ventures similar to his "Woman of Paris," which Chaplin made in 1922, and which, grossing more than $3,000,000, elevated Adolphe Menjou to film fame.

Chaplin's independent pictures will be distributed through United Artists releasing channels inasmuch as Chaplin is one-eighth owner of the United Artists corporation, it was said at the U. A. studio. Whether Chaplin is bringing his new "find," the Czecho-Slovakian girl, Maria Muller, back to Hollywood with him, was not stated in his cable.

Libby Chase Edits Movies of Her Travels

BY THALIA——

TODAY or tomorrow Libby Chase is going to set the date for the showing of the movies of the adventurous travels, largely by air, she and Alicia Patterson had in the south seas and the Orient last winter. It's to be about 10 days from now, and is to be held in the lecture hall of the new Kersey Coates Reed Memorial Library building.

Miss Chase has been busy ever since shortly after she returned in April—cutting and splicing the film, adding it into the proper sequence. There were about 5,000 feet altogether, a lot of film, but it has been curtailed and the finished picture will run about 2,000 feet. The task has been arduous, as the interesting and energetic Libby will tell you. She has been giving riding lessons all day long and so it's meant spending evening after evening with cement and scissors in the midst of a maze of celluloid strippings. She has finished all but pep now and is up to the doing of the subtitles. She is to give a lecture along with the pictures, telling all about the adventures. Miss Patterson is coming on from the east soon and will be here for the movie.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Everett Carr of 716 North St. Johns avenue, Highland Park, announce the marriage of their daughter, Marion Catharine, to Reginald Morgan Lloyd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Lloyd of Flossmoor. The wedding took place quietly on Sunday at the Carr residence.

Mr. and Mrs. T. Truxtun Hare of Bala, Pa., announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Katharine Hare, to Frederic McLaughlin II, son of Mrs. George D. McLaughlin of Lake Forest and 1300 Ritchie place, at a tea yesterday afternoon. Miss Hare was among the eastern visitors in Lake Forest during the polo matches last week. She was a debutante several years ago. The wedding is to take place next spring.

Mary Tilt's and Frederic C. Bartlett Jr.'s wedding yesterday afternoon at 6 o'clock in the drawing room of the apartment of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Tilt, at 1500 Lake Shore drive, was witnessed only by a small group of relatives and close friends. Miss Tilt wore a white crêpe marocain frock and one of the modish little oriental empire hats of black felt with a little white feather at the back, and her sister, Mrs. Arthur D. Bissell, who was her only attendant, wore beige crêpe, a brown hat, and had a corsage of talisman roses. The drawing room was bedecked with yellow roses banked with white stock against greenery. James Simpson Jr. was best man for Mr. Bartlett. The bride and groom are to sail on the Ile de France on Saturday for a European honeymoon.

Beach dispatches: From Bar Harbor—Eleanor McCormick won the third of the July yacht races, Miss Mildred McCormick finished seventh, and Patsy McCormick, Eleanor's sister, sailing in the M. D. I. class, failed to finish. . . . The McCormick girls and Mrs. Potter Palmer were among the colonists who entertained at the third Sunday evening buffet supper of the season at the Bar Harbor club.

From the White mountains—Mrs. John S. M. Gleesner arranged for a picnic last week by Mrs. Francis King, international garden authority, at the Maplewood Casino. Mrs. King spoke on "Color in a Michigan Garden" and her talk was illustrated by slides in color that enchanted the audience of 500. Besides the White Mountains Garden club members other local garden clubs were invited. Mrs. Timothy Anaberry of Washington, D. C., was chairman on arrangements and attended with her house guest, Mrs. Senator Borah. . . . Mrs. John Winterbotham has let the second of her cottages on Sugar Hill to Mrs. Budd Fleitman of New York. . . . Mrs. Winterbotham's daughter, Mrs. Ernest Poole, poured at last Saturday's tea following the tennis and golf at the Profile Golf club. . . . Mr. Poole's latest novel is on Macmillan's autumn list. . . . Mrs. Newton C. King and Newton King II. are arriving in a few days from Watch Hill to join Mr. Calvin C. Kings at the Waumbek at New Jefferson.

Home from Charlevoix Includes Several Chicagoans.

From the Chicago club at Charlevoix—Irving Randall Jr. and Lee Randall have arrived to be guests of Mrs. Elmer W. Johnson. . . . Mrs. Cyrus H. Adams and her daughter, Mary Hamilton Adams, motored to Charlevoix from Lake Forest in twelve hours, arriving on Tuesday. . . . The Albert Keeps of Sheffield, Mass., are visiting Mrs. Keep's mother, Mrs. Frederick H. Scott. . . . Last week's visitors included R. Douglas Stuart, John P. Wilson, and William E. McIlvaine. . . . Recent arrivals included Mrs. E. B. Butler and Mrs. Albert T. Evans, Francis S. Bangs, Mr. and Mrs. Earl D. Bond of New York City and their daughter, Miss Alice (who are the only New York members of the Chicago club), Mrs. George B. Douglas of Cedar Rapids and a party, Mrs. William B. McIlvaine, Mrs. Frederick H. Scott, and Edward Rowe.

Somebody didn't yell "Fore!" the other day and Mrs. Paul Walker got a very painful whack in the shoulder from a swift sailing golf ball. She can't, consequently, play golf for a while, and so she's going up to Oconomowoc to be at the Dixon place there for several days.

Currently pertinent: Mr. Arthur T. Aldis has been laid up at Alice home for an operation for the last week or so, but he is getting along fine now. . . . Rear Admiral and Mrs. Walter S. Crosley's house guest for the last three weeks, Mrs. Ellis M. Talbott, has returned to Richmond, Va. The Crosleys gave a dinner party at Great Lakes for her on Sunday evening. . . . The Country club of Evanston is to have its annual tennis tournament for the club championship, with the ladies' singles and doubles starting on Aug. 3, the men's singles and doubles beginning Aug. 1, the juniors' and the boys' competitions commencing on Sunday next. . . . Lura Schreiner, the Joseph Schreiners' daughter, is spending 10 days as the guest of Miss Betty Lane at Woodside Farms, the Lane estate just outside of Glenview.

Pope Gets Petition to Beatify Yankee Founder of Charities

VATICAN CITY, July 23.—(AP)—A petition bearing the signatures of 150,000 Americans asking that the first American saint be created in the person of Mother Elizabeth Seton, founder of the Sisters of Charity in the United States, was presented to Pope Pius XI. today.

Fifty American priests, nuns, and Catholic alumnae, led by Father Joseph B. Code of Saint Ambrose college, Davenport, Ia., gave the pope a huge scroll.

Speaking in English to the pontiff, Father Code, author of a biography of Mother Seton, recalled that the cause of beatification was introduced in 1907 by Pope Pius X.

"Mother Seton inaugurated practically every work of Catholic social welfare in the United States," Father Code said.

"Because she opened the first free school for children she has been given the title of patroness of the parochial school system in the United States. Because she sent sisters to take charge of the first Catholic orphanage in the country, her place among the homeless little ones of Christ is secure.

"Because her spiritual daughters opened the first Catholic hospital in the United States, her memory is venerated wherever sickness and suffering receive ministration."

The pontiff replied that he appreciated the zeal which brought them thousands of miles to present the petition and asked for a copy of Father Code's preamble, saying he would read it at leisure. He imparted the apostolic blessing on the order founded by Mother Seton.

Among the signers of the petition are Cardinals Hayes of New York, Dougherty of Philadelphia, and O'Connell of Boston, the archbishops of Dubuque and Portland, and the bishops of Brooklyn, Rochester, Little Rock, Davenport, Des Moines, Lincoln, Omaha, Sioux City, Grand Island, and Cheyenne.

Among presenters of the petition were representatives of Sisters of Charity mother houses in New York, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Greensburgh, Pa.; Convent Station, N. J.; Emmitsburg, Md., and Halifax, N. S.

Poor Mothers Renew Youth at Algonquin

All the fishing enthusiasts aren't the downtown business men who anticipate for weeks that trip to the northern lakes and spend hours in sporting shops selecting very special reels and flies. A good many are residents of the tenements and they are mothers of large families.

A mother working over a steaming washtub with three or four babies under foot, each crying for attention, while three or four more children in the other room of the tenement are getting into trouble doesn't present a very happy picture. You would never believe that mother would harbor a secret desire to sit on a log and fish and fish.

At Camp Algonquin fishing is one of the first wishes gratified among the tenement mothers. Most any morning, or evening when the fish are hungry, three or four women may be seen sitting on the log pier that juts out into the Fox river. Luck? Enough for a fish supper fried down by the river, just as many of these mothers used to do in their girlhood.

Fishing is only one of the recreations for a tenement mother. Although there are more children than mothers among the 500 vacationing in the camp, Mrs. Astrid Save, camp superintendent, makes certain that there is plenty of fun for a mother.

"Some of the women who are our vacation guests have never had a vacation in twenty years," Mrs. Save said. "They have been tied down year in and year out taking care of ever increasing families, stretching the pennies as far as they will go, making over old clothing, washing, cleaning, using every scap of food, cheering unemployed husbands. And for the first time to do just as they wish—that is almost too good to be true for these mothers."

A ten dollar gift will send a mother from the congested districts of Chicago to Camp Algonquin for two weeks. Her transportation is provided free by the Chicago and North Western railroad. Can you, reader, make possible this outing for a mother? All gifts should be directed to the cashier of THE TRIBUNE.

Gentlemen's Race 3 Miles; Vie as Fashion Plates

ROUEN, July 23.—France's most picturesque athletic contest—the "gentlemen's race"—is to be run in Rouen next fall. The distance is three miles, but the bizarre condition is that all participants must be dressed in "gentlemen's attire."

They must wear stovepipe hats, evening dress, tuxedo or morning clothes, white gloves, a white flower in the buttonhole, a monocle, and all must carry canes.

Last year it was the "Aga Khan"—all participants are entered under pseudonym—who won the race. The oldest "gentleman" was 56 years old, the youngest only 18. Thousands of Normans flock every year to the capital of Normandy to witness this strange event.

Grandmothers Like Occasional Interim with the Children

BY DORIS BLAKE.

One of those grandmothers who finds herself at fifty a perfectly healthy, active person with time on her hands after her sons and daughters are all married was complaining of a rebuff from one of her married daughters.

She is an up to date grandmother. Plays golf, swims, has her club and her charity interests, but the void in her life that is hardest to bear is the lack of child interest allotted her. And, after all, club life, impersonal charity interests, and civic duties are a pretty weak substitute for the real heart interests of a woman whose life has been largely devoted heretofore to her own family.

It seems the daughter referred to wanted to go away for a couple of weeks, but her small son, aged five, made her going impossible. The small boy has a capable nurse. The modern young mother didn't want to take the nurse along, consequently the boy couldn't go with her. So the young grandmother volunteered to do the child supervising while her daughter went off for a couple of weeks.

The suggestion was greeted with a remark to the effect: "What do you know about raising children, mother!"

Well, mother had raised four and made a remarkably good job of them, so far as the world would judge. The two weeks' event would have been in the nature of a holiday for grandmother, but she was denied it point blank.

Without going into any debate about whether the modern methods of child raising are so great an improvement on that of a previous generation or not, is it too much to ask of a married daughter that she give her mother a fling now and then at her old job of mothering? Even if the youngster got off his schedule for a bit, what of it? What if he even got an attack of the colic? The chances are nothing of the sort would happen, but what if they did?

That hard boiled attitude of some of the younger mother crop toward their respective mothers is one of the deplorable features of the new school of child raising—and it does seem as if the mother who went through her schooling with three or four or five children of her own is entitled to a bit of humoring at her old trade.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Try to Forget Him.

"Dear Miss Blake: I'm in love with a boy who cared for me once. We still speak to each other and I'm sure he does not go out with any one else.

"ANGEL."

His interest in you has passed, so you may as well try to forget him as quickly as possible. Angel.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Family Needs Assistance.

"My husband has been out of work for months, we are practically destitute, and the children are in need of clothing and shoes. I wonder if you can get these for them. The boys are 12, 9, and 6. The girl is 10. Anything you can do for us will be greatly appreciated. "MRS. N. B."

No work and a family of this size to take care of make the situation here a desperate one. Clothing and shoes for the children would help them a great deal.

Permanent Is Not for the Young Girl, Thinks Antoinette

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

I happened in on a household the other evening where the question before the house was whether Mildred, the seventeen year old girl, should be allowed the permanent she craved. All the other girls were having them, and she was a backnumber without one.

A little investigating proved that it's no novelty for a fourteen or, a fifteen year old to have her permanent. And the question about her use of rouge and lipstick was laughed at as too behind the times for anything. Not, of course, that we weren't aware that the fourteen and fifteen year olds must have their vanities and compacts. But this permanent business was what surprised me.

Now, I want to go on record as saying that permanents have been the greatest blessing ever to a large body of women. They have done more to keep and to make hair tidy and groomed than anything in our time. But there is no denying the fact that permanents, frequently repeated, have a drying effect on the hair unless one's hair has a super-abundance of oil—by which I mean that it is excessively oily—or, unless one goes in religiously before and after permanents for hair conditioning treatments.

And that is why I don't like to see the very young girls taking to permanents at their tender ages. Their hair, naturally, will for a time have the same resistance to "excesses" that their healthy young bodies have to lack of sleep, let's say. But I can't believe but that in time they will feel the drying effects of permanents begun too young.

Another thing. Even with the wider, looser wave that one can now get with a permanent, a permanent nevertheless lends a certain sophistication which I'd rather not see above young faces. It doesn't affect the older girls or women so. But it's just a bit too grownup for the girlish charm those youngsters never again will recapture.

Maybe I'm just old fashioned, but I hate to see these incomparable beauty years of the fresh, early teens bowed down with the accessories of later life.

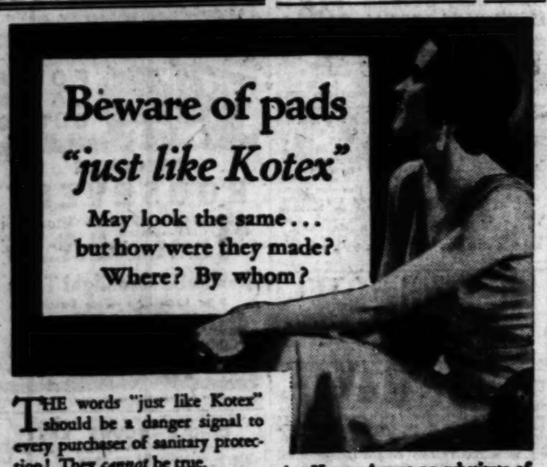
Beware of pads "just like Kotex"

May look the same... but how were they made? Where? By whom?



THE words "just like Kotex" should be a danger signal to every purchaser of sanitary protection! They cannot be true.

A pad, to be like Kotex, would have to be made in the Kotex factory. Unique, patented machinery makes Kotex from start to finish. Hands never touch it. Rigid cleanliness prevails. Materials used are superior, made especially for Kotex. The only way to make a pad like Kotex is to make Kotex.

Take no chances. Specify genuine Kotex. Accept no substitute of whose makers you know nothing. You know Kotex is safe. Hospitals used more than 10,000,000 pads last year. Their choice should be yours.

Kotex is adjustable. May be worn on either side. Stays soft.

FLOWER OF THORNS

By Marie Conway Oemler

SYNOPSIS.

Sally Rutherford, the last of a proud old southern family, following the ruin and suicide of her grandfather, determines to keep the heavily mortgaged Oakleigh plantation for her grandmother. A porter's lodge, facing the Dixie highway, gives her the idea of starting a hot dog stand. She arranges with a milkman, who says he is Mr. Forman, foreman of the Winstead dairies, to deliver milk. He is really Forman Winstead, only son of Henry Winstead, town banker and holder of the Oakleigh mortgage. The Rutherford ladies "didn't know" the Winsteads, of carpetbagging stock, whose estate adjoined Oakleigh. Sally's milkman helps her to make the Shack a success before she discovers his identity. By that time she is receiving the court of Lowndes Jennings, "a man of her own class." Lowndes takes Sally to his apartment to look at ancient glass she wants to buy for a customer. Unexpected callers come and Sally is thrust into the valet's bedroom. Lowndes' guests joke him about a rich fiancée.

INSTALLMENT XVII.

A TRAITOROUS LOVER.

Sally had heard. Some words she had missed, but she had been sitting with her head leaning against the bolted door, and she heard enough to learn that people were saying Lowndes was to marry Miss Gertrude Reinert. He was going to the Bahamas in the Reinert yacht. He and the wealthy young lady were very good pals. He had told her so. She felt no unease.

When the young men had gone, and the last sound of their descending footsteps had died away, Sally opened the door of Eph's room and stepped into the living room. She had on her hat and carried her coat over her arm.

"I sat with my head leaning against the door, so I'd know when they left. I couldn't help hearing a good deal of what they said," she said directly. "They seem to think you're engaged to Miss Reinert, don't they, Lowndes? I recognized Rodney Hall's voice, naturally."

"Braying ass! He certainly loves to gossip, doesn't he?"

"Does he know Miss Reinert very well?"

"Will you consider me a gossip, too, if I say that I was told he had pretensions to Miss Reinert and was a dismissed suitor?"

"Oh! Maybe that was why he sounded so spiteful! But then, he always sounds spiteful. I don't think I like him at all, Lowndes. But wouldn't it be better to have told him the real truth? About us, I mean?"

"I wish I could!" said Lowndes, sincerely.

"I have gotten myself into a false position, Lowndes. I didn't realize it until I found I was in Eph's bedroom. I had to sit there quite a while, you know. It made me think. And I thought it belittled both of us to seem so—clandestine. Wouldn't it have been better to let me stay right out here and tell them all the exact truth? That I'd come to look at that glass, and, besides, that you and I are engaged?"

"My darling, I couldn't think clearly," he said, with every appearance of honesty. "I could only think of you. I was afraid for you, Sally. I didn't know who they might be, but I simply couldn't bear the idea of the slightest gossip about you. I—I am horribly sensitive and jealous where you are concerned, Sally. I love you so much, my queen!" He was so handsome, he spoke with so much feeling, his magnetic gray eyes looked at her with so much adoration, that the girl's heart that loved him melted. When he held out his arms to her, hungrily, she walked into them.

The downstairs bell didn't ring, but there came a peremptory knock at the door which opened upon the veranda. Eph came out of the pantry, glanced dubiously at his master, and moved slowly forward toward the door. But Sally stood moveless beside Lowndes. No matter what happened, or who came, she would sit no more in a colored man's bedroom. Eph opened the door. Mr. Sam Winstead walked into the room.

It was the first time Sally had seen Sam Winstead in evening clothes, and she admitted, with a faint surprise, that he was really handsome and very distinguished.

At sight of her, hatted, her coat again on her arm, he bowed with an easy, smiling grace. If he was surprised to see her there, he did not show it. But his eyes met Lowndes Jennings' with a swordlike directness.

Lowndes' polite greeting was not without a hint of surprise. Plainly, he had not expected this visitor, and he was astonished to see him. At the same time he wished him to the devil—he had no reason to like Sam Winstead. He wondered, with an impotent anger, if this night's unlucky misadventures would never end. What in the name of ten thousand devils brought this fellow here? Was every unwelcome person he knew to bounce in upon him tonight? He understood, acutely, that Sam Winstead was one of the men who knew more about him than any man should know about another. Sam Winstead had been present at the most unfortunate and humiliating incident in Lowndes' career, and although Winstead had never revealed his knowledge and had remained absolutely silent, Lowndes felt that he was inimical. He had quietly but consistently avoided all further contact with the handsome and popular Mr. Jennings whenever it could be done without arousing comment.

"I came to examine some glass in Mr. Jennings' possession," Sally said, looking at Sam directly with her truthful brown eyes. "It is exactly what a valued customer of mine wants. Mr. Jennings thinks his cousin would be willing to sell it to me, as she really cares nothing about it."

Sam thought her unusually lovely tonight. As transparent as a crystal vase. A very rage of anger, cold, slow anger, rose in his heart against Jennings because of her. Hound! Cur! Liar! The reason for his coming hardened into irrevocable determination in his mind.

"That's fine," he told Sally, easily. "Do sit down and wait a few minutes more, Miss Rutherford. I'm passing Oakleigh, and I'll drive you home, if you're willing—and Mr. Jennings doesn't object." He smiled at them both charmingly, but somehow Lowndes felt that that offer of his was a command, and his choler rose. Also his uneasiness. He had never liked Sam Winstead, sensing in his mere presence a silently contemptuous estimate of himself. Now he knew that he hated him. Had the man known that Sally was here? Had he, indeed, come for Sally?

"O, thank you, Mr. Winstead, but Mr. Jennings is going to drive me home."

Mr. Winstead looked at her thoughtfully. Then he looked at Lowndes. He said mildly:

"I met Rod Hall and his crowd on the sidewalk, just getting out as I was about to come in. They told me you had a headache, Jennings, and that's why they were leaving so early; they'd rather expected to make a night of it. But they neglected to tell me you were here, Miss Rutherford. I thought Jennings was alone, and as I—ah—had—ah—something I wanted to talk over with him. I decided to come up." His look was again swordlike as it met and held Lowndes.'

"They didn't see me; they didn't know I was here," said Sally, after a second's hesitation. "I—I was foolish enough to hide. If I'd stopped for a moment to reflect I wouldn't have done so—why should I? But you must know what Rodney Hall is!" she finished, a bit lamely.

"I can well imagine what a yarn he'd spin in Miss Gertrude Reinert's ears if he discovered another pretty lady tête-à-tête with her fiancé" said Sam Winstead. "I was in New York a few days ago on business and I ran into Miss Gertrude and her mother, Jennings. They were on a shopping tour and were stopping at my hotel. I squired them a bit. Mrs. Reinert told me she and her husband were planning to announce their daughter, Gertrude's engagement to you as soon as they returned from the Bahamas. Now that the subject has come up, I suppose I'm to congratulate you?"

For her own sake he averted his eyes from Sally. He could not bear to see her stricken face. He had to hurt her cruelly, he knew, and he could have cheerfully strangled Lowndes for it. He kept his eyes fixed mercilessly on Lowndes.

The young man was fairly caught, as Sam meant him to be. He opened and closed his mouth; his face went red, then white; turned mottled; went white again, and stayed so. He was cornered and he knew it. He looked at his tormentor venomously, with naked hatred.

"Was that why you paid me this unexpected call, to ask me personal questions about my own private affairs?" He tried to speak coldly, with sarcasm. In spite of his efforts his face betrayed agitation.

Sam looked at him with pretended astonishment. "The Reinerts are, in a way, friends of mine. My dad thinks the world of Mr. Reinert. Mrs. Reinert herself confided the news to me, and Miss Gertrude heard what her mother told me, and didn't deny it. She seemed to believe the truth of it, and so did I. Naturally, then, I ask if I'm to congratulate you?"

Involuntarily, Lowndes raised his gray eyes to Sally's staring brown ones. Shame, anger, agony, along with a sort of sullen and dogged determination, was in his glance. Standing there as if frozen, she longed to cry aloud: "Tell this crazy man the truth, Lowndes; make him understand that you're engaged to me; that there's some dreadful mistake, because just as soon as we can manage it we mean to get married. Tell him I'm your promised wife, it is I whom you love!" Something above her will kept her silent, while the dreadful words banged about her ears like missiles. She waited for his denial of the preposterous assertion that he was bound to another woman and for his declaration of love and loyalty to herself, and did not speak. The three of them remained silent, as though under some horrid, dumb spell.

"Lowndes!" Sally found her voice and then called to him frantically. "Tell him the truth—that you're bound to me—not to anybody else! It's time now for the truth to be told, Lowndes!"

"Everywhere I go I hear the same rumor. The young lady's mother confirmed it, the young lady herself doesn't deny it. It only remains for you to confirm it, Jennings," said Sam, mercilessly. He would force Lowndes' hand. Sally must hear his affirmation or denial from his own lips. Either way, Lowndes stood to lose. And still he didn't speak. He couldn't. If he had ventured upon words just then he could have given utterance only to a string of wild profanity. O, damn this fellow for playing him such a trick!

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Proffered Pennies Too Soon.

I had just finished shopping on one of the upper floors of a downtown department store. As I was having my bundles wrapped, I took out my 7 cents for car fare so I would not have any delay when I boarded the street car with my numerous packages.

I was in a "brown study" and on entering the elevator to go down I handed the elevator operator my 7 cents. To add to the embarrassment, she said: "I am sorry, but we do not accept tips."

Sally's Guests Meet Star of "Hell's Angels"

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Perhaps one of the most exciting things that can happen to any boy or girl, or to any movie fan for that matter, is to meet his favorite actor face to face, not on the screen, but actually in real life. That's what happened to one hundred of us yesterday when we held one of our summer parties at the Chicago theater and that thrilling moment was provided by James Hall, star of "Hell's Angels."

That meeting was by no means the entire party, though, for we saw a show that was entertaining and complete as anything we've seen in the theater for some time. Marie Dressler and Polly Moran in "Politics" are something to chase the blues away and the laughs they give you per minute are simply inestimable. We followed them intensely interested through an exciting campaign in which Hattie Burns, played by that inimitable Dressler, ran for mayor.

She and her sister politician made speeches, held mass meetings, kept the men folks in their place, quarreled now and then, made plans to clear up the fair Lake City, and—what we liked most of all—kept us fairly rocking with laughter. Perhaps you think we weren't glad at the outcome of this political race when in the last bit of the last reel we saw Lake City's new mayor, Hattie Burns, triumphantly ensconced in the City Hall.

This was followed by the stage show with James Hall playing the principal rôle and acting as master of ceremonies in the production called "Personalities." A marvelous ballet composed of young women who could sing as well as dance and wear beautiful costumes, that screamingly funny Joe Penner, and a good orchestra contributed much to make this the good show that it was.

It seemed no time until it all came to an end although according to clock time it was an extremely long program and we regretted the fact that our party must come to its conclusion. And now if you find us grinning from time to time and with that far away look in our eyes you'll know we're thinking of Marie Dressler or still hearing James Hall sing "In a Five and Ten Cent Store."

Taking Money May Be Child's Way of Gaining Attention

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Yesterday a letter was printed in this column from a mother whose daughter of eleven takes money from her purse. Today's space will be devoted to an answer.

To analyze, as a consulting child's psychologist does, an individual case like this, one ought to have detailed information. The best I can do in this instance is to generalize.

Many children at one time or another take things that do not belong to them. So the first thing is not to be too upset, but to try at once to get at the root of the matter.

Where special studies have been made of children taking money [or stealing] the first thing we try to find out is what they spend the money for. This often gives a definite clue to the cause. Sometimes it is found to be spent for something that will give a child an importance which he misses—either at home or with his companions.

First, then, I should find out how my child spends the money she takes. It may simply be for something she wants and cannot have. Also, I would try to find out if there is some other girl or boy who is influencing her to do this.

Taking money is sometimes found to be a way in which a child makes up to himself—unconsciously—for something lacking in his life—in prestige in the home circle or in affection. This mother might ask herself, "Is my older child brighter? Am I prouder of her? Do I, perhaps, show her more affection than the younger?" If any of these things is true, then Ellen, the younger, may be—unconsciously again, of course—using this taking of money as a means of getting her mother's attention, even if it is of a sorrowful or disapproving kind. It would be well to make sure that she had her full share of her mother's and father's praise, love, companionship, and interest.

It is right not to punish her. But since she does realize at this age the distinction between mine and thine, she must be guided out of this kind of behavior.

It would be well to give her an allowance and tell her that if she wants something to come and ask for it and you can talk it over.

Pope Receives Editor.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Our little boy, Donald, aged 3, was watching two pet ducks diving and splashing in a pool in our yard. It began to rain and Donald, becoming very excited, called to his older brother, "O, Bill, take in the ducks. They will get all wet in the rain."

S. J.

Small John, aged 3, ran into a tree. As he came crying to his mother, he sobbed, "It isn't the hurt that hurts; it's the sudden stop you get."

Most Distinguished Wrap Is a Coverall

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Too much popularity is the surest way to kill a style for distinguished women. They are just naturally contrary, perhaps. Anyway, when everybody is wearing a certain kind of garment, off they go and start wearing something entirely different.

Everybody is wearing the short evening jacket. It's the most popular wrap in the world today, but the Famous Forty have abandoned the poor little thing right at the apex of its midsummer run. These distinguished ladies are wearing the longest of long evening wraps, coats that cover them up from throat to heels. I mention it because the long, long evening coat that these women are wearing looks like a great big style for fall.

Look at the sketch. This is the aristocrat of present evening coat fashions, favored by the smartest women in Paris. It is entirely furless. That's important—don't overlook it. It is made of lusterless silk crêpe. That is also significant, so tuck it away in your memory for future reference.

This coat is made by Madeleine Vionnet and is white crêpe marocain. The sleeves are particularly interesting, with their deep armholes and dolman inspiration. Fall daytime coats have such sleeves.

The wide turnover collar, held close around the neck by a diamond pin, is also a significant detail, as is the absence of a belt and the circular flare of the coat from 'way below the hiplins. This coat is making fashion history in Paris.

STATE HORSESHOE CONTEST.

The "champeen" barnyard golfer of Illinois is to be named during the Illinois state fair week at Springfield, next month. An announcement issued yesterday from the fair management said plans had been completed for the state Horseshoe Pitchers' association to conduct an open contest on Aug. 26.

O. G. Addleman of Springfield will superintend the tournament. L. E. Tanner of Anchor, Ill., is president of the state association. George Hilst, the state secretary, will list entries up to noon on Wednesday, Aug. 26. The sport will last two days, perhaps longer. The tournament is open only to citizens of Illinois. Aside from that, no one is barred.

The championship, in addition to the recognition, carries with it a gold medal and $50 cash.

The tournament will be conducted under the National Horseshoe Pitchers' association rules, and the winner will be recognized as the 1931 state champion of Illinois.

Entrants all will toss 100 shoes for points, and placement in the finals. The sixteen high men will form the class A contestants. They will go through a series of 15 games—7 of them on Wednesday afternoon and the remainder Thursday. The class "B" contestants will pitch off their final games Wednesday afternoon.

PATTERNS BY CLOTILDE

[Registered U. S. Patent Office.]

WOMAN'S OR MISS' DRESS.

A practical, inexpensive and charming model, suitable for general day wear, is shown here, and it is one that will lend itself perfectly to any of the cotton or silk fabrics. Capelets are popular and solve the sleeve problem, and this one is especially soft and pretty, falling softly over the shoulders, as it does. The seaming of the skirt flounce corresponds with the outline of the lower edge of the collar and aids greatly in giving the effect of slenderness through the hips.

The pattern, 3128, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years, and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 38 requires 3¾ yards of 35 inch material.

INQUEST JURY ABSOLVES GUN VICTIM'S WIDOW

But Mrs. Scott Must Still Face Police Charge.

Mrs. Hazel Scott, 35 years old, was exonerated yesterday by a coroner's jury after an inquest into the death of her husband, Harold Scott, 37 years old, a paint salesman, who was found dead in death in the bathroom of the Scott home at 305 South Oak Park avenue, Oak Park, a week ago.

The jury found that Scott had committed suicide while temporarily insane, but its verdict did not free Mrs. Scott of a manslaughter charge that has kept her in custody since her husband's death. She was returned to the county jail to await a hearing on this charge before Justice of the Peace Frank Aring in the Oak Park police court at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

Widow's Son at Inquest.

Mrs. Scott took the witness stand yesterday to tell again her story of Scott's death after a visit to a Chicago speakeasy on the night of July 11. She requested that her son, Dale, 19 years old, be allowed to hear her testimony and the boy took a seat beside Coroner Bundesen, who conducted the inquest at the Oak Park police station.

Mrs. Scott said that her husband had drunk heavily preceding his death, that his health was breaking and that he often became morose, especially when drinking. Otherwise, she said, their eleven years of married life had been happy. Once, she said, her husband had tried to jump from an airplane in flight and he had often inquired about the experience of death.

Scott had drunk whisky and beer at a speakeasy on Archer avenue and had started a quarrel, driving recklessly when they returned home with J. D. Pedley, a fellow salesman, and Mr. and Mrs. Leland Page of Aurora, Mrs. Scott testified. The quarrel continued when the guests left, she said, and her husband had mentioned taking his life. She recounted the struggle which led to the single shot that caused his death.

Employer Is a Witness.

F. J. Hurtz, vice president of the Bradley-Vrooman Paint company at 311 South Dearborn street, Scott's friend and employer, said that Scott believed he had cancer, although an examination showed no traces of the disease. Lately, Hurtz said, Scott also had become obstreperous while drinking. In night clubs, he said, Scott was known to pull down chandeliers, tear up menus, and fight with the waiters.

Seeking Parents of Baby Found with Indian Woman

Rutland, Ill., July 23.—[Special.]—A search was launched from this city today for the mother of a tiny, flaxen haired baby girl, believed to have been kidnaped by an elderly Indian woman, with whom the child was found on a city street. The child, tightly bound to a small wagon, was discovered by police and public welfare workers here last Saturday morning. The woman at first insisted the child did not belong to her. Chicago authorities were notified.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 23.—[Special.]—With six different beneficiaries fingering the six different wills in which the late Mrs. John B. Henderson disposed and redisposed of her plentiful pennies, the seventh beneficiary remains utterly indifferent as to whether he ever gets his legacy, the pretty pictures that filled the dowager's Boundary castle and spilled over into loan exhibits in embassy drawing rooms.

DR. W. H. HOLMES. [Harris & Ewing].

Of Mrs. Henderson's own artistic ability, he had this to say, as he looked at a trio of her pictures:

TRIES TO PREACH IN BLACKSTONE LOBBY; IS HELD

The Rev. W. A. Archibald Shipway, vicar of St. Mark's Episcopal church at San Diego, Cal., was taken to the detective bureau in a highly nervous condition last night after he had attempted to preach a sermon in the lobby of the Blackstone hotel, where he was staying.

The minister resisted two policemen sent to arrest him so vigorously that they had to call for reinforcements. Later he told police that his mind had become unbalanced because of domestic troubles. He is 47 years old, he said.

YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED

MINER SLAYS 5, WOUNDS 4 ON MURDER SPREE

Kills Wife, Her Sister; Others on Street.

Mercer, Pa., July 24.—[Special.]—Seized with an obsession to kill, Marko Demofonti, 46 years old, a mine worker here, today armed himself with a shot gun, a revolver and a knife, and before his capture could be effected killed five persons and wounded three others.

The crazed man's first victim was his wife, whom he shot to death in their home. He then turned his guns on his sister-in-law, Mrs. Alfonso Fastetti, who was visiting them and killed her before bursting out into the street on his mad rampage.

He marched down the village street, screaming and yelling, shooting left and right. Mrs. Pete Cecilian, a neighbor, and her 10 years old son were shot when they ran out onto the front porch of their home to see what was happening. The woman died later in the Mercer hospital.

Slays 2 More in Yard.

Striding across the street, Demofonti shot and killed Mrs. Frank Takela and Gartano Bevilaqua as they stood in their door yards.

Then, with both weapons empty of ammunition, he threw them aside and waving his knife he attacked Mrs. Mike Bana and her 12 year old daughter, whom he severely wounded.

Demofonti's wholesale murdering was halted when George Masters, a village store keeper, shot him in the hip. The killer dropped to the ground and was captured.

Questioned in the hospital, he told authorities that he had been driven insane by a poisonous substance given him by the husband of one of his victims. As he told his story he seemed entirely rational.

Says He Was Poisoned.

He said he had suffered terrible pains in his stomach from the poison that he alleges was given him by Pete Cecilian, a miner. Mine officials declared that Demofonti had worked in mine No. 2 of the Sharon Coal and Limestone company for the last 10 years and that he was sober and industrious, but relatives claimed that lately he had been acting queerly.

Demofonti said that he arose yesterday morning with an obsession to kill after spending a sleepless night tossing about in bed. Following Demofonti's capture search was made for the 2 year old daughter of one of the women shot. Bystanders claimed that the child also had been wounded. No trace of her could be found.

Abner Wasserman, 35 years old, 7717 Essex avenue, was charged with manslaughter by police yesterday after his truck had killed 3 year old Jeanette Petroll, 5945 South Albany avenue, and injured her father, John.

The accident occurred at 59th street and Albany avenue, where Wasserman's truck overturned and crushed the perambulator in which the child was being pushed by her father.

Wasserman told police that he lost control of the truck in dodging a speeding automobile, causing his vehicle to overturn.

Inquest Is Delayed.

A coroner's inquest in the case was continued until Aug. 6 in order that Petroll might testify. His condition is serious, it was said at the Southwest General hospital.

This death and one other raised the year's automobile toll for Cook county to 632. The victim:

Two Burned in Crash.

Two persons were burned severely and a third was injured when a bus and an automobile collided last evening at Sheridan road and Melrose street, setting the smaller car afire. Those burned are Irving Janssen, 33 years old, and his wife, Grace Bradbury Janssen, 28 years old, of 1414 Pratt boulevard. The injured is Miss Molly Simon, 28 years old, of 528 Cornelia street, a bus passenger. All were taken to the John B. Murphy Memorial hospital. Edward Clark, 3352 Seminary avenue, was driving the bus. The gasoline tank on the bus burst, the flames enveloping the auto. Janssen dragged his wife, her clothing, burning, to the street and beat out the flames.

UNIQUE STATUE AS MEMORIAL TO VICTOR LAWSON

Boston, Mass., July 23.—[Special.]—One of the greatest and at the same time unique statues which ever has been turned out by New England cutters, was completed today for shipment to Chicago where it will stand as a memorial erected by the employes of the Chicago Daily News to its late proprietor and editor, Victor F. Lawson.

The memorial, a heroic figure of the crusader, with drawn sword and ready shield, was designed by Lorado Taft, and executed from a solid block of extra dark Quincy granite, by the Henry C. Smalley Granite company of Quincy, after a year's work.

The entire statue, more than 18 feet high, has been polished to resemble bronze and is said to have been the first piece of granite so treated since the Egyptians, nearly 5,000 years ago, last produced similar works of art.

The death of Mr. Lawson occurred in 1925. The statue is to be placed on his lot in Rosehill cemetery, Chicago.

WOMAN INJURED BY WHALEN CAR; STORIES DIFFER

New York, July 23.—[Special.]—The authorities today were investigating conflicting accounts of an accident that occurred in Brooklyn last night when an automobile owned by Grover Whalen struck and slightly injured a Mrs. Cappola, 23 years old.

According to witnesses, the former police commissioner's car, containing Mr. Whalen and Joseph E. Ridder, publisher, who were on their way to the Sharkey-Walker fight at Ebbets field, knocked down Mrs. Cappola and didn't stop until it had gone a block further, when it was overtaken by Donald McMahon, a world war aviator, who is night manager of a shop on Bedford avenue near the scene of the accident.

Mr. Whalen, however, denied that his car went on without halting until pursued by McMahon.

Chiang Forces Communists from Kiangsi.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

SHANGHAI, July 23.—Retreating communist troops which have been defeated and driven east by Chiang Kai-shek's forces are leaving a red trail of death in their wake, and today had massacred more than 15,000 inhabitants of Lungyenchow and Yungting, near the Fukien border.

The entire red force has been driven from Kiangsi and now occupies the city of Chaochow, a few miles north of Swatow, as well as the cities in which the massacres occurred. The Canton rebel army is meanwhile planning a drive northward into Hunan against the central government forces.

Harvard Graduate Killed.

Y. L. Tong, a graduate of Harvard university, who was shot during yesterday's attempt to assassinate Minister of Finance T. V. Soong, died today. When more than 30 shots were fired at the minister in the railroad station here, at least five of them struck Tong. A dozen Chinese bystanders were wounded. Tong was secretary to Soong.

Soong today issued a statement in which he declared the attempt on his life to be the work of communists, declaring that he had been warned that he was to be killed.

Expect Reign of Terror.

The impression prevails that the attempted assassination of Soong marks the beginning of a reign of terrorism throughout China, as Gen. Chiang Kai-shek's anti-communist war has reached a crucial stage. The Canton rebels are planning to start their anti-Nanking drive on Aug. 1, and war sympathy in northern Canton is already proceeding in northern Kuominchun, where the militarists are attempting to defeat Marshal Chang-Hsueh-liang, who is Gen. Chiang Kai-shek's chief supporter.

An authoritative dispatch from Peiping today said Chinese authorities at Tsinanfu had surrendered Dr. Francis F. Tucker, American missionary held for fatally shooting a Chinese employé of a mission hospital, to the American consul there. He will be tried under United States laws in China, rather than under Chinese laws.

Buffalo, N. Y., July 23.—(AP)—An airplane piloted by Brother George Feltes, S. J., flying missionary, on his way back from New York to his post in Alaska, crashed in a field near the Municipal Airport as it was coming down to land at the port this afternoon. Brother Feltes was not injured.

BATTLES FOR RIGHT TO DECIDE WRIT TO FREE STEPHENSON

Indianapolis, Ind., July 23.—[Special.]—Attorneys representing Judge Harry Crumpacker of La Porte county Circuit court this afternoon filed briefs with the Indiana Supreme court protesting against a writ of prohibition granted temporarily by the Indiana Supreme court which prevents Judge Crumpacker from hearing habeas corpus proceedings to free D. C. Stephenson, former Ku Klux Klan grand dragon and Hoosier political czar. Stephenson is serving a life term at the Indiana prison at Michigan City for murdering an Indianapolis young woman.

D. C. STEPHENSON. [Acme Photo.]

The Crumpacker brief sets out that a writ of prohibition is a statutory writ and should be issued only to prevent great impending injury. Habeas corpus action, it says, is a constitutional writ, a writ of right.

"If the Supreme court could assume the power to issue writs of prohibition to stop habeas corpus actions," the brief says, "there would be no limit to the control the Supreme court might exert over the lower courts and general assembly. In time it would become a court of original instead of appellate procedure."

FORFEITS BOND, ORDERS ARREST OF SWINDLER

Judge Philip J. Finnegan in Criminal court yesterday forfeited the $7,500 appeal bond of Frank J. Dore, 901 Harvey avenue, Oak Park, and issued a capias for his arrest. This action was taken when Assistant State's Attorney A. C. De Witt reported that Dore has been free for 14 months when he should have been in prison serving a sentence of one to ten years for obtaining $9,000 through a confidence game. While the case was appealed to the Illinois Supreme court Dore was free on bond. The sentence was upheld in May, 1930, but through an error the sheriff did not take the proper action against Dore.

GUS' ACT GOES OVER BIG TILL 2 JUGS APPEAR

Gus Paulis, 55 years old, bared his upper arms, bulged his muscles, and upturned his calloused palms last evening when Detectives Harold Seymour and Harry Wright entered his flat at 747 West Congress street. Then he added to his pantomimic act.

"I'm a coal heaver, and I work hard all day long," he protested loudly as the policemen asked a few questions pertinent to his occupation. "Look't those muscles, look't those hands. Only hard work—coal heaving—makes 'em that way."

As Paulis orated, Seymour prowled about the flat. He emerged presently holding two brown jugs, containing colored spirits. Paulis halted short. He eyed the jugs. "What are you?" asked Seymour ominously, holding the jugs closer to the self-professed coal heaver.

"I'm a bootician," confessed Paulis. He was taken to the "jug" of the Des Plaines street station.

Everything Cheaper, Players Find.

Golf, like the cost of living, is going through a period of financial deflation this summer. A survey of private clubs on the north shore yesterday showed golf can be played more economically than at any other time in the history of the sport.

Private clubs especially have felt the pinch of economic conditions and are in the process of trimming their cost of operations. These clubs, which expanded rapidly during the last few years, now are making adjustments to meet the changing conditions, and the result has reacted favorably to the player who desires the privileges of a private club at a moderate price.

Membership Fees Sliced.

"Of course, our memberships are cheaper than they were a year ago," said the president of a large club on the north side. "Two years ago we had a big waiting list, but now we are not seeking memberships at 50 per cent of their former cost.

"We have dropped more than 100 members during the last year for nonpayment of dues, and we are offering memberships for a song to fill our roster and get players on the course."

Nearly every club visited offered the same story. One of the larger clubs, which in the times of prosperity sold memberships for $1,500, is now offering them for $500. This is an exception, most of the clubs having reduced the cost of joining anywhere from 25 to 50 per cent.

Guest Fees Reduced.

Guest fees are another item materially reduced at many clubs. Time was when a member was charged from $5 to $10 to bring a guest out to the club on Saturday or Sunday. The cost now averages around $2.50 on week-ends and $1 on week days, with reduction having been made to allow members to bring out guests.

The dining room, once a most profitable source of revenue, has been forced to bow to the new order. The price of meals has been reduced at several clubs from $1.50 for dinner to $1, and luncheons are being served for 60 and 75 cents where formerly they were a dollar.

One manager said that last year his club made nearly $10,000 from the dining room alone, but that so far this season it is merely breaking even.

Caddy fees are 20 per cent lower than they were a year ago. The charge of $1.50 a round, which formerly prevailed, is now $1.25 and in some cases $1. This condition exists generally throughout the district, it was learned.

A caddy master at a north shore club admitted that many members were carrying their own clubs these days, whereas formerly they always had a caddy at their command.

Lavish money prizes and entertainment at the annual big invitational events are being discontinued. A member of the entertainment committee of one club said it had reduced the cost of prizes from $2,000 last year to $800 this year. The entry fees for these affairs also were reduced in most instances, from $10 to $5 or in similar ratio.

Maintenance Cost Drops.

Cost of maintenance has been materially reduced at several clubs by adopting more efficient methods and by the drop in the cost of supplies. Coal is cheaper, the cost of rubber hose for the sprinklers has dropped, and labor is not as high. Last year a club spent $38,000 for maintenance, but this summer will reduce this item by 30 per cent.

The player himself can purchase equipment more cheaply this year. A pro pointed out that a set of the best matched woods, which retailed for $45 a year ago, now can be obtained for $25 or $30, and that a ball which formerly cost $1 can now be purchased for 65 cents.

This same pro admitted that nearly all the players at his club are using a cheaper ball. "I seldom have a call for the $1 ball any more," he said.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Generosity got the better of the Cubs yesterday. They gave away runs in a manner that was painful to behold and the Braves couldn't avoid winning the second of the series, 6 to 3. What with passes, errors and punctured batters, the Boston fellows were required to use only two of their five hits in the collection of the half dozen runs. Now, because of their dilatory tactics, the Cubs are back to a point eight games away from the top.

The principal defect in the Hornsby machine was Ed Baecht, the big right handed Coast league graduate. He was wild when he started and wilder when yanked. Despite his erratic inclinations he gave up only one run in three innings, his mates meanwhile presenting him with a 3 to 1 lead. But he held it only until the fourth when he went away with the bases loaded. Then Bud Teachout was chosen to clear up the situation, but some errors along with a homer by Wallie Berger moved four Braves over the plate and put the Cubs out of it for keeps.

Cubs Help Averages.

About the only worth while thing accomplished by the Cubs was the fattening of their own batting averages. By the end of the third inning they had made eight hits against the southpawing of Ed [Dutch] Brandt, but any notion that Brandt intended to fold up was quickly dispelled. Once he got into the lead with that four run rally in the fourth he took the job seriously and in the last six innings surrendered only four hits, and those were widely scattered. Two of the four were a single and a double by Hornsby, who previously had aided the scoring with a two bagger.

Brandt seemed to take special delight in annoying Barton, the new outfielder from the Coast league. Barton thinks southpaw pitchers should be barred and that's about all he has seen since being promoted to regular employment. Against Brandt he made five appearances, but none was profitable. In two of the five attempts he fanned. Hack Wilson also fanned when summoned as pinch batter for Teachout in the sixth.

Baecht started as if he never had heard of such a thing as a home plate and it was more a matter of luck than skill that the Braves didn't get off to more than a one run lead. Maranville walked and Urbanski was hit in the ribs. Hornsby was given an error when he failed to stop Berger's bounder, Maranville scoring. Worthington grounded to English for a double play, Sheely then struck out.

The Cubs used up four hits to get two runs in the second. With one out Grimm singled to right and hiked to third on Hemsley's single to center. Baecht drove one back at Brandt and it caromed toward right for a single, Grimm scoring and Hemsley moving to third. Jurges laid down a squeeze bunt, but the ball rolled directly to Brandt who shot it to Cronin in time to nail Hemsley at the plate. English singled to center, scoring Baecht and putting Jurges on third, but a grounder by Cuyler closed the inning.

Taylor's Hit Scores Hornsby.

Three more Cub hits in the third were good for only one run, making the score 3 to 1, but not for long. Barton fanned for a starter and Hornsby doubled to right center. Taylor's single to center scored the manager. Grimm also singled, but just before this Taylor had been thrown out in an attempted steal, so the hit caused no complications.

The active fourth, which gave the Braves four runs on one hit, opened with Cronin being hit by a pitched ball. As he was strolling down to first he made scathing reference to Baecht, and the big pitcher dashed right over to obtain satisfaction. Before Baecht could accomplish anything other players got between him

They Had to Wake Up Scribe as Yacht Reached Mackinac

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Thus spoke Frank Blatchford Jr. as he struggled to rouse a sleeping landlubber in the starboard cabin of the Quicksilver II. along about 4:30 o'clock this morning.

And the landsman, who had been dreaming that he was serving a gun for Commodore Perry at the battle of Lake Erie, blinked his eyes and said, "What island—Skilligallee?"

"No," replied Frank with some asperity, "Mackinac!"

And so began the end of the part Quicksilver II. played in the Chicago Yacht club's 24th annual race from Belmont harbor to Mackinac island—331 miles with the most whimsical weather sailed in many a watch. Three others in the fleet of 20 finished ahead of the boat owned and skippered by Col. Albert E. Peirce and she was sixth in the cruising division on a corrected time basis.

Calm, Then More Calm.

Young Mr. Blatchford chuckled at length over the landlubber's query about Skilligallee, and therein lies the story of the home stretch run made by the Quicksilver II. Skilligallee, which sounds like the makings of good football chant, is really the Ile aux Galets, a famous point on the route to Mackinac. It is so named on the maps in the charthouse of the Quicksilver II., but lake sailors who never majored in French ground it up into Skilligallee many a moon ago.

After rounding Point Betsie in the late afternoon Monday, the Quicksilver II. ran into another one of those calm stretches which hindered the entire fleet frequently during the race. First, there was a rather lolling run alongside the sandy reaches of Sleeping Bear Point. Bagheera and Elizabeth, the Quicksilver's two most persistent rivals throughout the race, were hanging on far astern, like two puppies pursuing a larger critter who had cornered the market on a tasty bone. But the bone, a southerly breeze, wasn't to Quicksilver's liking, and try as she might, she couldn't shake off the Benedict and Williams boats and they crept up yard by yard.

She Beat One Boat Anyway.

The trio passed into the Manitou passage proper and then began a battle in which all of them went through every sailing trick their crews could think up. They came about, they jibbed, they ran up this flimsy canvas and that, but none could find the right answer. There was some talk on the Quicksilver about trying a few shirts and handkerchiefs on the spars, and Skipper Peirce remarked that while the Bagheera and the Elizabeth were hanging on, the Quicksilver had certainly run away from the Manitou lightship, anyway. This bulky, scarlet steamer is anchored permanently in the passage east of the two Manitous.

It was just about this time that the southerly breeze, leaning slightly to westward, decided to quit fooling and give the sailors a couple of honest shoves. The Quicksilver needed no urging, and within ten minutes she was running along with more celerity than at any time during the race, with the possible exception of Sunday night's blow.

Trouble Brews in Stretch.

A northbound steamer reputed to make 12 knots an hour was going full speed over to the east, but it took it nearly half an hour to catch the Quicksilver, and the crew of the latter judged that she was easily doing 10 knots.

Then came Beaver island over west about midnight and disaster to the Quicksilver. It was the big, billowing spinnaker, which had been doing noble with the freshening southerly breeze, that came to grief. The sheet holding the sail was fastened first to a wooden deck cleat, and then wound around one of the brass winches with which the Quicksilver's deck is studded. The cleat suddenly loosened, snapped, and sprang overboard, and the pressure of the wind and the strain caused the sheet to break, the

SHARKEY AND WALKER.

JACK SHARKEY of Boston lost pugilistic prestige by failing to secure better than a draw against Mickey Walker in Brooklyn on Wednesday night. It was a mighty lucky draw for him at that, according to those at the ringside. Joey Jacobs, manager of Schmeling, may now, if he wishes, ignore the Bostonian's importunities for a return bout and get away with it with more justification than before. That, however, does not wipe out the fact that Jack outpointed Max for the rounds preceding the foul which placed the world title with Schmeling.

Well, The Wake thinks Sharkey did not show his true ability against Walker. We hardly can be accused of partisanship for that opinion, because we never have been a Sharkey enthusiast. It so happens we never have seen him fight a satisfactory battle. We saw Jack against Dempsey in the latter's "comeback" effort before meeting Tunney the second time, saw Jack lower his guard to argue with the referee and receive a crack on the chin from Dempsey's alert left mitt.

We saw Sharkey sprawl through ten rounds at Miami to receive a ten round decision over Willie Stribling. We saw him foul Phil Scott at Miami and finally receive the verdict when the foul was not allowed. We saw him outpoint Schmeling and then lose on a foul—the best he had ever done before our eyes until the foul. Even then we were among the few who thought Max probably would have won had the foul not occurred, on the theory that Max had taken everything Jack had and still was strong and looking for more.

So we hardly can be biased in thinking Sharkey's effort against Walker was not his best. It is difficult to "key" for a contest which you regard lightly. Football coaches will tell you that. That, perhaps, was the trouble with the Bostonian.

If Schmeling's manager thought Sharkey's latest battle was his best Sharkey still might be Max's next opponent. We never think boxers try to choose their adversaries. But a wise manager, even if he thinks his protégé will defeat all rivals, is likely to choose one whose style is best solved by his own man. That is just prudence, or financial prudence. We still think Schmeling, and probably Jacobs, will wish eventually to wipe out whatever credit Sharkey gained by outpointing Max in the early rounds of their title bout. Sharkey may be walking with a cane before the bout eventuates, but it should come some time.

So far as Walker is concerned, he proved himself capable of meeting heavyweights—if there are any more gate impelling heavyweights to meet. Such is the net result of a contest which in advance offered little excuse for its being, which yielded more than it promised, and gave funds to a New York charity providing free milk to undernourished children.

Madison Square Slips to Minor Position.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 24.—By now, I think, the Madison Square Garden firm of New York and elsewhere, which once enjoyed a complete monopoly of the heavyweight championship and of the heavyweight elimination prize fights, has been definitely relegated to a minor position in the business.

From the time of the Dempsey-Willard fight in Toledo until the farewell performance of Gene Tunney at the Yankee stadium the Garden firm under Tex Rickard lost just two heavyweight championship prize fights to other promoters, the Dempsey-Miske bout at Benton Harbor, Mich., and the Dempsey-Gibbons mishap at Shelby, Mont., and very few of the profitable elimination bouts.

Lured Away from Garden.

But the prize fighters have now been lured away from the Garden firm's employ and the current plans of the expensive big store, the first of the big chain of prize fight opera houses, include nothing more ambitious than a return match between somebody by the name of Giacomo Bergomas and Con O'Kelly, while three rivals, Jimmy Johnston, the New York milk fund, and some Chicago group, probably the Chicago Stadium firm, compete for the more profitable bouts.

The milk fund show between Mickey Walker and Jack Sharkey at Ebbets field last night was one of these, which a crowd of 30,553 paid gross gate receipts of $223,356 to see. The net amounted to $212,720. Sharkey receives 20 per cent, or $63,616, and Walker $42,544. The milk fund's share is estimated at $40,000 or $50,000.

What's a Heavyweight Contest?

The Garden firm has Max Schmeling under contract to fight Primo Carnera in New York in September, it is true, but a heavyweight champion's contract seldom is very good and as soon as Schmeling returned to Germany he discovered that his right eye was so badly hurt from a jab received in the first round of the Stribling fight that he would have to desist from fighting until next summer. Any one could have foretold when Schmeling sailed that this eye of his was going to become steadily worse as he steamed farther away from New York.

In the meanwhile, the Garden firm had enjoined Primo Carnera from fighting for Johnston at Ebbets field in Brooklyn on the ground that he might deflate his theatrical value for the Schmeling fight and thus injure the Garden's business interests. So now, Mr. Johnston, who can be very annoying to a business rival, plans to place Carnera in training for the autumn date with Schmeling and, when the Garden is unable to produce Schmeling, to ask the court to award Primo $60,000 for the default.

Plans Sharkey-Loughran Bout.

Meanwhile, Mr. Johnston plans to present Jack Sharkey in a return bout with Tommy Loughran at the Brooklyn ball yard and, when the date of the proposed Schmeling-Carnera fight has passed, to put on another performance by Sharkey and Carnera. Sharkey used to be one of the Garden firm's house fighters, retained on continuing contracts, but he has definitely broken away and it seems that no matter how poorly he performs, as in his bout with Mickey Walker, he always alliminates himself right back into the thick of the business. At that, in the absence of Schmeling, he remains one of the best big fighters in the American market and he is just shrewd enough to realize that any money which he falls to collect this year is money that he never will collect.

There is sprightly competition just now for the next heavyweight championship match and the Garden firm seems least likely to land the business, although it was the Garden that gave Schmeling his first opportunities in this country and the first real money he ever held in his hands.

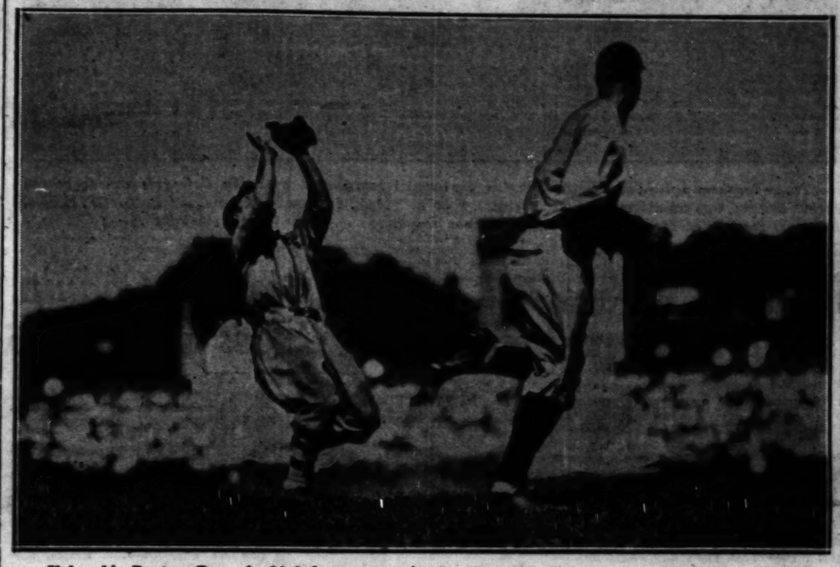
NOTHING TO DO UNTIL THE BALL DESCENDS



Urbanski, Boston Braves' third baseman, waits for Hornsby's high pop fly to come down in the second inning. Barton, whose infield tap forced English for the second out, is rounding third with the intention of scoring if Urbanski drops the ball. But it plunked into the infielder's mitt.

Loyola Names McCabe Head of Athletics

Douglas McCabe, 27 year old alumnus, yesterday was appointed acting director of athletics at Loyola university, and the Rev. Francis Vaughan, S. J., was made temporary moderator of athletics. The appointments were announced by the Rev. Robert M. Kelley, S. J., president of the university.

Heretofore the director has been a Jesuit faculty member, while the routine business has been administered by a graduate manager. McCabe, who was graduated in June and who has been manager of the gymnasium for the last two years, will supervise all intramural and intercollegiate sport programs at the university next year. He is the son of Ralph G. McCabe, 1051 North Shore avenue.

Appointment Temporary.

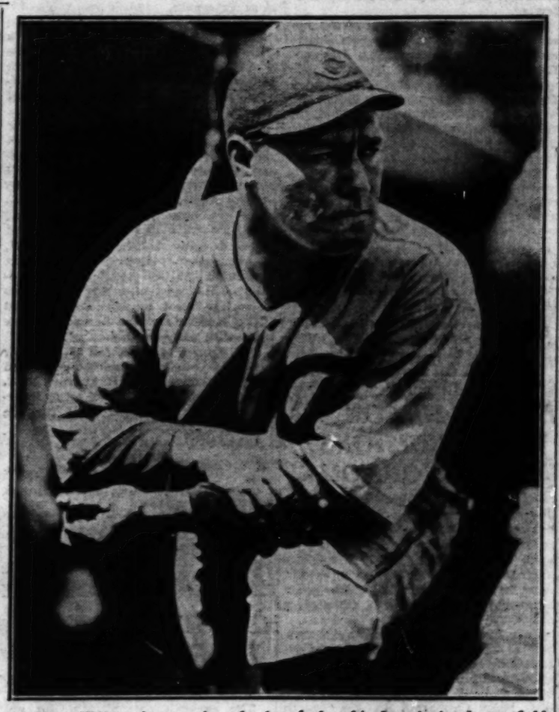
While Father Vaughan's appointment is only for the summer, a permanent moderator of athletics will be named in the fall when the new appointees to the Loyola Jesuit faculty arrive. Father Vaughan succeeds the Rev. George E. Kiley, S. J., former director of athletics, who has been transferred to John Carroll university at Cleveland.

Although intercollegiate football was abandoned last fall, Loyola has a definite athletic program outlined for the coming year. Intercollegiate basketball, track, tennis, golf, and swimming will be continued, but emphasis will be placed on an intramural program which will provide physical training and games for all 7,000 students.

Students to Control Sports.

Control of intramural athletics will be placed in the hands of the students through an intramural association, which will consist of representatives from all the classes. Students on the lake shore campus will be organized first with the idea of extending the program to the departments located downtown and on the west side as soon as it is successfully launched.

Interdepartmental and interfraternity schedules for football, soccer, swimming, handball, boxing, baseball, bowling, tennis, and golf will be arranged as soon as classes begin in September.



Hack Wilson is warming the bench, but his heart's in the outfield, where he is accustomed to roam. Hack, a hard worker, prefers to be in every game, but a rest probably will improve his hitting, Manager Hornsby hopes. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

THOMPSON LOSES NONTITLE BOUT TO BROUILLARD

Boston, Mass., July 23.—(AP)—Lou Brouillard of Worcester, was much too strong for Young Jack Thompson and defeated the welterweight champion by a wide margin here tonight in the Garden's 10 round windup, a nontitle bout. Thompson weighed 149, and Brouillard was a half pound lighter.

Jim Londos Wins from Freeman in 27 Minutes

BATTALINO WHIPS FREDDIE MILLER IN TITLE BATTLE

Play Semi-Finals Today at Cog Hill.

Mrs. Rose Marshall, Chicago public parks champion, was eliminated in the quarter final round of the Cook county tournament yesterday at Cog Hill by Miss Marge Roesslein, Lincoln Park, who won 1 up. Mrs. Daniel Meany, Cog Hill, Mrs. Mary King, and Mrs. Dorothy Marshall also entered the semi-finals, which will be played today.

Mrs. Meany scored a 6 and 4 victory over Mrs. Mae Lubin of Jackson Park, while Mrs. Mary King defeated Mrs. D. T. Fitzgerald, Marquette, 1 up. Mrs. Dorothy Marshall won from Mrs. Samuel Patterson, 2 and 1. Today Miss Roesslein will meet Mrs. Meany, and Mrs. King is paired with Mrs. Dorothy Marshall.

In reaching the semi-finals Miss Roesslein piled up an early lead on Mrs. Rose Marshall., The Lincoln Park star carded a birdie 4 on the 550 yard first hole. A par 4 on the second put her two holes ahead, but Mrs. Marshall evened the score with pars 4 and 5 on the next two holes.

All Even at Turn.

They halved the fifth and Mrs. Marshall went 1 up with a par 5 when her opponent's drive on the sixth went out of bounds. The seventh was halved. Miss Roesslein squared the count by taking the eighth with a par 3. Both had fives on the ninth, turning all even.

The tenth and eleventh were halved, and on Miss Roesslein's pet hole, the 520 yard twelfth, she shot a par 5 to win. The thirteenth was halved in 3, after Mrs. Marshall's tee shot struck a tree and bounced into the bushes.

They halved the fourteenth, and at the fifteenth Miss Roesslein's 6 gave her a lead of 2 up. But this was reduced to 1 by Mrs. Marshall's par 3 on the sixteenth. The 545 yard seventeenth was halved in 4 and then halved the eighteenth to give Miss Roesslein the victory.

Mrs. King Holds Lead.

The Fitzgerald-King match also was carried to the home green. Mrs. King's birdie 4 on the sixth hole, made by sinking a 35 yard approach, gave her a 1 up lead. At the turn she was 2 up and increased this to 3 with a par 4 on the tenth. Mrs. Fitzgerald took the next two, but Mrs. King went 3 up again when Mrs. Fitzgerald three putted the 13th. Mrs. King held this lead until the 545 yard 17th, which Mrs. Fitzgerald won with a par 5. The 18th was halved.

Mrs. Dorothy Marshall won the first two holes in her match against Mrs. Patterson, Southmore, and was never down.

Has Best Outgoing Card.

Mrs. Meany had the best outgoing nine of the tournament with a 41, two over par, and was 5 up on Mrs. Lubin.

In the first flight Miss Polly Carpenter, Mid City, reached the finals by eliminating Mrs. Jean Freed, Cog Hill, after a 21 hole struggle. The Mid City player was 3 down with 3 to go. Then she took the 16th, the 17th and 18th to square the match. The 19th and 20th were halved, but Miss Carpenter's birdie 4 on the 21st gave her the right to meet Mrs. W. Baugh of Hickory Hills today. Summary:

CHAMPIONSHIP.

Baecht then got himself into a hopeless tangle by walking Brandt and Maranville, filling the bases. Teachout then was called in to attempt the task of restoring order, but he didn't do it. However, the fault wasn't entirely his. Urbanski grounded to Jurges, who threw to second to force Maranville. English started to make the throw on what seemed to be an easy double play, but the tricky Maranville threw his arms into the air and broke up the play so well that the ball shot into the dugout. Cronin and Brandt scoring. The Cubs demanded that something be done about the Rabbit's interference, but the umpires insisted they didn't see it.

Berger Hits Homer.

Meanwhile, Maranville was sprawled on the ground acting as if he had been hurt when English's arm hit him. The Rabbit revived and was as frisky as ever as soon as he made certain that his act had been a success. Urbanski then stole second, continued to third on Hemsley's bad throw and scored when Berger banged his homer into the left field bleachers.

One more run was scored against Teachout in the fifth. Sheely led off with a single to center. Richbourg busted and Teachout threw wild enough to let Sheely reach third. Cronin filed out and Maguire squeezed Sheely home on a perfect bunt along the first base line. Brandt survived on Teachout's fumble of a grounder, but Maranville filed out.

M'CAULEY WINS, 1 UP, IN MIDWEST PARKS TOURNEY

R. R. McCauley of Garfield park, who on Wednesday defeated Tom McInerney, defending champion, in the fourth annual midwest public parks golf tournament, yesterday swept into the semi-final round by winning from John Gibson, 1 up, at Lincoln park. A. Andregan, Roy Garland, and H. Mathisen also qualified for the semi-finals.

Andregan scored another of the upsets which have marked this year's meet by defeating Sterling Dawson, Lincoln park, who will be a member of the Chicago team, which will play for the United States public links title, 4 and 3. Dawson had qualified for the quarter-final round by eliminating Al Megaff, runner-up to McInerney in the 1930 meet.

McCauley will meet Andregan this morning while Garland, who beat H. Nillis, 4 and 3, will face Mathisen. The latter defeated R. A. Bowkner yesterday, 3 and 2. The winners in today's play will clash in the 36 hole final tomorrow. Yesterday's results:

Dick Martin, Big Ten Champ, Wins Low Gross with 156

Dick Martin, young Illini who holds the Western conference golf championship, led a tribe of more than 100 players to the scorer's wigwam in Briergate's annual Braves' day yesterday with a 36 hole gross card of 156. Dick, probably the youngest brave in the band, didn't exactly scalp par, hanging up a 39 in each of his four nine hole rounds. He attributed the comparatively high score to putting weaknesses, and declared it was the first time this season he had gone over 74 at Briergate.

The field was divided into three classes, and in addition to Martin's score in class A, R. E. Butler of the home club took class B honors with 185, while T. H. Decker, also of Briergate, won in class C with a card of 202.

C. R. Smith of Briergate won the 36 hole low net prize in class A with a score of 175—28—147, and B. H. Elliott, another home club entrant, was second with 168—18—150. E. E. Davis of Midlothian was the first guest to enter the prize winning list, turning in a 190—46—144 for the lowest net of the day and first in class B. H. H. Gonder, also of Briergate, was next best with 186—36—150. R. H. Chapman of Rolling Green led in the class C with a card of 203—56—147, and P. Y. Timmons of the home club was next with 218—68—150.

One foursome prize, for 36 hole low net, was won by a quartet composed of R. R. Atkinson, T. H. Decker, N. C. Tompkins and A. H. Ruth, all of Briergate. Their combined total for the day's play was 605.

O'Connell and Jennings Win Net Matches

George Jennings and George O'Connell, top seeded favorites, moved into the semi-final round of the men's singles yesterday in the Chicago public parks tennis tournament, when they eliminated Wade Storer and Scott Rexinger, respectively. The matches were played on the Hamilton club courts.

O'Connell lost the first set, 2-6, but took the next two, 6-1, 6-1, by smashing drives to Rexinger's backhand.

Jennings, four times national public parks champion, repulsed Storer, 6-1, 6-1, by storming the net and drawing his lanky opponent out of position.

Storer's height enabled him to cover his court well, but even with this advantage he was unable to cope with Jennings' mixture of cross court placements.

Jennings will play Leo Lejeck and O'Connell will oppose Charles Lejeck in the semi-finals tomorrow afternoon. The finals will be held on Sunday.

Beg Your Pardon

Mrs. Ada McNeil is women's champion of the Southmoor Golf club, and not Mrs. S. M. Patterson, as reported in yesterday's TRIBUNE. Directors of the club said that Mrs. McNeil won the championship last year and still retains it.

Landlubber Grabs a Yawn.

There followed considerable activity in the forward end of the craft, and in order to clear the tangled halyards, Lester Hovack, the Bergen, Norway, boy who learned the mysteries of sailing on a square rigged training ship, shinnied 40 feet up the perilously slanting foresail stays to the spreader with simian nimbleness. Within two minutes he had the situation shipshape.

Having witnessed this action from the afterdeck, the landlubber went below for a nap, and thus lost his opportunity to see Skilligallee, the next port, for Quicksilver II. hopped along so well that it was passed while he was sleeping.

The passage through the Straits of Mackinac was negotiated during the dawn, and when the Quicksilver neared the end of her voyage, the sun was like a golden platter balanced on the shelf of Mackinac's picture book shoreline. The Quicksilver II. crossed the finishing line between the Round Island lighthouse and the race committee's little cannon ashore at 5:47.40 o'clock, 61 hours, 27 minutes and 40 seconds after she had fled the Belmont harbor starting line.

He Guessed Six Weeks.

The ship's pool—six dollars—for the party guessing nearest the arrival time of the Quicksilver II. was awarded to young Hovack, whose conjecture was 6 o'clock. Capt. Alb... much of whose 28 sailing years ha... been spent in piloting fishing boa... through north Atlantic gales off the Grand Banks of Newfoundland, was second. Your correspondent evidently thought the Quicksilver II. was headed for Hudson Bay when he made his guess.

So ends the cruise of the Quicksilver to Mackinac Island and all's well, except that this landlubber would like to have seen that Skilligallee place.

The Cadillac driver reports during Indianapolis Speedway run

AAA REPORT

certifies to excellent lubrication by New Iso-Vis in Cadillac

3 Consumption: Iso-Vis 50 (Heavy) at 30 m. p. h.—only 2 qts. in 1,000 miles. At 55 m. p. h. all oils, all cars showed consumption 7 times that at 30 m. p. h.

4 Carbon: only 7.8 grams per cylinder at 30 miles per hour, using Iso-Vis 50 (Heavy).

The fine condition of its powerful engine gives no idea of the strenuous tests it went through on the Indianapolis Speedway. During the 13-car lubrication study conducted there by the Contest Board of the American Automobile Association, this Cadillac covered a year's average mileage in a little more than 3 weeks. Now it is gathering more data out on the road.

Both the performance of this car and the report of the A. A. A., give conclusive evidence that New Iso-Vis will lubricate your car with high satisfaction. Change this week to New Iso-Vis—the only motor oil that will not thin out from dilution.

HYDE PARK BOYS' CLUB ENTERS 24 IN TRIBUNE SWIM

Teams to Wage Battle for Trophy Sunday.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The South Shore and Hyde Park Boys' club will have 24 contestants in THE TRIBUNE'S 100 yard championship swimming races in the Lincoln park lagoon Sunday afternoon. Coach Harry B. Gilbert will have boys from his club in the first three age divisions with greatest strength in the 13 and 14, and 15 and 16 year old classes.

Gilbert, who has been instructor of the club for a year, formerly coached football at St. Joseph's, La Grange, Ill., and his football teams won several championships. The club swimming team has been practicing at the Hyde Park Y. M. C. A. pool.

Battle for Team Trophy.

The battle for the team trophy, which will be awarded on points scored in the ten races, promises to be a free for all. Since all the events, five for boys and five for girls, will be counted, teams such as the Illinois Women's Athletic club, the Michigan Women's Athletic club, and the Victorian A. C. are handicapped. The park playgrounds, city playgrounds, the Jewish People's Institute and such organizations have entries in all ten races.

Five points will be given for first place in each of the championships; three points for second place and one point for third. Thirty gold, silver and bronze medals will be the awards for point winners. Each swimmer, however, who completes the 100 yard course, will receive a merit badge for his achievement.

Contestants must not forget that their numbers will be given out Sunday at the Lincoln Park Boat club starting at 10 o'clock. No numbers will be distributed after 12:30. The first preliminary in class A, for 11 and 12 year old boys, will start at 1:30.

Largest Entry List.

The entry for THE TRIBUNE 100 yard championships is the largest for any swimming meet ever held in the central states. If 60 per cent of the contestants report [and since 75 per cent are individual entries, even more may participate] it is estimated that 1,500 boys and girls will compete. At least four and a half hours will be required to complete the preliminaries.

Semi-finals probably will be necessary in classes B and C for boys. In the other divisions no swimmer will be required to compete more than once. Only one will qualify in each preliminary race.

Automobiles may be parked Sunday on the east side of the outer drive. No parking will be permitted on the middle drive.

Each contestant will be given a bag for clothes bag when he receives his number. The bag will have marked on it the number which corresponds to its swimming number. After the race, his swimming number will serve as a dressing room check for his clothes. As many as can are urged to come to the lagoon prepared to swim. Dressing room facilities also will be available without charge at the Diversey beach.

GOOD MORNING MRS. BANANA
GOOD MORNING MOONSHINE.
I WISH SHE'D TALK A LITTLE LOUDER, I CAN'T HEAR A WORD THE WOMAN'S SAYING. AND FROM THE FLUSTERED WAY MOONSHINE TUCKED HIS NEWSPAPER UNDER HIS CHIN AND STARTED READING HIS NAPKIN WHEN I WENT THROUGH THERE, YOU'D THINK WHAT THEY WAS TALKING ABOUT WAS NONE OF MY BUSINESS.

PIRATES HAND DODGERS WORST WHIPPING, 17-6

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 23.—[Special.]—Pittsburgh gave Brooklyn its worst defeat of the season today, pounding Dazzy Vance and three other pitchers for 21 hits, to win, 17 to 6.

Vance was knocked out in the fourth inning, when a five run rally ran the score up to 8 to 3. Thurston, Moore, and Day were no more effective and the Pirates had two more big innings. George Grantham hit a homer for the Pirates.

Ervin Brame pitched for Pittsburgh, and, although he was hit freely, he kept the Robins' 17 hits scattered after the second inning, when five were bunched for three runs. Score:

A walk in the second inning led to the first Giant run and a hit batsman in the tenth gave New York the victory. Hunnefield opened the tenth with a single. Hubbell was hit and Allen sacrificed. Bush Ignores Caraway's Cry for Relief; Sox Lose, 13 to 4

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., July 23.—The Red Sox, from whom the White Sox have stolen the American league cellar, tromped on the Chicagoans this afternoon, 13 to 4. But it was something more than just a baseball licking.

Manager Bush dedicated the day's Sox sorrow to the business of exposing Pat Caraway's growing inefficiency to the Boston public, which is expert in appraising clown pitching through long suffering on its own account.

Caraway apparently had expected to follow his usual custom of perpetrating a few grotesque gyrations, then retire and prepare for a hearty meal in the luxury of the club hotel. Dr. Bush crossed up Pat with great avidity, making Pat take his licking until the clinic became absolutely gruesome in the fifth. Then he sent in Wilbur Wehde, who did well enough, aided by a triple play in the sixth.

Caraway Suffers Early.

Pat, you will recall, early this season won six games, saved several others, and was being hailed as the season's sensation. Then something happened to his spinal hookup, or something. His record of six won and three lost has become 10 lost and 3 won.

Manager Bush has his own theories about Caraway's reversals and elected today to let him take it. And Pat took it plenty in the very first inning. He had his white flag flapping in the breeze, but Dr. Bush could neither see nor hear the lily pennant. With no uncertain gestures the doctor waved his trembling employé to proceed with his silly alants.

Warstler filed to center to start the Red Sox offensive. Then Rhyne beat out a bunt. Rothrock supplied the second out with a foul to Sullivan and it appeared that Pat might not be taken down with the ague after all. But Earl Webb up and knocks the ball into the far distant right field stands.

Bush Finally Pities Customers.

Even then Caraway didn't start quaking. But when Sweeney singled, he gave the sign of distress to Bush, and was ignored. Oliver, Berry, and Russell then singled in succession, with Caraway apparently pleading to be taken out between each smack. But he stayed in and the record of the inning was five runs and seven hits.

Between the innings Bush could be seen shouting at Caraway with great gusto and many gestures. In the second inning the first two batsmen were infield outs, but Webb walked and scored on Sweeney's double. Miller was hit by a pitched ball. Then Oliver singled, scoring Sweeney. Berry was given an intentional pass to fill the bases, but Russell, who had a single and two doubles during the afternoon, fanned.

Then and during the third and fourth innings it appeared that Caraway had been stirred to resume his former form and courage. But he blew up for four runs in the fifth and Manager Bush took compassion on the spectators, including President Harridge of the American league, and let Wehde get the side out.

Wehde prepared for the Sox triple play in the sixth in the following manner. Berry singled and stopped at third on Russell's second double. Warstler walked, filling the bases. When Rhyne was hit by a pitched ball, Berry scored. Russell scored when Wehde passed Rothrock.

The triple play was executed at this point. It was the second of the month by the Sox, but the first to count, one in St. Louis having been missed by Umpire Campbell. Umpire Nallin, a good umpire, was working under the eye of President Harridge today and there was no question about completion of the maneuver.

With Warstler on third, Rhyne on second and Rothrock on first, Webb lined to Sullivan. Sullivan ran to third to double Warstler off the bag, then threw to Blue to triple Rothrock off first.

Sox Look Good for Moment.

The way the game started, it appeared that the White Sox were in for a soft afternoon, but even the first half of the first inning turned out to be something of a frost. Blue opened up with the first of his series of hits, a single to center. Sullivan singled to left center, Blue going to third and young Bill taking second on the throw to third. Reynolds singled to deep center, Blue scoring, but Sullivan stepped on a treadmill some place en route from second, causing him to be thrown out at the plate. Reynolds was caught stealing.

The same teams will play tomorrow and Vic Frasier will attempt a comeback against the big rookie, Bob Kline.

ATHLETICS TAKE 10TH IN ROW; TOP CLEVELAND, 5-2

Philadelphia, Pa., July 23.—(AP)—Capturing their second straight victory from Cleveland, 5 to 2, today, the Philadelphia Athletics ran their winning streak to 10 games in a row. Three runs in the first inning cinched the game for the Mackmen.

Anglers Find Small Bass Are Full of Fight

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Peshtigo River, Wis., July 23.—If you want some restful fun with a fly rod around sundown forget about the smashing big fish like the muskies and pike and turn to the minor basses, as the bluegills, rock bass, and sunfish are called. We've been playing with these little fellows on an 8½ foot fly rod and it's a circus. Some of the interesting questions involved in the catching of these delicious pan fish are choice of flies, how fast a fly must be retrieved, and how "wet" the lure must be fished.

A couple of nights ago Paul Davis of Chicago took us to a rock bar not far from camp to try for some of the little basses which are abundant in the lake. The wind had died down to a whisper. A short distance from our canoe we could see a family of loons cruising around on the water, apparently quite suspicious of our activity.

It took us a few minutes to locate the big bar where the bluegills, sunfish, rock bass, and a few large mouth bass always can be found. We could look down in the clear, quiet water and see the big boulders on the bottom. The water was between four and five feet deep, with only an occasional weed growing here and there among the rocks.

Soon we were in a school of bluegills and sunfish. Davis decided to experiment with a dry fly, as he wanted to see if the sunfish would come to the top and strike a bunch of feathers that looked like a floating insect. We tied on a No. 10 plain coachman. And then the fun began. The sunfish were ready to feed, so they were not at all hesitant about striking anything that looked like food.

Davis caught several on his dry fly before turning to a wet pattern and it was surprising how hard a sunfish can pull on a line. Of course, any flat bodied fish can get a lot of purchase on the water. All he has to do is to swim at right angles to the fishermen and he has leverage. Frequently we would hook one of these little fellows that made us think we had a bass on the line, so determined was his tugging.

These facts were evident in our fly fishing; the sunfish and bluegills wanted a small fly fished quite deep and their strikes were more frequent well under the water than on top.

have an agreement with Schmeling to fight the winner of last night's bout in New York next summer with the championship at stake. There was no official winner Wednesday night, although Walker forced the argument and Sharkey discredited himself.

Ordinarily, the prize fighters prefer to fight for such institutions as the milk fund because the revenue law exempts the receipts from the excessive federal tax of 25 per cent on all tickets costing $5 or more, an average deduction of 13 per cent from the gross receipts of a commercial production. Fighting on a percentage of the net receipts, the prize fighters naturally expect to do better for themselves under the auspices of a chartered charity. So it is possible that Schmeling will fight for the milk fund next year.

Thinks Chicago Needs Bout.

Competing with the milk fund for Schmeling's next fight is Anton Cermak, the Democratic mayor of Chicago, who is a prize fight customer and who believes a heavyweight championship bout is something that Chicago should have. His honor, Mr. Cermak, would not undertake to promote the fight under direct municipal auspices but would encourage private promoters in Chicago to bring the fight there.

Jack Kearns, an enthusiastic promoter and showman, is now making the most of the majority opinion delivered at the ringside in Brooklyn to the effect that Walker earned a victory over Sharkey and was cheated of his due by the draw decision. Mr. Kearns will try to drum up next summer's Schmeling business for Walker without exposing Walker to any unnecessary risks in the meantime.

Garden Head Too Trustful.

The decline of the Garden firm from its old position of dominant command in the heavyweight business has been due in large part to the trustful honesty of Will Carey, the successor to Tex Rickard, who came to his office a couple of years ago with an innocent belief that once a man gave him a promise the matter was settled. Mr. Carey accepted promises and even contracts only to find not long afterward that the boys had not meant what they said.

Mr. Carey is perplexed. Where Rickard was sly and tricky, he is quite honest. Rickard kept the fighters under control and built up the monopoly which has now crumbled.

Mr. Carey retains one asset. Hampered as he is by honest tendencies, he has a stubborn fighting disposition, but it is hard to see how he can win fighting with his weapons against those he has to oppose.

ULUNIU COMES OUT OF JAM TO WIN STAKE RACE

BY FRENCH LANE.

Uluniu, the unfashionably tired 5 year old which races for Mrs. R. Pollard of Houston, Tex., was the most rugged roughneck in a party of ruffians which fought it out in the Mississippi Purse at Arlington Park yesterday.

After he had outroughed his rough rivals, he was in front by three-quarters of a length at the end of the exciting seven furlong event. Martis, a New Yorker, was second, and Sister Zoe, also a participant in the brawl, rallied to be third.

Sun Memory, the favorite, wasn't willing to engage in the melee which took place on the turn into the stretch. After he had been mussed about several times, he dropped back and looked at his rough playmates with so much scorn he forgot to keep running and was only a galloping last at the finish.

Responsibility Waived.

Just where the responsibility for the jam rested even the racing officials were unable to determine. They cross examined a jockey or two and even the riders didn't know who was to blame. Uluniu did some shouldering himself, but he came up on the outside and the others seemed to be crowding him just as much as he was roughing it up with them. So the order of finish was allowed to stand. Uluniu was probably best, anyway.

"At the start, Cheers, showing his usual early dash, went to the front, but Martis and Sun Memory were both right after him. As they neared the turn, Sun Memory moved past Martis and went after Cheers. Uluniu then came around on the outside of the pack and the fight was on. It lasted just for an instant, but the horses were pushing and shoving in all directions. Out of the mess came Uluniu to take the lead. He had to be mighty game to hold it, for Martis was coming on again in midstretch and Sister Zoe was staging one of her old time stretch drives.

There have been few times when Uluniu has ever been headed in the stretch after he has once taken the lead and they didn't head him yesterday, although Jockey Hanford was belaboring the leather off his flanks with great gusto during the last part of the race.

Despite the rough going and the dull track condition, Uluniu ran the seven furlongs in 1:25, which was very creditable. During the plunge on Sun Memory, Uluniu was virtually overlooked and in the mutuels he paid $14.08 to win, $6.80 to place, and $4.80 to show. Martis paid $7.08 to place and $5.06 to show. Sister Zoe's show price was $5.54. Old Golden Prince was running great guns right at the finish, but the best he could do was finish fourth.

Old Montanaro Wins.

Montanaro, once a famous handicap horse in these parts, appeared in a mile and a furlong race, entered to be claimed for $3,500. In the same race was Gone Away, quite a stylish horse from the east which never before had been asked to associate with the selling platers.

When the dust of the battle settled, old Montanaro's nose was showing in front. Gone Away was running so fast he would have won in another stride. Jem, which had been backed heavily near post time and was the favorite, was third after sailing into the lead at the end of the back stretch as if he was going to make a runaway of it.

Just about that time Montanaro started to make his run and it was well that he did, for Jockey Ellis lost ground with Gone Away trying to find racing room and dropped back. He came on the extreme outside with Gone Away in the stretch and was running over horses from there until the finish. Montanaro would not weaken and went on to a victory, which rewarded his backers at $16.00 in the two dollar mutuels. Montanaro ran the mile and a furlong in 1:52.

ENGLAND MAKES CHALLENGE FOR DAVIS CUP TODAY

Paris, July 23.—(AP)—For the first time since 1919, England tomorrow will challenge for the Davis cup, international trophy held by France. In 1919 England went down to defeat before Australia at Sydney and since then has failed to reach the final round.

Victorious over the United States, three matches to two in the intersone finals, the young English team will meet a polished but handicapped French team which has held the cup for four years.

The draw, made today, favored France in pitting Cochet against H. W. [Bunny] Austin, England's strongest player, and Borotra against Fred Perry.

Lincolnshire Tennis Team Will Play Olympia Fields

The second inter-club lawn tennis tournament between Lincolnshire Country club and Olympia Fields Country club will be held on Lincolnshire courts in Crete tomorrow. Olympia Fields won the first of the series on Olympia's court. Matches will be played by both women and men. There will be five men's matches, three women's and one mixed double in the series.

Lefty Sullivan Signs with Duffy Florals

Lefty Sullivan, spitball pitcher who once pitched for the White Sox, has been signed by John Duffy to finish out the season with the Duffy Florals. Sullivan will make his first start for the Duffys in the double header with the Milwaukee Red Sox of the Wisconsin State league at Shewbridge field Sunday afternoon.

POST, PADDOCK PURSE MAY BE WORTH $50,000

Warren Wright, one of the directors of the Arlington Jockey club, will entertain Gov. Louis Emmerson and the jockey club directors at a luncheon in the Post and Paddock club tomorrow. Later the governor will present the Arlington cup to the winner of the cup race, which will feature the racing program.

Indications yesterday were that more than twenty will go to the post in the Post and Paddock Club stakes on the final day of the Arlington season, a week from tomorrow. This will make the race worth more than $50,000, the richest 2-year-old event ever run in this part of the country.

The Agua Caliente Futurity winner, Sharp Thoughts, doesn't seem to possess a very large heart. In a claiming race at Arlington yesterday he led into the stretch by a wide margin, then foldedup and quit disgracefully when Unencumbered challenged later.

Somebody remarked a few days ago that Owner-Trainer John Lowe promised his great-grandfather he would never win with a favorite. But if John made such a promise, he didn't keep it. His filly Thunwin, heavily backed favorite, won the second race at Arlington yesterday.

Voltagreen from the Nevada Stock Farm stable made something of a show of his rivals in the six furlong dash which engaged some fairly handy 3 year olds. Outbound was the favorite, but apparently didn't like the dull track. The race was between Voltagreen and Black Comet all the way, but Voltagreen pulled out into a long lead in the late stages.

Mike Hall and The Nut were the only cup prospects to work at the regular time yesterday morning. The going was stiff and holding, but drying out fast. Mike turned a mile and a furlong in 1:56 3-5, the half in :52, three-quarters in 1:17, mile in 1:42 2-5. The Nut's move was seven furlongs in 1:30 4-5. Both horses were in hand. Tough going is The Nut's forte. Mike doesn't care so very much for it, but, being an honest sort, does his best at all times.

Risk, daughter of Sir Gallahad III. and Risky, and a half sister of Risque, a $16,000 yearling of last summer's sales at Saratoga and one of John Hertz's nominations for the Saratoga Special, breezed an easy half in :50 seconds, and Frank Hackett announced she would start for the first time Monday. She has always had plenty of foot.

Why Dedicate, owned by Fred Burton of Chicago, cannot manage to get down in front is a mystery to clockers. He works well every time he appears on either the main or the training track. His move over the training track this morning was about the best of the morning—three-eighths in :35 3-5.

MARTIN INSULL SEES UPTURN IN ELECTRICITY USE

BY O. A. MATHER.

Perhaps Americans have been too interested and concerned in European events centering on the German financial crisis to take proper note of improvement in the domestic situation. This is the suggestion of Martin J. Insull, president of the Middle West Utilities company, one of the largest public utilities in the world. He cites a substantial increase in consumption of electricity as definite evidence of an upturn in business.

"While I wish in no way to dismiss the gravity of the European situation," he said yesterday, "I believe the healthiness of the basic rules of our own situation, which is electric power output, is cause for renewing up the courage and optimism of all American business.

"For the week ended July 18, 23 of the 28 large electric systems of the country report percentages increases over their output figures for the first 29 weeks of this year. These increases make the week's showing 2 per cent better than the year's showing to date. The trend indicated is clearly upward and of necessity originates in the acceleration of industrial consumption all over the country."

Du Pont Net Is $14,953,465.

Yesterday again brought rather encouraging news in the shape of earnings statements by several large corporations. While not always showing better results than a year ago, they were better than anticipated. E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., the big chemical concern, which also is a heavy stockholder in the General Motors corporation, reported net income of $14,953,465, equal to $1.22 a share on 11,865,767 common shares, for the second quarter of this year, compared with $15,603,688, or $1.33 a share on 10,829,447 common shares, in the second quarter of 1930. Net income for the first half of this year was $27,610,304, or $2.23 a share, compared with $12,351,514, or $2.54 a share, for the same period in 1930.

Montgomery Ward & Co., mail order and chain store concern, reported a profit of $407,706 for the second quarter of this year, compared with a loss of $185,673 in the same period last year. However, the first half of this year produced a loss of $1,375,968, which still was less than the loss of $2,561,783 incurred during the first half of 1930. A recession in dollar sales in the second quarter of this year was largely offset by reduced expenses. Inventories now are about $9,000,000 below a year ago.

Auto Business Better.

In the automobile field, the Willys-Overland company has done better than last year. President L. A. Miller announced that net profit resulted largely from drastic economies, as car sales totaled 42,365 this year, compared with 57,009 last year. However, earnings this year were still slightly below dividends, totaling $456,459, paid on the preferred stock. The company has retired $1,000,000 of bonds and 11,000 preferred shares in the last six months.

BROKERS' LOANS DROP

With the stock market dull and vacillating in the last week, not much change was expected or occurred in the volume of credit used in speculation. The weekly report on brokers' loans by the federal reserve board showed a decline of $14,000,000, bringing the total to $1,416,000,000, which is only $10,000,000 above the record low figure established on June 24. The total a year ago was $3,226,000,000.

Credit for commercial purposes was in slightly better demand, according to the weekly statement of the federal reserve system. Member banks increased their borrowings at the reserve banks by $19,799,000, bringing the total to $181,602,000. The reserve banks sold $3,375,000 of bankers' acceptances, but retained government securities. Deposits receded $4,847,000, but note circulation expanded $14,121,000. Reserves increased $16,813,000 and the ratio of reserve to liabilities rose to 84.3 per cent, compared with 84.1 per cent last week.

The New York reserve bank made no change in its 1½ per cent rediscount rate. Its report showed a decline of $1,049,000 in member bank borrowings, which now stand at $23,181,000. The reserve bank retained its bankers' acceptances, but sold $1,738,000 of government securities. Deposits receded $9,972,000. Reserves increased $30,344,000 and the reserve ratio rose to 91.1 per cent, compared with 89 per cent a week ago.

The Chicago reserve bank reported member bank borrowings about stationary at $11,897,000 and bankers' acceptances and government securities also showed little change. Deposits receded $1,512,000. Reserves increased $5,324,000 and the reserve ratio rose to 89.2 per cent, compared with 89 per cent last week.

Diamond Match Places New Stock on $1 Annual Basis

Diamond Match company has declared an initial quarterly dividend of 25 cents on the new no par common stock, placing the issue on a $1 annual basis. The company also has declared a semi-annual dividend of 75 cents on the new $25 par participating preferred stock.

Diamond Match's present capital structure, representing a readjustment of the former company's set-up, comprises 850,000 shares of $25 par 6 per cent participating preferred stock and 1,050,000 shares of no par common stock. The new preferred is entitled to cumulative dividends at the rate of 6 per cent [$1.50] and after common has received $1.50 a share in any year, the preferred participates equally with the common, share for share, in further dividends.

The new shares were issued in exchange for the old $100 par common stock on the basis of five shares of the $25 par preferred and four shares of no par common for each share of old stock. Thus the dividend rates fixed for the new stock are the equivalent of $11.50 a share on the old stock, which paid dividends at the rate of $8 per annum.

Omit Dividend.

Directors of the National Supply company have omitted the quarterly dividend of $1 due on the common stock at this time. The regular quarterly payment of $1.75 on the preferred was authorized, payable Sept. 30 to stockholders of record Sept. 19. A statement said that "directors decided to take no action on further common dividends at this time under present conditions."

General Outdoor Advertising corporation omitted the quarterly dividend of $1 a share on the class A stock. National Refining company declared two quarterly dividends of 12½ cents each on the common, reducing the annual rate from $1.50 a share to 50 cents.

Eisenstadt Manufacturing company has omitted the quarterly dividend of $1.75 on the 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock due at this time. Charis corporation declared the usual extra dividend of 25 cents and the regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents, both payable Aug. 1 to stock of record July 27.

Brill Company Payment.

J. G. Brill has declared a quarterly dividend of $1.25 on the preferred stock, payable Aug. 1 to stock of record July 30, placing the stock on a $5 basis, against $7 previously.

Apex Smelting company omitted the dividend, 50 cents quarterly, due at this time. Union Trust Company of Maryland, Baltimore, declared an extra dividend of 15 cents a share. Standard corporation declared a quarterly dividend of 7 cents, compared with 10 cents previously paid. Federal Fidelity company deferred the dividend of 20 cents, semi-annually, due at this time. Drapery Trust, Ltd., declared a dividend of 5 per cent for the year ending May 31, compared with 7 per cent for the previous financial year.

GOLDMAN-SACHS CORP. SHARE VALUATION REPORTED AS $12.94

The net asset value of the capital stock of the Goldman Sachs Trading corporation as of June 30 was $12.94 a share, compared with $12.40 as of Dec. 31, 1930, the semi-annual report discloses. Based on market values as of June 30, where obtainable, the appreciation in the company's investments on that date amounted to $2,215,951.

Net cash income for the first half of 1931 from dividends and interest, after deductions for interest paid, expenses, and taxes, amounted to $568,084. Security transactions during that period resulted in an excess of $323,923 of the sale prices over inventory values on Dec. 31, 1930, or subsequent costs, making a total credit to surplus for the half year of $892,007.

The net worth of the company amounted to $72,405,595 without taking into account the appreciation in the security account from Dec. 31 inventory values or subsequent costs of $2,215,951. The net worth as of Dec. 31, 1930, was $71,513,588.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 23.—Directors of the United States Steel corporation are expected to reduce the dividend rate on common stock, probably at their meeting on Tuesday. The new basis has not been determined and will not be until the board has had opportunity to study the income report for the second quarter. Indications are, however, that a substantial cut will be ordered, although Wall street is confident the dividend will not be passed entirely.

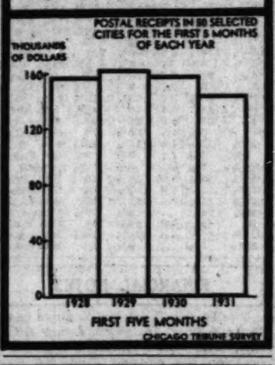
The present annual rate of $7 annually, or $1.75 quarterly, which has been in effect since the second quarter of 1926, cannot conservatively be maintained on the basis of present earnings, it was pointed out. The corporation showed a balance of only 5 cents a share in the first three months of this year for common stock, and the return for the second quarter probably was equally unfavorable if not more so. The showing thus far in the third quarter has not been promising.

American Ice Company to Develop Air Cooling

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 23.—A special engineering department to develop and handle business in the field of air conditioning and cooling of public and private buildings has been formed by the American Ice company. The company announces that it will set up model conditioning plants for various types of buildings in the larger cities in which it operates so that engineers can make observations of cost and other operating details. The new department will be under the direction of George Lange, vice president in charge of engineering.

POSTAL RECEIPTS IN 50 LEADING CITIES FOR FIRST FIVE MONTHS ARE LOWER



CHRYSLER EARNINGS INCREASE SHARPLY IN SECOND QUARTER

New York, July 23.—(AP)—The Chrysler corporation today reported net earnings for the second quarter of the year virtually duplicating the results of the same period last year. Net amounted to $3,231,962, which is $3,822 more than net profits for the like period of last year, and compares with a deficit in the first quarter of this year. Earnings per share of common stock for the second quarter in both this and last year amounted to 73 cents a share.

A deficit of $929,927 in the March quarter this year brought net profit for the first half to $2,252,035, or 51 cents a share, one cent above the dividend requirements for the period. For the first half of 1930 net profit was $3,408,856, or 77 cents a share. Directors declared a dividend of 25 cents a share, payable Sept. 30 to stockholders of record Sept. 1.

Walter P. Chrysler, chairman and president, said that further reduction of the corporation's funded debt and consequent savings in fixed charges were effected during the first half of this year through the reduction of $950,000 in the outstanding 6 per cent gold debentures of Dodge Brothers.

He added that some idea of the significance of the improvements in operations in all departments of the corporation's activities, "and the potential benefits to be derived from them in the future, may be gained from the fact that while the volume of business for the second quarter of this year, due to general conditions here and abroad, amounted to only 77 per cent of the second quarter of last year, nevertheless, the corporation's net profits for the second quarter of this year showed an increase over the corresponding quarter last year."

He is author of several books on real estate law.

Board of Trade Defeats Move to Restrain Co-ops

BY PAUL POTTER.

A proposed change in the Chicago Board of Trade's rules designed to prevent the Farmers' National Grain corporation and similar agencies representing farm cooperative agencies from obtaining control of brokerage houses to save trading costs, was voted down in a spirited meeting of the board yesterday. The vote was 337 to 295.

ALEXANDER LEGGE. (Harris & Ewing Photo.)

The amendment, which was sponsored by a group of grain merchants, met sudden opposition on the part of 22 of the larger corporations in the board of trade yesterday, when they reported that its passage would serve to prevent a member of the board's clearing house from selling the membership to any but present or older members.

Change in Rules Urged.

Agitation for a change in the rules developed after it was announced a few weeks ago that the Farmers National Grain corporation, which handles most of the federally financed wheat stabilization trading, had purchased control of the Updike Grain company. This had made it possible for the stabilizing purchases to be made at considerable savings in broker and margin costs, it was said. Officials of the farmers' agency refused to comment publicly on the board's action, but they were understood to have expressed satisfaction privately. The situation has caused national interest among grain farmers and those opposed to the coöperatives' trading activities.

At the same time, Alexander Legge, president of the International Harvester company, confirmed reports that his concern had authorized the acceptance of wheat in lieu of cash from farmers buying grain growing equipment.

Take Wheat as Payment.

Many of the company's dealers in wheat territory are taking in wheat on the basis of 75 cents a bushel for December delivery at Chicago, Legge said. It is done with the understanding that the harvester company will bear part of any losses incurred, and is not to be considered a judgment of what prices are likely to be in December.

From Washington came reports that Chairman J. C. Stone of the federal farm board had admitted he had been approached by foreign agents who wanted to buy some of the government's wheat.

EDISON CO. SELLS $20,000,000 OF 3½ PER CENT NOTES

The extensive refinancing being carried out by the Insull group of companies was advanced a step further yesterday when the Commonwealth Edison company sold $20,000,000 of 3½ per cent notes, due July 30, 1932, to Halsey, Stuart & Co. The issue will be offered publicly by Halsey, Stuart & Co., Continental-Illinois company, Harris Trust and Savings bank and the Northern Trust company. The notes are priced at 99.88 and interest to yield 3¾ per cent.

The present issue completes the debt financing program of the company for the time being, Samuel Insull, chairman of the company, said in announcing the deal. As in the case of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company note issue, the proceeds of the financing will enable the company to retire all its bank indebtedness and finance contemplated additions. The Edison company recently refinanced its long term indebtedness by the issuance of an $85,000,000 issue of first mortgage 4 per cent bonds.

$650,000 EXPRESS STATION OPENED BY BURLINGTON

This plant supplants the smaller one now at 13th and Canal. It is a receiving, delivering, and pick-up station, with 66,000 square feet of land area, compared with half that amount in the old station. The increase in facilities allows the handling of twenty-five express car loads at one time and the handling of 25,000 shipments daily.

The improvement is the result of new life that has been injected into the express business since the service was taken over by the railroads about two years ago, according to Mr. Williams. Previous to that time all express business over railroads was handled by private corporations. The express business was hit hard when the government entered parcels post, but by a reorganization and with the railroad backing, new methods are being applied which, it is believed, will enable it to compete more successfully with Uncle Sam. A survey is now being made by express agents who are personally visiting 1,000 homes to learn just what the householder knows about express service.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 23.—Weather, world financial and business conditions being what they are, the stock market was content to preserve its status quo today. News of the good will gesture and adjournment of the seven power conference at London was received with a chorus of yawns and dismissed as just another one of those things. Wall street had not anticipated that anything tangible would come of the powwow in spite of all the hullabaloo.

The advance in the Bank of England's discount rate was likewise passed up as nothing to get excited over—not with the mercury poking up in the nineties, anyhow. Domestic developments with a bearing on the market were literally non est.

With the air so fagged out, stock prices did nothing but flutter about. Leaders of the list suffered an unpretentious little sinking spell in the early trading, but shook themselves together as the session droned on. The closing figures were no worse than irregular. Changes of any consequence were few and far between this week and for the third time this year. The total was estimated at about 800,000, there being only one day last Monday, duller in five years.

Hear of Agreement.

The extreme dullness of the market lent credence to a report that the big bulls and bears of the exchange had declared a truce for the time being "by request." One version of the tale had it that some twenty-five or more of the leading operators had received letters from the stock exchange itself asking them to kindly refrain from kicking stocks about during the European crisis. Another version insisted that the letter—if there was one—had been sent out by a committee of bankers. No official confirmation could be obtained for either account, nor could any one be found who had seen a copy of the supposed missive.

Whatever basis there may—or may not—be for the story, it is a fact that many of the leading professionals who are wont to liven things up in periods of uncertainty, such as the present one, are giving themselves

INVESTORS CORP. PARES HOLDINGS, REPORTS PROFIT

Net Asset Value on Pfd. Shows Upturn.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The semi-annual report issued yesterday by the Chicago Investors corporation, an investment trust, showed that the company liquidated a substantial amount of its holdings and made a net profit in the six months period of $485,101 after adjusting inventory to cost or market price, whichever was lower, as of June 30.

Ralph A. Bard, president, said in releasing the report that valuing securities at market prices, both at the beginning and the end of the period, the net profit for the period was $642,603. The accounting practice of writing down holdings to the lower of cost or market, which was carried out by the company, brought the net income down to $485,101.

Preferred Valuations.

Net asset value of the preference stock of the corporation at the close of the period was $46.65 a share, as compared with $42.72 at the close of last year. In addition the company also paid dividends of $1.50 a share on the preferred stock during the period. The common stock, which was quoted yesterday on the Chicago exchange at 3¾, has no asset value at the present time. Preferred shares are entitled to $65 per share on redemption and $55 a share in event of liquidation.

The extent of the liquidation carried out by the company during the last six months is shown in the report. Stocks in the portfolio at the close of the period amounted to $3,576,332, as compared with $5,420,632 at the end of 1930. Bond holdings on June 30 totaled $812,145, against $929,731 on Dec. 31. The firm now has $2,582,916 in cash, short term notes, and U. S. securities, against only $240,567 at the end of 1930.

The report indicates that the concern realized considerably during the early months of the year and repurchased part of the securities during the May and June slump. The portfolio shows numerous changes. Increases were made in the investment in 8 few companies but holdings in most instances were reduced.

Some New Issues Appear.

Among the holdings sold out entirely were 2,000 shares of Commonwealth and Southern corporation, 3,000 shares of Hall Printing, 300 shares of First National Bank of Boston, 3,000 shares of International Telephone and Telegraph company, and 1,000 shares of General American Tank Car corporation.

Several new issues appear in the June 30 portfolio, among which were 2,300 shares of William Wrigley Jr. company, 1,300 Stone & Webster, 1,500 Swift International, and 2,500 Reliance International corporation A stock.

INSULL SHARES FIRM

Trading slumped sharply on the Chicago exchange yesterday but stocks maintained a steady tone and in some cases added slightly to previous prices. The turnover of 49,000 shares was one of the smallest so far in 1931. The day's trade featured no particular issues.

Insull shares were steady to higher. Commonwealth Edison was steady as announcement was made of the sale by the company of a $20,000 short term note issue. Chicago Investors common was quiet and unchanged following the issuance of the company's six months repost. No trades appeared in the preferred stock.

Operation of the business of the Albert Pick-Barth company will continue under the receivership as heretofore, according to an announcement yesterday. The Chicago Title and Trust company, receiver, has appointed L. S. Anoff general manager of the company. Mr. Anoff has been identified with the Pick organization for 20 years. The operating orgnization will continue as before, it was stated.

RUG IMPORTER BUYS 61ST AND DREXEL CORNER

G. T. Pushman Purchases Woodlawn Fee.

BY AL CHASE.

Garabed T. Pushman, president of Pushman Bros., wholesale and retail dealers in oriental rugs, 16 South Wabash avenue, yesterday purchased the southwest corner of East 61st street and Drexel avenue 206½x186, from Louis Karne, a former Chicago realty operator, for an undisclosed consideration. The land is improved with two structures, of three stories and basement each. One contains thirty apartments and the other is an apartment hotel, with thirty furnished units and twelve stores. The value is reported to be $375,000.

Mr. Karne took in part payment twenty-four lots in Villa Park, between Madison and Jackson and Michigan and Wisconsin avenues. Samuel R. Davidson and Joseph Rosenstein were attorneys. Isadore Furgeson, M. T. Basich and Aaron Hirshenow were brokers.

Woman Buys Factory.

Marie Walther purchased the two story brick industrial building at the northeast corner of Armitage and Bare street and the northwest corner of Armitage and Bingham, 157x233, from William J. and Charles C. Keese for an undisclosed consideration. The holding is under lease to the Baxter Laundries, Inc. William Kolacek & Son were brokers.

Transfer of title to the fifteen story apartment building at 429 Roscoe street by the 429 Roscoe Building corporation to the Roscoe-Sheridan Building corporation discloses another dealed property under adjustment. The corporation which has taken title represents the bondholders' interest. It is to be turned over to the George M. Forman Realty trust, which will issue collateral income trust bonds, secured by twenty-six other properties.

This is the sixteenth on the list of twenty-seven defaulted issues of the Forman concern. F. W. Williamson is president of the Roscoe-Sheridan Building corporation and F. P. Linnean is secretary. A. N. Pritzker of Pritzker & Pritzker, attorneys, is a member of the corporation.

Sells Southland Hotel.

The Southland hotel, a four story structure at 1330 Hyde Park boulevard, containing 195 rooms, was sold by Charles E. Hazard, assistant treasurer of Armour & Co., to Margaret McGirl. Property in Chicago Heights was given in part payment.

The Liberty Trust and Savings bank, receiver, has conveyed the Parson hotel property, at the northeast corner of Pedroso and Seneca streets, lot 150x107, to J. S. Greenlee, who recently acquired the equity some time ago at receiver's sale in behalf of a syndicate then being formed. Ringer, Wilharts & Hirsch were attorneys.

GERMAN ISSUES SHOW WEAKNESS IN BOND MARKET

New York, July 23.—(AP)—Bond prices reacted today in an increased turnover. German issues were mostly weak, and although there was some improvement in the later dealings the recessions, added to recent declines, meant that a substantial part of the recent recovery had been lost. Numerous other foreigns, especially Latin Americans, were soft.

Heaviness of the rails featured the trading in domestic corporation loans. Several carrier obligations lost as much as a point. Although the larger declines were to a large extent in secondary issues.

German government 5½s sold down to 81⅝, rising to close at 88 for a net loss of 2¼. The 7s dropped 4 points to 91 but cut their recession in half. Bank, provincial, municipal and corporate loans of German description returned generally larger losses, although volume for the most part was light and the drop represented a scarcity of bids.

Copper Reported Available from Smelters at 7¾ Cents

New York, July 23.—(AP)—Copper is available from custom smelters at 7¾c a lb for domestic delivery, although producers continue to hold their metal at 8c, the ruling price of the last few days. Sales in the domestic market have been small for a week, awaiting developments in the European situation. Demand also is small in the foreign markets.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, July 23.—SUGAR—Raw was unchanged today and although local refiners showed no particular interest above 3.55c, there was nothing offered below 3.58c or 3.60c.

Futures were quiet and after a fairly steady opening eased off under liquidation and hedge selling with the close net unchanged for the spot month, but 2@4 points net lower on later positions. Approximate sales were only 12,500 tons. Prices follow:

In refined the withdrawal demand was again of liberal proportions, indicating a good consuming demand, but as the trade has covered for several weeks to come there was no new buying. Prices were unchanged at 4.75c for fine granulated.

GASOLINE AND OILS.

Turpentine has declined 15c inside of a week, due to accumulation of supplies in this month and a slackening in demand. Linseed oil has dropped sharply in price for the last few days, with a lessened demand.

RECEIPTS OF NEW WHEAT DECLINE; PRICES WEAKEN

Hear Crop Prospects Are Good in Russia.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Grain traders had a most uninteresting day yesterday. The price range was narrow and a general disposition to go slow was strikingly apparent.

Closing trades on wheat were ¼@¾c lower, with corn and oats ¼@½c and rye ¾@1¼c under Wednesday's finish. From a news standpoint there were more interesting factors which ordinarily might have influenced trading and price fluctuations to an unusual extent, but all fell flat as a trade stimulant.

President Hoover's optimistic statement regarding foreign conditions, as well as Chairman Stone's announcement that he had been approached by foreign agents for the purchase of some of the Stabilization corporation's wheat and that the farm board would be willing to dispose of this wheat on foreign markets if proper credit could be arranged, caused some short covering, and a little rally.

Reduction in Pressure.

With decreased receipts, 2,603 cars at all points, the lightest in several weeks, and with shipments about double a year ago, there was a marked reduction in hedging pressure, but new buying was lacking.

There were hot and dry weather reports from the Canadian northwest, where the crop is said to be seriously damaged. At the same time, Winnipeg showed only limited strength and at the close was ¾@⅞c lower, with July 57¼c and October 59¼c. There was plenty of bearish news, a mixed trade and a good deal of support coming at times from the pit element but comparatively little from the outside.

The International Institute of Rome reported that prospects in Russia were for a bumper wheat crop and private cables said that Russia had chartered vessel room for 50,000 tons of wheat and was offering it for different shipments at 56¼c at Rotterdam or 2c lower than American. Argentine's surplus is 72,000,000 bu, indicating shipments so far of 20,000,000 bu, with the remainder of the crop poor, present supplies being in excess of last year. Black Sea shipments were 872,000,000 bu, all from Russia.

July wheat was comparatively neglected and closed 53¾c, with September 53⅝@53¾c, and December 57¼@57⅝c.

Too Hot for Corn in Southwest.

Extremely hot weather was reported in the southwest, one point in Kansas claiming a temperature of 111, and saying corn was damaged. Nebraska also is affected by high temperatures and fears are entertained of crop injury. Reports started a little buying and caused firmness in the market for a time, but a little selling at the last made a tame finish.

Trade sentiment is mixed and local professionals are doing most of the business. July was hard to trade in at times and had a cent range, with scattered liquidation. The close at 88¼@89c; September finished at 51⅞@51¾c and December 44⅞@45c. Movement has picked up, corn being forwarded to Chicago for delivery on July sales. Cash market, however, was practically unchanged, with a limited shipping demand.

Primary receipts of oats are increasing but are fairly under last year. Shipments, also are much smaller than a year ago. Scattered liquidation was on early, especially in July, which showed the most weakness and closed at 24¼c, with other months off only fractionally. Spreading operations between the distant months and absorption of the offerings by the cash interests furnished the principal feature. Rye traders had a limited market with enough pressure from offerings to carry prices down and close them around the bottom.

COTTON TRADING INACTIVE

Speculative interest lagged in all cotton markets yesterday, but closing prices were steady and unchanged to 15 points net higher, the strength being in New York July. First prices reflected Liverpool cables which were 11@14 points down. Traders are cautious in making commitments awaiting the outcome of Germany's financial difficulties. Opinions are mixed as to the crop here, some claiming that excessive moisture is important areas in Texas and Arkansas have caused considerable damage to the crop, while others say that favorable weather from now on will bring the crop through in excellent shape.

Spot cotton were firm, New York closing at 9.30c, 10 points higher, while New Orleans closed unchanged at 9c. Houston gained 10 points at 9.10c, and Galveston was also 10 points higher at 9.15c. Spot sales at Liverpool were 4,000 bales. Prices follow:

Top classes of live stock scored additional advances on strong eastern support yesterday, while others moved early and finished weak to lower. Top quality cattle and heavy hogs showed the most weakness toward the close. Packing grades of hogs are selling as low as any time since 1898 and the range of prices is nearing the point point on record. While top cattle and hogs are close to the higest point in recent weeks, lambs show a decline of $1.00@1.25 since early last week.

Lightweight hogs sold freely at the record advance scored on opening trade and bulk of choice grades averaging 240 lbs and lighter met outlet early, while medium and weighty stock continued off in midseasion and some of the heaviest were bought at slight decline toward the finish. The extreme top moved up 15c at $7.75, while the general average gained 5c at $6.20. Top and average prices show a spread of $1.55.

Only two or three other years on record have had wider price ranges at this time of the season. In 1926 the old corn was plentiful and hogs were heavy the spread was widest on record, the range between the top and average on Sept. 1 being $3 that year. The weight of hogs in 1926 was the lowest since 1883. It is usual for hog prices to spread out at this time of year. Most of the 7,000 hogs left Saturday were being held off the market on the strength of the small supply estimated for today. Five markets received only 35,500, against 46,700 last week.

December Offers at $6.90.

Hogs averaging 210@260 lbs for next December delivery were offered at $10 on the futures market yesterday, but there were no bids posted. Heavy hogs for the same month were offered at $7.15 and lightweights were offered at $7.50. Mediums for September were offered at $7.80 and light and heavy September hogs were offered at $8. August lights were offered at $7.10. On the "40 arrive" market, top weights for today's delivery were bid at $7.75, but there were no offers to sell at that figure in view of the short supply in sight for today and the scarcity of top kinds on the cash trade today.

Demand for well finished steers and yearlings held up to midweek levels as buyers took best selections at the week's idea advance. Medium and butcher steers, particularly stock lacking finish, were not wanted and the outlook for these kinds developed into a small affair soon after the opening. Good yearling steers and heifers averaging 723 lbs topped the price list at $10.85, while some 1,233 lb Nebraska steers brought $8.65, highest in recent weeks for that weight.

Prime 1,360 lbs steers sold at $8.35 and 1,310 lb averages were sold at $10. Butcher stock was generally steady, but demand was slower and prices appeared toward the finish. Sale best 10@15c. Calves were 25@50c higher on best grades, but the bulk of the supply was steady.

Lambs Sell Low.

Although there was a better tone to the lamb market yesterday and some of the very best selections scored slight gains, the general market is lower for the last half of any year since 1916. Best natives and westerns sold at $7.75 yesterday. Back in 1916 they sold at $7.75, which was the top for the last half of the year was $6.25 in October. In 1914 the low top hit $7.50 and in 1913 top lambs went down to $7.

As far back as 1909 top lambs in July sold at $8.90. Aged sheep were unchanged and yearlings held firm. Ewes are selling $1.00@2.00 above a few spot three weeks ago when prices were lowest on record for old crop sheep. Feeding lambs are slow and steady at $5.25@5.75 lately, although the trade looks for an increase in country demand as soon as the harvest is over.

Receipts at Chicago for today are estimated at 2,500 cattle, 12,000 hogs and 7,000 sheep, against 2,750 cattle, 14,000 hogs and 9,380 sheep the previous Friday and 1,345 cattle, 14,943 hogs and 9,231 sheep a year ago.
